Republican State Convention.

A Republican State Convention for the nomination of candidates for Governor and Railroad Commissioner, will be held at White's Opera House, in Concord, on WEDNESDAY, January 5, 1876, at 11 o'clock, A. M.

All the voters of New Hampshire who cherish the principles and achievements of the Republican party; who desire an honest, efficient and economical administration of the National and State governments; who insist upon an early return to a currency based on specie, and a strict fulfillment of every obligation of the government; who approve the course of the National Administration looking to the reform of abuses and the punishment of wrong-doers; who favor such a national policy as shall permanently secure the rights of the freedmen and protect them against fraud, intimidation and violence, to the end that the sentiment of nationality and perfect equality may be made predominant in the reconstructed States, and our whole country placed on the high road to general education, free suffrage, enduring peace and a solid prosperity; and, especially, all who condemn the late Executive usurpation in New Hampshire which disfranchised thousands of voters in contemptuous violation of law and precedent, and fraudulently deprived the Republican party of the legislative power which they had fairly won at the polls,—are cordially invited to participate in the primary meetings for the choice of delegates.

A meeting of the State Central Committee will be held at the Eagle Hotel, in Concord, Tuesday evening, January 4th, at 8 o'clock, to which all delegates to the Convention are invited. DANIEL HALL, Chairman Republican State Committee.

Winter Sports.

Now that the rigor of Winter is beginning to be felt, and lawns, arbors and lakes are deserted, and the young folks collected around the family stove, their thoughts will turn to toys, games, etc., to while away long evenings and dull days.

I was talking with my young friend, Johnny Prill, the newsboy, the other day. He agreed with me that inventors had not done their duty by the young, and that there was no excitement or fun in boxes or blocks, dancing jacks, picture books or toy billiards.

"We want novelty," said Johnny, as he slowly picked a cigar stump to pieces; "young folks gits as tired of old things as old folks do. I goes in for something new every day. To-day I hollers about the murder; to-morrow about the floods; next day about the railroad slaughter; and it's suthin new every day. Do you suppose, Mister Quad, that if I was to holler one holler all the time that I could make a livin' after the fust week?"

My young friend has not the skill to manufacture a new novelty, but he has a lively imagination; and fishing up a piece of red chalk from his coat tail pocket, he sat down on the flag stones, spit on the chalk, and remarked:

"Now, Mister Quad, suppose this is a feller in a chair, and that's a baby, and that's the hired girl, and here's the old feller. There they set, 'lookin' at each other, big fire burning up, and all as dumb as posts, 'cause they haven't got any new games. The wind is a howlin' out doors, snow blowin', and that family might be happy if they went in for new things."

He spit on the chalk again, moved around a little and continued:

"Well, suppose this 'ere boy goes out and gets a whip; these 'ere boys get the broomstick; the old gent here drops on his hands and knees for a boss, and the fellow with the whip makes him jump over the broomstick, just as the spotted hosses do in the circus. The girl lafs, the baby kicks up his heels, and all is joy and peace in that family, where all was gloom afore."

I encouraged the idea, and, after wiping out the chalk marks with his coat tail, he went on:

"Or, suppose this ere boy gits the clothes line, harnesses the old gent to the wood box, all the children, and the hoss walks away. Wouldn't that 'ere leetle innercent baby just put fat onto his ribs, though! Suppose the hoss draws 'em around to here O. K., and then balks and kicks. Crowd comes around, the driver puts on the whip, harness gets broke and finally he runs away and falls into a sewer. There'd be a hull hour of fun for them innercent children, and they'd go to bed feelin' like playful lambs and foxes and rabbits."

"But would the old man do it?" I asked, as Johnny's coat tails swept the chalk marks out of existence.

"He'd be bound to. They are his children and he's got to perwide for 'em. I guess the law would fix him mighty quick if he let them innercent children set up here on them stuffed chairs, with nothing to do but to look at the stove and the rug!"

Having a clean spot again he put the chalk to the flags and continued:

"Suppose the old man gets a telegraph to go to Chicago, and he hain't home. Them children can't set there on them stuffed chairs just 'cause the old man is out of town. Well, what does the mother do but gits down like this, and purtends to be a dog, and growls and barks and shows her teeth. They gits the baby on the sofa, and this 'ere boy takes a pillar, that one a rug, and this one a broom, and they goes in to give that dog such fits as will learn him never to take a hunk out of a boy's hind leg. I can almost hear that innercent little baby hollerin' for joy!"

"It might work," I said in a doubtful voice.

"She'd have to work, Mr. Quad. I don't know much about law, but I know the children have got to be cared for if it takes the house down. It's agin the law for the women to paint and powder and git on fash'nable clothes and things till the children has been brung up."

"Or, suppose the hired girl has freckles on her nose and loves children. Here's the stairs, here, and here's the hired girl goin' up. The children all git together here by the hall door, and the hired girl rolls down stairs head over heels, and that innercent leetle baby lafs till they have to pat him on the back! Wouldn't that be bully, Mr. Quad, and couldn't that fam'ly afford to raise the wages of that hired girl?"

"The hired girl might refuse," I suggested.

"She dasn't—you bet she dasn't! Hired girls is hired to help bring up the children, cook taters, mop off the steps, and let their beaux in at the side gate. She'd be a purty hired girl if she wouldn't roll down stairs to make fun for all them nine children, and she'd be discharged quicker'n spit!"

Culture of the Imagination.

At the meeting of the Massachusetts Teachers' Association, Wednesday, the Rev. Dr. Hill, of Portland, read a paper upon the culture of the imagination.

Our life, said the speaker, is not in the present but in the past and in the future, and therefore our life is in the imagination, which we may divide into simple memory, fancy and imagination proper; fancy being the building up of images of sensible things while the higher imagination creates spiritual things. In general we may say that there are three parts in intellectual life; first, the perception of phenomena, either external or internal; second, the linking of these phenomena together by reasoning, or rather this reasoning out is the third part.

The trained mind sees and hears more than the untrained. A blind man has at first no more delicacy of touch than one who has sight, and yet by training he performs almost miracles. Thirty years ago we gave no time to the training of the imagination, and the importance of the reasoning faculties is still unduly exalted above those of the imagination. It is said that the whole process of intellectual life consists in drawing inferences, while it would be more correct to say that the whole of intellectual life consists in drawing pictures. We begin with the education of children by teaching them to spell and remember facts. We would do much better to develop their imagination, in the culture of which the memory takes precedence, and the building up of, the creation of, images in the mind is secondary.

The natural is the only medium by which we can express the spiritual. St. Paul stated this when he said: "First the natural, and then the spiritual." The power of seeing and reproducing in memory, and modifying in imagination, pictures of the external world, is the first thing in the cultivation of the imagination. It is this which will put into our hands the keys to all the treasures of knowledge, human and divine, and furnish us with the charms and powers of mind. He pores over books, the light of nature shut out from his vision, and then when you need a man you are forced to go to Natick or New Hampshire, where you find your Wilsons and your Websters, whose minds have been filled from nature's original treasure-houses. First teach the child to observe nature and to imitate her in the arts, for on this depends the activity of heart and mind.

Unless the child begins to study the principles of geometry when it is born, it can never learn the science of mathematics or geometry. With the Greeks, from the beginning in education, it was the training of the imagination. We are making a mistake in our trials for practical education. That which leads to a grasp of higher intelligence is practical education. Plato said that geometry must always be a fundamental study in the public schools of a republic, because it is the best of all studies, and first of all teaches the mind to see the presence of eternal virtue and eternal thought in the fleeting shows of the outward world.

After dwelling upon the value of geometry as an educator to the young mind, the essayist passed to the domain of modern scientific research, which furnishes to the imaginative mind an entertainment equal to that found in the perusal of the Arabian Nights. What a field for imagination is there in that theory—that every sensible body in the world, every luminous point, whether it be the sun or a taper, every electric body, every body under the influence of gravity, every sensible phenomenon in this world, is the direct mechanical and matematical consequence of imperceptible rays of light coming from beyond all the stars sweeping through the universe and setting all this glorious machinery into motion! This is the training which natural science gives us, and Dr. Hill maintained that th time at which the mind should receive this instruction regarding the material world was in youth, and that when young men enter college, they should begin the study of spiritual things, mental philosophy and jurisprudence.

News and Notes.

The Marblehead shoemakers are on a strike for higher wages.

The city treasurer of Buffalo has stepped out with a quarter of a million of dollars.

A boy of sixteen jumped from the upper window of a Bangor hotel on Thursday, while crazed with drink. He was instantly killed.

The colored republicans of Washington have had a meeting and resolved in favor of nominating President Grant for a third term.

An official of Sing Sing penitentiary conspired with a prisoner to effect the escape of the latter. The plot was discovered and frustrated.

Bristow's lightning has struck the Chicago whiskey ring. Several distilleries have been seized, the back taxes from which are figured at $715,000.

The Concord Railroad has leased the Boston, Nashua and Acton Railroad. Possession will be taken and trains be run under the new management on Monday next. This is the result of a contest between the Boston, Howell and Nashua and the Concord Railroads, and the result may operate unfavorably against the former and very much to the advantage of the Fitchburg, over whose track all the Nashua and Acton trains have to run to enter Boston. This lease will place the Concord Railroad in a position entirely independent of the Lowell for the transportation of the northern and western travel and freight to the seaboard.

The Selectmen from the towns in Rockingham county met at Exeter, Thursday. About fifty were present. The object of the meeting was to endeavor to equalize the valuation of real estate in the county. The valuations of tilled farms varied from $25 to $45 per acre. This was the price fifty years ago. A committee of ten was appointed, to attempt the further equalization of values, and report to the next legislature.

Gardner Blake, who had just received his month's wages at the Langdon Mills, Manchester, on Thursday, was assaulted by unknown parties, while on his way home, at 6.45 P. M., and robbed of $35. He was struck with great violence on the head, and for some time remained insensible.

In the United States Circuit Court, New York, on Thursday, John E. Lant, publisher of the Toledo Sun, recently convicted for sending that paper through the mails, was sentenced by Judge Benedict to eighteen months' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $500. The charge was one of circulating obscene literature.

The London Times of Thursday morning makes the following announcement: "The National Rifle Association of Great Britain have accepted the challenge of the New York Association to take part in the match for small bores, to be held in the United States during the Centennial celebration. Sir Henry Halford has been appointed captain of the English team, and is now busily engaged in arranging the preliminaries."

It is asserted that the Texas-Pacific Committee was arranged to the entire satisfaction of Tom Scott. If this be true, he is the only party yet heard from, entirely pleased with the action of Speaker Kerr.

The Gloucester Advertiser publishes a statement showing that since 1830 there have been lost from that port 1589 men. The number of vessels lost is 323—an average of seven and one-fifth per year. Total amount of vessel valuation, $1,349,700—an average of $29,993 33 per year. Total amount of insurance, $1,093,400.

There will be two eclipses of the sun and two of the moon in 1876. First, a partial eclipse of the moon, commencing in New England about 12:30 A. M., March 10. Second, an annular eclipse of the sun, March 25, the moon concealing the sun's disc, except a ring around the border. In New England it will be visible as a partial eclipse only, beginning about 3:55 A. M. Third, a partial eclipse of the moon, Sept. 3, not visible in the United States. Fourth, a total eclipse of the sun, invisible in the United States, but visible in the South Pacific and Atlantic oceans.

Sam Ward's Dinners.

It is with difficulty that a leading Congressman can be persuaded to give ten minutes of his valuable time to a merchant, or distiller, or banker, for a practical explanation concerning some important bill under consideration at the Capitol. But the same Solon will pass hours at the dinner-table, enjoying the hospitality of the "King of the Lobby." Sam. Ward, who speaks of himself as "King of the Lobby," is a jovial old widower, who has seen life in every quarter of the globe. He is a firm believer in Tallyrand's maxim, that "man lives to eat, not eats to live." Selecting his guests with great care, and seating them at the table with discretion, he seasons his exquisite bills of fare with reminiscences, stories, and bon mots, until everyone feels jovial and genial. The white wines which follow the oysters and fish banish suspicion—the champagne fosters friendship—and by the time the choice Burgundy is served all differences are forgotten. Who but "Uncle Sam," as he is familiarly called, could obtain such fare—Westphalia ham, salmon on trout, truffled capons, ortolans, canvasbacks, and stereotype delicacies of the day? Of course, the job in aid of which the repast is given is kept concealed, but who that eats one of Sam Ward's dinners will decline to vote for any bill for which he bespeaks a favorable consideration.

How the Purchase of Suez Canal Stock Originated.

[London Correspondence New York Times.]

The origin of the scheme appears to have been in a conversation between Mr. Frederick Greenwood, editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, and Mr. Henry Oppenheim, a member of a well known commercial agency connected in various ways with Egypt. According to one version, Mr. Oppenheim struck out the idea. Mr. Greenwood appreciated its value, and undertook to put it before Lord Derby, who, though he did not feel sure about it himself, agreed to pass it on to Disraeli, and the Premier jumped at it at once. The Pall Mall, however, denies that the idea had a commercial source, and claims for Mr. Oppenheim's friend, whom it modestly calls A. B., the credit of the proposal.

Mr. Greenwood occupies a very distinguished position among English journalists, and from all that is known of him, it may well be believed that he possesses in the fullest degree that quality of bold imagination which is conspicuous in the conception of such a policy. He is the originator of the Pall Mall Gazette, which almost from the beginning of its comparatively brief career has been recognized as the most thoughtful and original of English journals, and during his continuous editorship he has deeply impressed on the paper the stamp of his vivid and impetuous genius. Before the Pall Mall was started he assisted Mr. Thackeray in the management of the Cornhill Magazine, and succeeded him as editor. In those days Mr. Greenwood was chiefly occupied with the more purely imaginative branches of literary work, and not a few of his contributions were at the time popularly attributed to Thackeray himself. Since then he has applied to political discussion his ingenuity and activity of mind and literary force. It is said that a memorandum which he drew up, setting forth the arguments in favor of the purchase of the Khedive's shares in the canal, produced a deep impression on the Premier, and secured its adhesion.

German Dislike of Americans.

[Dresden Letter in N. Y. Herald.]

It may be of interest to Americans to know the sort of taxes which simple living here exacts of them. I will take Berlin as a specimen city. An American here in professional business and keeping house pays as personal taxes: 1. A municipal income tax; 2. A so-called Klassensteuer, a State tax from which the poorer people are exempt; 3. A Gewerbesteuer or professional tax or license; 4. A rent tax, or 6 per cent. on the amount of rent paid by him. The first tax is universal, and is extorted even from American students at the University. The second is paid by all Americans who are technically domiciled here. The third is imposed, of course, on Americans who are pursuing any calling recognized by the laws. The fourth is paid, not by persons who live in furnished lodgings, but only by those who rent an entire Wohnung or dwelling from the owner of a house. These imposts are light, neither singly nor in the aggregate. When all four are imposed the average aggregate to be paid will reach about $50 in every $1,000 of income, a fact which will give pause, perhaps, to many who look toward Germany as the land of cheap living.

Another element to be considered by this latter class is the growing dislike in which Americans are held in Germany. This springs from a variety of causes. There is first the economic or pecuniary reason. The travelling Americans have made the hotels better, indeed, but dearer; the domiciled Americans, being determined to live well, have turned the heads of the German youth and the German shop-keepers, and finally the American heiresses carried off the most desirable matrimonial prizes. Then comes the patriotic reason. While many Germans were once glad to find a home in the United States, they have no sympathy with their countrymen, who since the formation of the new Empire are still attracted away from the Fatherland. Finally, the Germans believe that during the late war the whole American nation was anxious to intervene for France. Did we not send contributions for the relief of the French sufferers, and are not the French going to build a Gallic watch tower in the centre of New York harbor? In the press there is a systematic effort to discredit American institutions, and the feeling of sensitive Americans, who can read the journals and keep awake, will find plenty of coarse and heartless affronts.

Church Property.

[New York Graphic.]

The portion of the President's message that recommends the taxing of church property calls attention to a topic of great and growing importance. In the colonial period all the churches and sects were poor and struggling for a foothold. The country was new. The habits of the people were simple and their means were limited. The church edifices were plain, inexpensive, and in many cases bare and bleak. The religion of the people was a part of their life, and the idea of building costly and extravagant edifices or accumulating enormous church funds and other ecclesiastical property never entered the minds of the men who founded the original commonwealths. But within half a century they have undergone a marked change, and in no respect is it more conspicuous than in religious architecture and church aggressiveness. Each of the sects seems trying to outdo the others in the expensiveness and elegance of its churches and the accumulation of funds. In many cases the edifices are so splendid and imposing that, however admirable they may be as works of art, they strike the beholder as extravagant and out of accord with the simplicity of the gospel. It hardly seems right that so much money should be locked up in piles of brick and brown stone that are used only one day in seven, and then only for three hours. But when it is remembered that property invested in these costly edifices is not only taken out of the profitable and productive circulation of the business world, but is also exempt from taxation; that while it must be guarded by the State and sheltered in all the protections of law it does nothing to support secular authority and bear the burdens of government; that while it is actually owned by wealthy people, who regard an elegant church as one of the luxurious appendages of life, thousands of poor people are outside of all churches, and unable to pay pew rents though compelled to pay taxes; that not a few of these edifices are sources of revenue to those who own them, it will be seen that there is something more than plausibility in the demand that they shall be taxed. But many churches have already accumulated very large properties, which they hold and use ostensibly for religious objects beyond the actual support of public services. The funds of some Catholic and Episcopal churches, like Trinity Church in this city, are very large. Certainly it is only just to the great body of tax-paying citizens that these funds should pay their proportional part of the cost of the government which protects all property alike and gives value to real and personal estates. Individuals die and their accumulations are divided, but corporations do not die. Accumulation is the law of their life. The genius of our institutions favors equality, and while the laws of entail and of primogeniture which characterized feudal times were discontinued by the founders of our government, we should sedulously guard against accumulations of property in favored hands. What is for the benefit of all should be equally supported by all.

Moulton Interviewed.

Mr. Moulton was interviewed Thursday regarding the approaching suit against Mr. Beecher and Mrs. Moulton's conflict with Plymouth Church. Mr. Moulton seems to be in excellent condition—a picture of health and cheerfulness. The prospect of a litigation does not seem to disturb him in the least. On the contrary, he speaks with the greatest confidence of the strength of his case—contending that a serious attempt has been made to injure him and to cast a stigma upon his character, and that he has a right to seek his vindication through the legitimate channel of an appeal to Court and jury. His step was springy, his manner as composed as though he had been chatting in a drawing-room; his voice had its old clear ring and his eye was bright as a hawk's. Evidently Mr. Moulton is ready for anything that may happen. "In the opinion of the wisest and best friends I have," said Mr. Moulton, "there seemed to be no other course to vindicate my character as against the relentless persecution of Mr. Beecher, for the purposes of which he has been willing to resort to perjury and false accusations. I was advised to commence this suit immediately after the entering of the nolle prosequi by District-Attorney Britton, but was reluctant, and, in fact, refused to do so, being willing to leave to time the settlement of the issues between Mr. Beecher and myself. Since the entering of the nolle prosequi, I have borne with patience continued attacks, but at last the course of Plymouth Church and pastor toward my wife forces me, by all that a man is bound in honor to do for the protection of himself and family, to drag this great criminal before a tribunal where the questions involved can be thoroughly investigated, and where justice cannot be evaded. The action which I have brought has been under the advice of counsel well known and eminent, and there will be no delay on my part in bringing it to trial. If the other side doubts whether it will hold or not let them demur and the question will be argued at the very next term of the Court. Without going into the merits of the controversy, talk about it amounts to nothing. It is a question for the Court, and Mr. Shearman knows that as well as anybody else."

Morrison's Record.

[N. Y. Herald.]

It so happens that the new chairman of Ways and Means has already served four years in Congress, and has been ranked with the commonplace members. He first came into the House in 1863 as a member of the Thirty-eighth Congress, at the same time with Mr. Blaine. As both of these gentlemen were new members, it is not discreditable to either that they were assigned to low places on an unimportant committee. It so happened that they were put on the same committee and near the tail end of it.

Mr. Morrison, being from an adjoining State, was probably known to Speaker Colfax, while Mr. Blaine was not, for Morrison stood as the sixth and Blaine as the seventh on the Committee on Militia. Mr. Blaine rose rapidly into high consideration in that Congress, participating largely in the debates and exercising a decided influence. But Mr. Morrison was a cipher. During the first session he offered one or two unimportant resolutions, but took part in no debate. In the next session, while Mr. Blaine continued to rise in the estimation of the House by frequent displays of ability, Mr. Morrison never rose from his seat to address the Chair but once, and then on a point which was frivolous and ridiculous. On an occasion when many members were called to account and fined for absence Mr. Morrison rose to a question of privilege, saying that he had offered the amount of his fine to the Sergeant-at-Arms in bank notes, and that he had refused to accept it because bank notes were not a legal tender. This piece of small buffoonery is Mr. Morrison's only record during the whole session of 1864-5.

—The other day, when a Detroit woman asked her husband to bring home a bar of soap as he came home to dinner, he exclaimed: "What! is that bar gone so quick?" "It's all gone," she replied, "but I was as saving as I could be. I haven't washed the children for five days past, so as to make it last the week out."

Coming Currency Debates in Congress.

[Wash. Dispatch in N. Y. Herald.]

The currency question will come up in force, and probably in both Houses, soon after the recess. In the Senate several resolutions will be offered, and these will elicit, perhaps, a long debate. In the House prominent members have already put their names down for the expected debate. Mr. Blaine leads the list, and Mr. Kelley, who means to reply to Mr. Blaine, comes next. Mr. Chittenden, of Brooklyn, is third, and after him come several democrats. It is understood that Mr. Blaine will lay down the republican doctrine for the House, and that he will urge the funding of the greenbacks. Mr. Kelley will of course, present once more his well-known plan, which the pages in the House last year called the "incontrovertible bond plan." Mr. Chittenden will present the views of a New York merchant on the danger of continuing an incontrovertible currency. One democrat is to make a plain hard money speech, but others of that side, it is said, will demand the extinction of the National banks and the substitution of legal tenders as the only currency. The Speaker is not believed to favor this plan, and if Mr. Morrison, Chairman of the Ways and Means, speaks at all, he will take strong ground for resumption at an early day. The debate will take place in Committee of the Whole, and more of the prominent men in the House will probably be drawn into it.

Sozodont.

An article that is at once a teeth preserver and breath purifier and yet so pleasant and convenient to use, its exceeding popularity does not surprise any one. Time has fully established the fact that the SOZODONT possesses these excellent qualities in an eminent degree. It has legitimately acquired the right to a position upon every toilet table.

Call and be convinced.

To My Patients and the Public!

I propose to leave Portsmouth about February 1st, for an absence of several months. Will those contemplating or needing my services please give me an early call? Previous to my departure for Europe in 1874, so many of my patients neglected to call until the very last that I was compelled to seek the assistance of a stranger to help me out with my forced engagements. I cannot do so this year. The responsibility rests with my patients after this call.

The Eastern Road in Default.

The city of Portsmouth has been officially notified that the Eastern Railroad will not pay the interest on the $300,000 city stock in the Portsmouth & Dover roads. This will make it necessary for the city to provide for the payment of the coupons of the city bonds, amounting to $9000, which comes due to-day.

A special meeting of the board of Mayor and Aldermen was held Friday afternoon, at which the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That his honor the Mayor be requested and authorized to pay the coupons falling due on the first day of January next, issued in aid of the Portsmouth & Dover railroad, for the honor of the city, if the Eastern railroad company, the Eastern railroad in New Hampshire and the Portsmouth & Dover railroad shall severally fail to do so.

Resolved, That the Mayor be requested and authorized, with the advice of the City Solicitor and of such additional counsel as he may think proper to employ, to enforce against said railroad all such rights and securities as the city may have for the payment of such sum as may be advanced in pursuance of the foregoing resolution.

The Centennial Celebration.

The following programme for the centennial celebration this day and evening has been arranged by the committee of the Board of Trade in connection with the Portsmouth Artillery company:

National salute by the Portsmouth Artillery company, one gun for each State.

The bells of the city will be rung at daylight, noon and sunset.

The city government and fire department will meet at the City Hall and be escorted to the Temple by the Portsmouth Artillery company, led by the band, at 7:30 P. M., where a mass centennial meeting will be held, His Honor Mayor Goodrich presiding. Vice Presidents: John R. Redding, William Simes, Jonathan Dearborn, John H. Bailey, Frank Jones, Thomas E. O. Marvin, Frank V. Miller, E. G. Pierce, jr., A. F. Howard. Col. W. H. Sise, master of ceremonies.

The following regular sentiments will be proposed and responded to: Our country; the President; the U. S. Congress; army; navy; our State; the Governor; the militia; the city government; the clergy; the public schools; the progress of the age; American commerce; the press; peace. The toasts will be interspersed with vocal and instrumental music. A section of the Temple will be reserved for ladies and their escorts.

Jottings.

Happy New Year!

Old '75 goes out like a lamb.

Now, boys, look out! Leap year is here.

Now bring on your centennial celebrations.

There will be fifty-three Sundays in the centennial year.

The post-office will be open from 8 to 12 M., and from 5 to 6 P. M., only.

The Portsmouth Artillery company begins the centennial campaign to-day.

The New Years services at the South church will be held to-morrow (Sunday).

The Right Rev. Bishop Niles will officiate at St. John's church to-morrow (Sunday.)

Geo. E. Hanson knows how to keep a drug-store, if anybody does, and his advertisement, in another column, tells how he does it.

Mr. E. P. Sherburne, principal of the Hanover school, is in great demand. The last applicant for his services is a large school in Manchester.

The advertisement of Mr. Briant, whose apothecary store on Market Square is one of the ornaments of the city, appears in our columns to-day.

Rev. B. S. Fanton, (former pastor) will preach at the Christian church, on Court street, Sunday morning at 10 1-4 o'clock. Strangers are welcome.

Rev. Carlos Martyn's topic, Sunday afternoon, is in continuation of his present series of special discourses, will be; "Satan—His character and Methods—How to Resist him."

The following are the dates for the Old Orchard Beach camp-meetings: Methodist district, Aug. 20; National Methodist, Aug. 5; National Temperance, last of July and first of August.

The engines of the Marion have been running for two days, and are pronounced entirely satisfactory. The ship will go into commission Monday or Tuesday. No work on the ship to-day.

Instead of the regular lecture in the Lyceum course at Kittery Point Congregational church, Miss Amelia McKenzie of Boston gave readings. There was a large audience, and Miss McKenzie delighted all by her clear enunciation, dramatic power and naturalness. She is a gifted reader and excels in the humorous. Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett gives the next lecture on Monday evening, Jan. 10th. All are invited.

At the annual meeting of Washington Chapter, No. 3, R. A. M., held on Tuesday evening, Dec. 28, the following were elected officers for the ensuing year: Benj. F. Webster, H. P.; Wm. A. Ashe, K.; Alfred F. Howard, S.; Oliver G. Fernald, Secretary; James W. Nutter, Treasurer; John Dame, C. of H.; John R. Holbrook, P. S.; Charles W. Norton, R. A. C.; Alfred J. Hill, M. of 1st Veil; Thomas E. O. Marvin, M. of 2d Veil; Charles C. Akerman, M. of 3d Veil; William B. Randall, Tyler.

An earnest meeting of temperance men and women was held at the hall of the Sons of Temperance on Thursday evening. A project for the formation of a Reform Society, similar to the Dover and Manchester societies, was discussed. It was stated that a considerable number of drinking men had signed the pledge circulated by the Women's League, and the hope was expressed that a movement might soon be made here. A committee to mature plans will report at a meeting to be held at the same place next Thursday evening.

Delegates.

The following are the republican delegates from ward four: State—Nathaniel L. Maloon, Elijah Clough; County—Jacob Haddock, Samuel S. Whidden; Senatorial—Charles Gray, D. Webster Barnabee; Councillor—Daniel H. Spinney, James L. Barker. The delegation have power to fill vacancies.

The following are the republican delegates from ward five: State—Joseph P. Morse, John Sise, Aaron Young and William A. Pierce; Councillor — Marcellus Bufford, William H. Elements of Bone, Brain and Muscle.

The food contains the elements of bone, brain and muscle, and in a healthy system, properly nourished, the manufacture of these bodily constituents is uninterrupted, night or day. On the other hand, when digestion or assimilation are imperfect, the manufacture is hindered, and the destructive not being counteracted by the reparative processes of Nature, the system is threatened with early decay. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are peculiarly fitted to overcome the causes which lead to an untimely decadence of the vital energies, removing as they do all obstacles to complete digestion and assimilation of the food, and restraining an undue waste of physical substance. For the loss of strength consequent upon depleting diseases, they are the best possible remedy, and their bracing upon the system enable it to withstand hurtful atmospheric influences inductive of malaria.

"A Slight Cold," Coughs.—Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough or "slight cold" which would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected, often attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give sure and almost immediate relief.

The Atlantic Cable is a world-wide blessing, and so is Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. A cure for 35 cents.

The Spring Crop of Coughs and Colds is heavy, and will ripen into a terrible harvest of disease and death, unless rooted out with the Standard Antidote, HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR.

Pike's Toothache Drops cure in one minute.

Pyle's Dietetic Saleratus.—Universally acknowledged the best in use. Each pound bears the name of JAMES PYLE. None genuine without. tje76

The Dance.

Dancing itself is a harmless and healthful amusement when it is not carried to excess; but the seeds of death are too often sown in the ball room, not from dancing, but from the circumstances under which it is carried on. For instance, what can be more likely to produce apoplexy or some serious illness than the practice of eating ices when thoroughly heated by violent exercise.

Again, the atmosphere of many ball rooms, crammed as they often are with three times as many people as they can comfortably contain, is enough of itself to poison any one not acclimated to suffocation by previous training.

Then there are the sudden changes of temperature to which young ladies, insufficiently clad, are exposed on leaving the heated rooms as they return home, overtired and in precisely the same condition under which such changes of temperature are likely to affect them if they have any tendency to lung disease. The late hours, also, which are necessarily kept in the season, cannot be otherwise than prejudicial to the health of both old and young, and cause many illnesses that are unjustly credited to other sources.

American Genius.--Moody & Sankey.

The great revivalists, Messrs. Moody and Sankey, who electrified staid old England with their eloquence and enthusiasm, are fair samples of American genius. Springing from among the common people, their sympathies are alive to the wants of the solid masses, and herein lies the secret of their great success. Those who seek to be popular must study and be familiar with the wants of the masses, and prove loyal thereto. To this fact we may trace the grand success in business, as well as in religious undertakings, which many Americans have achieved. Strikingly illustrative of these suggestions is that great establishment, located at Buffalo, N. Y., and known as the "World's Dispensary,"—a most appropriate name, indeed, for that vast institution, within whose walls are manufactured remedies which are in demand in every quarter of the globe, and at which the best of distinguished physicians and surgeons, under the personal direction of Dr. Pierce, are constantly administering to the needs of thousands of sufferers everywhere, and whose success in the treatment of all forms of chronic ailments has become so well known that there is scarcely a household in this land, in which his name is not familiar. Its proprietor, says the Herald and Torchlight, of Detroit, "is a man of the people, writes for them, and to them tenders his eminent professional services." His advertisements are earnest exhortations. Like the great revivalists, his enthusiasm is multiplied by the unparalleled success of his remedies, as well as by the efficacy of his remedies in curing disease. The people believe in him and his remedies, because, as the New York Tribune says, "he sympathizes with them in all their afflictions, efforts, and attainments." Hence, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is to-day more largely employed as a blood and liver medicine, and also as a cough remedy, than any other remedial agent in the world. His Favorite Prescription he does not recommend as a cureall, as is so often done by compounders of worthless, humbug nostrums, but for all diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women it has proved itself so much of a specific that it now enjoys great popularity and universal confidence. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, scarcely larger than mustard seed, have proved so agreeable and reliable as a cathartic that they are rapidly taking the place of the large, nauseous pills heretofore so much in use; while his Compound Extract of Smart-Weed is a favorite remedy in Colic, Cramps, Summer-complaint, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Cholera and Cholera Morbus, and also as a liniment. Of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, little need be said, as they are known everywhere as the greatest specifics for Catarrh and Cold-in-the-Head ever given to the public. And besides this large measure of success, Dr. Pierce seems likely to achieve as great renown as an author as he has as a physician. His COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of about 900 pages, which he sells at the unparalleled low price of $1.50, has already been sold to the extent of exhausting two editions amounting to thirty thousand copies. The secret of Dr. Pierce's success, as well as that of the great revivalists, and scores of other Americans, who by their genius have advanced step by step from obscurity to affluence and distinction, consists in treating the people with consideration, sympathy, candor and honesty. No man, who hopes to attain either wealth or distinction, can afford to deal unfairly with the world or be indifferent to the wants and best interests of humanity.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the size of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased once ordered more, showing it for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials;

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden. Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done so at my work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that I could scarcely walk from weakness, lost much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in Vermont papers, and thought I would go to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one pack felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package for myself, and be reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.
SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars in a Day.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done all the offers for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, they have done them good. Have a lady friend who I have tried them to, and she says they have done her good. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I could never stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. I inclose this please find $1.30 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. Your Condition Pills have been a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I would give up the idea of trying. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and sent to you the April 26 last, for a box of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them for money and pain. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, and I wish to take the rest of my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Reading, who are taking them, who have already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall see a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time in years, and Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democracy, and it promises to be the duty of the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to win the country; while the action of the Republicans is to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year now opening will see the efforts in religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the state schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and manufacture industry there are hopes that it will witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all Republicans and the science of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year to be without the aid of an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan prejudice or personal hope or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion in the great American conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banner in the old fields, or in the vast of caucuses or conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of other parties, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men, whom the country knows and can trust; to secure sound money, Administrative reform, and economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it hopes and has hopes, fallying the forces for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Tweed Ring, Shoddy, Gold Ring in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course that in all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command equal confidence.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by party names, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conventions have been more honest than they were within two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will see a decided minor improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with political fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and its heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe a journal is a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by its close adherence to news and the most lavish expenditure to procure the fresh est intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, greatly stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
For the terrible diseases engendered by the lurking trying climate of New England!
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, etc.,
USE
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of secret ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Peterson's Magazine
POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.
☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture, entitled "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜
"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.
Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called
THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!
The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments, stories, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its
THRILLING TALES AND NOVELETTES
are the best and most popular. The most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. E. H. Burnett, and others.
MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES
ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequaled for beauty, elegance, and correctness. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

Republican State Convention.

A Republican State Convention for the nomination of candidates for Governor and Railroad Commissioner, will be held at White's Opera House, in Concord, on WEDNESDAY, January 5, 1876, at 11 o'clock, A. M.

All the voters of New Hampshire who cherish the principles and achievements of the Republican party; who desire an honest, efficient and economical administration of the National and State governments; who insist upon an early return to a currency based on specie, and a strict fulfillment of every obligation of the government; who approve the course of the National Administration looking to the reform of abuses and the punishment of wrong-doers; who favor such a national policy as shall permanently secure the rights of the freedmen and protect them against fraud, intimidation and violence, to the end that the sentiment of nationality and perfect equality may be made predominant in the reconstructed States, and our whole country placed on the high road to general education, free suffrage, endurig peace and a solid prosperity; and, especially, all who condemn the late Executive usurpation in New Hampshire which disfranchised thousands of voters in contemptuous violation of law and precedent, and fraudulently deprived the Republican party of the legislative power which they had fairly won at the polls,—are cordially invited to participate in the primary meetings for the choice of delegates.

A meeting of the State Central Committee will be held at the Eagle Hotel, in Concord, Tuesday evening, January 4th, at 8 o'clock, to which all delegates to the Convention are invited. DANIEL HALL.

Painting the Face a Part of Education.

[Paris Letter in N. Y. Tribune.]

Our actresses are becoming curiosities of art, as well as our women of pleasure and women of fashion. It is hard to compute the time which they must pass morning and evening before their glasses. It is said that they are establishing schools of design and of pastel in convents, as painting the face has become the necessary part of every young girl's education. They must paint their eyebrows, their eyelashes, their beauty-spots, and their lips, and they do it with a really remarkable talent. "It is entirely natural," said Madeleine Brohan, "because it is painted on nature. There are those who put on red and those who put white, according to the expression which they wish to give. You will hear sometimes an impertinent passer-by observe in the street, 'There is one who has paid for two cents' worth of sentiment. Happy lovers paint themselves red; unhappy lovers paint themselves white. Paleness is precious to stricken souls. The cleverest paint themselves with an art so delicate that they do not appear to be painted." "What, my dear," said an old Duchess to her daughter-in-law, "you too put on red and white?" "Yes, it is to correct the faults of nature. I suppose in your time you had no need of painting." But the Duchess might have replied that people painted throughout antiquity. Sappho put on chalk to soften the heart of Phaon. Aspasia put on rouge to conceal the ravages of love. At Rome, when Generals entered the city in triumph, they bedaubed themselves in token of gory victory. Mademoiselle Guimard said to Marshal Richelieu, who reproached her for painting herself at twenty years of age: "The Roman Generals put on red paint on days when they entered Rome in triumph; is not every day for me a triumph?"

Humors of the Mail Service.

[Superintendent Bangs.]

I looked into the collection of articles which have passed through the mails and never been called for, preserved in the dead-letter office, a few days ago, and hastily made a schedule of some of the more striking curiosities. Among them were: Rattle-snakes, six; these had passed through the mails alive in perforated tin boxes; centipede, one; snake-skin, one; wooden shoes, one pair; ladies, back-hair, two sets; ox-horns, one; gold watches, three; Colorado potato-bugs, one bottle; moccasins, several pairs; telescopes, one; billiard-balls, one; dolls, several; stuffed birds, one; toys, very many; silver goblets, four; gambling implements, a good many; jewelry, large quantity; sets of false teeth, several; American flags, two; masks, two; bowie-knives, two; razors, one; minerals and shells, many. Bouquets of flowers are frequently sent through the mails. On one occasion a bouquet and a young alligator were in similar boxes in the same bag. The lids of the boxes accidentally came off, and the flowers and alligator were at large in the same bag. One box was addressed to a lady at Albany, N. Y., and the other to a lady at Bridgeport, Conn. The route agent was troubled to know in which box to place the alligator and in which to put the flowers. Finally he settled the difficulty by putting the alligator in the Connecticut lady's box and writing thereon: "If you were expecting flowers instead of an alligator, forward to Mrs. ——, Albany, N. Y." On the Albany lady's box he wrote: "If you were expecting an alligator instead of these beautiful flowers, forward to Mrs. ——, Bridgeport Conn." By good luck the agent got the different articles in the right boxes.

Rich Gold Discovery in Australia.

[Melbourne Argus.]

The most important discovery ever made in connection with gold mining in this colony, with the exception of the original discovery of gold in 1851, occurred here on the 11th of September. It is the finding in the shaft of the Magdalia Company, at Pleasant Creek—or, as it is now called, Statwell—of a gold-bearing quartz reef at the unprecedented depth of 1681 feet, or about 700 feet further into the interior of the earth than gold has ever yet been obtained in Victoria. The managers of the company, since they struck the reef, have gone on sinking so as to ascertain the thickness of it in their claim, and they have passed ten feet of it without as yet having gone through it. Some specimens of the stone have been sent to the School of Mines at Ballarat. These specimens, weighing altogether 10 1-2 pounds, were treated by two different processes, the result being at the rate of 19 dwt. 17 gr. per ton of stone by one process, and 14 dwt. 15 gr. by the other. Four other results which were obtained showed a much richer quality of stone, but as the stone tested in those cases was taken from a higher portion of the lode, and above the mullock base, it is thought probable that the upper and lower portions of the lode may be much richer than the centre.

The directors have decided to break off a good-sized block of the stone and send it to the Philadelphia Exhibition, with a sectional drawing of the shaft and the different strata passed through.

Nothing to Live For.

[Vicksburg Herald.]

A negro planter came to Vicksburg, sold his cotton, put his money in his pocket-book and started down the river. Leaning too far over the guards, as the boat backed out, he fell overboard. His porte-monnaie, which was in his side-pocket, floated out and rode with his hat on the surface of the water, while the current carried the negro away. The yawl was lowered, and assistance at once started toward the drowning man, who, perceiving his treasure floating off, raised his voice and shouted:

"Save dat pocket-book!"

His head went under and he disappeared. As he rose up again, he gasped:

"Dar's $118 in dat pocket-book!"

Scarcely had he uttered the words before he sank a second time.

The yawl came within reach just in time to rescue the drowning African as he came to the surface for the last time. As soon as the water was wiped from his nose and mouth so that he could see and speak, he asked:

"Did—did you save dat pocket-book?"

"No!" was the response.

"Well, den," said the negro regretfully, "what de debbil was de use ob savin' me?"

Daily Chronicle.

News and Notes.

The British steamer Dante, from Liverpool for Bombay, while going down St. George's Channel came in collision with the Grosvsaer, and sank shortly after. Twenty-three persons were drowned.

The Boston Journal states that the dividends payable in that city this month aggregate $9,963,363.

The friends of woman suffrage can point to Wyoming as an incontestible argument for their hobby. The affairs of the territory are in a very satisfactory condition. There is no public debt, the treasury has on hand a sum, and the assessed value of property is nearly $9,000,000, or almost double what it was two years ago.

The U. S. ships St. Lawrence and Macedonian have been sold at auction to Northern parties. The St. Lawrence sold for $17,000, and the Macedonian for $14,071.

"Those faces seem very familiar," said an old Union soldier, as he sat in the gallery of the House gazing upon the democratic side. "I think I have seen many of those countenances before, and if I am not mistaken, at that time they were facing the little end of the gun."—Washington Republican.

Little Wanderers.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

Yesterday morning at one o'clock, while Officer Courneen was patrolling Montgomery street, he stumbled upon two mites of humanity who were aimlessly toddling along with their little hands imbedded in tiny pockets and their little faces blue with the cold. The officer was considerably surprised at the unusual sight, and revelled in a roar of laughter. "I say, you specks! does your mother know you're out?" One of the specks affected dismay at the glitter of the police star, and would have scampered off had not his wee companion restrained him with the consolatory announcement: "Hold on, Harry! He won't hurt us." The little man then straightened up and almost dislocated a miniature neck in attempting to gaze the officer in the eye unflinchingly. "We hain't got no mother." "Where's your father, your home? What're you doing out at this time o' night, anyhow?" questioned the officer. The little fellow replied readily but quiveringly: "Hain't got no father neither, nor no home, and we're looking for a box to sleep in." The officer made a mental note on the innocence of childhood, and tucking a speck under either arm sped with extravagant steps into the presence of Capt. Douglass at the police office. With the single ejaculation "Lost," the officer took a mite from each arm, wiped a tear from each eye and retreated in confusion. The little spokesman gave his name as Amos Axton, and that of his brother as Harry Axton, and related that their mother had died in Santa Cruz three months ago. Their uncle, William Kirby, brought them to this city, and on Thursday afternoon had left them at the corner of Eddy and Powell streets, promising to return in a few minutes, and bidding them to await his reappearance. They lingered there until nightfall, but the uncle failed to return, and the youngsters wandered about the city until a late hour, when they found an empty dry goods box, and in it made a bed for the night. For the past two nights and days they have lived in an adventurous manner, subsisting on crackers. They were dressed in excellent clothes and presented a neat appearance, albeit their shirts were somewhat crumpled from service as nightgowns and their little faces streaked slightly with dirt: it was manifest that they had been accustomed to careful and kind guardianship. One of the little fellows from time to time exhibited a mourning handkerchief with which he effaced an obstinate tear. The captain directed an officer to convey the children into the prison where they might be fed. They declared that they had eaten nothing all day.

A Good Financial Platform.

[Philadelphia Press.]

A clergyman lecturing the other day on the influence and office of Moses, said that the prophet did not originate the moral law, that being already known for its substance, but he did give it authoritative sanction. "To illustrate," he continued, "we are subject, as a commercial people, to constant financial crises. There are many opinions held as to the causes and the proper laws of finance. Quite a library of books have been written on the subject. How great the gain would be if some great mind would arise which would unentangle these perplexities and name an undoubted law of exchange and publish it with incontrovertible authority? Like this was the sanction of Moses."

At the close of the lecture one of the audience stepped up and remarked, "Doctor, did you not know there was an admirable and efficacious law of finance in existence; one published, too, with authority and most tremendous sanctions?" "No, indeed," said he; "and pray, what may that be?" The answer came, "Thou shalt not steal."

How a Pennsylvania Man Taught the West Finance.

Not long since two York men visited Kansas. They stopped at a hotel one forenoon, and after dinner one of them walked down to the barber shop to get shaved. The shop was shut, the barber having gone off to take his after dinner nap. Then the York man walked back to his landlord, and said: "With your magnificent country, which is the garden of the world, you ought to be the most prosperous people on earth. That you are not is due to the fact that you don't attend to business. You don't look out for coppers. Here's your barber now, shut up and gone when he might have earned ten cents by shaving me. Now he don't get it, for I am going to shave myself, and save my cents. I have a razor in my valise, and if you will show me a mirror, I will shave myself." The landlord said the barber was a shiftless cuss, who, like most Western men, couldn't compare with Pennsylvanians in attention to business, and patience in scooping in the dimes; but he hoped they would all improve in time, and then he showed our friend into a room where he found a good-sized mirror, and shaved himself. Soon after he joined his companions and congratulated himself on the success he had had in saving ten cents, and teaching Western men financiering. After tea the pair paid their bills and went to the depot to take the train. On their way the man who hadn't shaved said, "Pretty reasonable house, that; only a dollar for dinner and supper." "Only a dollar!" said the other, "why, I paid a dollar and a half!" and a little further explanation showed that he had been charged fifty per cent. more than his companion. So back he went, and demanded of the landlord an explanation, and got it in these words: "The fifty cents extra is for the use of a room. You don't suppose we can have our rooms turned into barber shops for nothing, do you?" and the man who shaved himself went to the depot a sadder if not a better man. He don't brag much of his adventure since his return to York, and it will be some time before he attempts to give another Western man a lesson in financiering.

Proposed Investigations.

Mr. Luttrell, of California, prepared and had distributed in the caucus a printed list of fifty investigations which he announced were necessary, and that a separate committee of at least three members should be appointed for each. This would employ the entire democratic side of the House. The following are specimens of this absurd and ridiculous performance:

Belknap is charged with selling $80,000,000 worth of war material without accounting for the money.

Robeson is charged with selling $40,000,000 worth of ships without accounting for money. As in the case of the Belknap, these figures are so far beyond the value of anything and everying on hand to sell or steal as to do immense credit to Mr. Luttrell's imagination.

Investigation No. 22 is "The means whereby Ben. Butler has come to be counsel in nearly every important case. No. 14, the use made by Jay Cooke, with Secretary McCulloch's permission, of $70,000,000 or $80,000,000 of government bonds. No. 3, whether the liberties of the people are violated by the internal revenue system. No. 23, the fraudulent increase in value of the French franc, and consequent robbery of merchants.

Of course this jolly investigator in the list submitted for caucus consideration, did not forget the Treasury, the Interior, and the Post office, but his efforts have excited general ridicule, and has done much toward damaging the democratic investigations at their threshold. These, with forty like them, were presented with this appeal:

"Democrats of the House, each of these points out a wrong to be exposed and checked. The people demand truth at your hands. They will sustain you in unveiling it."

Eating Among the Kanakas.

[Hawaii Correspondence San Francisco Chronicle.]

The manner of eating among the Kanakas is almost shocking to our ideas of usage and propriety. Around the cities and villages, and where they can get it, they will eat meat and bread, but their staple food is poi and raw fish. The poi is made of the taro root, which grows like a turnip, with a calla lily top, and in a muddy patch, and is pounded up fine and put into a large calabash to ferment. It has a rootish taste, and is somewhat sour. The natives mix it with water, and then a whole family will squat around the calabash in the centre of the room. Before eating they sometimes rinse their fingers with water. The way I saw a woman do this one morning was by taking a mouthful of water out of a small calabash. Then squirting it out of her mouth over her fingers; then she sat down, and, plunging her fingers into the poi, stirred it around, and thrust into her mouth what clung to the fingers. And thus they each and all eat poi with the first two fingers, men, women, and children sitting around, and eating from the same calabash. In like manner they eat the raw fish with their fingers from the same dish. They live in this manner all over the Islands. Few of their huts are divided into apartments, and they generally sleep promiscuously.

—The most wretched being this season is the man with an ulster overcoat. He had not counted on a mild winter, and the bare thought of how he is to get the wear out of that coat makes him burst into another perspiration, and look more like a stage driver than ever.—Louisville Journal.

—Gall Hamilton, discussing infant damnation, says there's no hope for the infant so long as he chews the corners of the Bible and throws up his milk when you undertake to preach righteousness to him.

A Rat in the Telegraph Service.

[Popular Science Monthly.]

A telegraph inspector in England recently pressed into his service a rat under the following peculiar circumstances: It was necessary to overhaul a cable of wire inclosed in iron tubes. A certain length of the cable had to be taken out of the tube, and the men commenced hauling at one end without having taken the precaution to attach to the other a wire by which it might be drawn back into the tube after inspection and repairs. The question arose how the cable was to be restored to its proper place; and here the ingenuity of the inspector was manifested. He invoked the aid of a rat-catcher, and, provided with a large rat, a ferret, and a ball of string wound on a Morse paper drum, he repaired to the opening in the tube. The "flush boxes" were opened and the rat, with one end of the string attached to his body, was put into the pipe. He scampered away at a racing pace, dragging the twine with him until he reached the middle of the length of pipe, and there stopped. The ferret was then put in, and off went the rat again until it sprung clear out of the next flush-box.

One length of cable was thus safe, and the same operation was commenced with the other; but the rat stopped short a few yards in the pipe and boldly awaited the approach of the ferret; a sharp combat here commenced, and it was feared that one or both of the animals would die in the pipe. But after sundry violent jerks had been given to the string, the combatants separated; the ferret returned to his master, and the rat, making for the other extremity of the pipe, carried the string right through, and so relieved the inspector from his anxiety.

—In a crowded horse car on the Sixth avenue, New York, a gentleman who was seated resigned his place in favor of a pale, slender woman, who carried a large child in her arms, and was being jostled this way and that with the motion of the car. To the gentleman's surprise, a burly individual took the seat before the lady could reach it. "I meant this lady to have my seat," said the gentleman, angrily. "Well," replied the other, settling comfortably back in his seat, "dat lady ish my wife!"

Attention is called to the following letter from David Cummings & Co., Shoe Manufacturers of South Berwick, Me.:

SOUTH BERWICK, ME., Nov. 26, 1875.

MR. DENNIS SHEA, Sir: The Water Cement Pipe you laid for us over three years ago has proved perfectly satisfactory to us in every respect, and although a part of it froze up last winter, we can't see any injury done. The Pipe was laid by you in a thorough manner, and we believe it to be the Best Water Pipe known, and if we lay any more shall surely lay the same, and you are to do the job if alive and well. Yours, D. CUMMINGS & CO.

Elements of Bone, Brain and Muscle.

The food contains the elements of bone, brain and muscle, and in a healthy system, properly nourished, the manufacture of these bodily constituents is uninterrupted, night or day. On the other hand, when digestion or assimilation are imperfect, the manufacture is hindered, and the destructive not being counteracted by the reparative processes of Nature, the system is threatened with early decay. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are peculiarly fitted to overcome the causes which lead to an untimely decadence of the vital energies, removing as they do all obstacles to complete digestion and assimilation of the food, and restraining an undue waste of physical substance. For the loss of strength consequent upon depleting diseases, they are the best possible remedy, and their bracing upon the system enable it to withstand hurtful atmospheric influences inductive of malaria.

"A Slight Cold," Coughs.—Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough or "slight cold" which would yield to a mild remedy; if neglected, often attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give sure and almost immediate relief.

The Atlantic Cable is a world-wide blessing, and so is Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. A cure for 33 cents.

The Spring Crop of Coughs and Colds is heavy, and will piper in a terrible harvest of disease and death, unless rooted out with the Standard Antidote, HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR.

Centennial Celebration.

Capt. Marvin's command ushered in the Centennial year with a salute of thirty-eight guns, commencing promptly at midnight, the battery of two guns being planted in Elwyn's field south of the South Mill Pond. The boys lighted large bon-fires on Market Square and South Road, and went in for a regular Fourth-of-July-eve performance. The guns fired were "wakers" and were heard far and near. At sunset, the salute was repeated. The bells rang at sunrise, noon and sunset, and the day being delightfully pleasant, the city put on the appearance of a general holiday, business being suspended.

The Board of Trade organized a very interesting meeting at the Temple, in the evening, Col. William H. Sise acting as master of ceremonies.

The Temple was well filled long before the exercises commenced, and hundreds went away unable to find eligible seats or convenient standing room. The meeting was called to order by Hon. T. E. O. Marvin, who announced the following organization: President, His Honor Mayor Goodrich; Vice Presidents, Hon. John R. Redding, Hon. Jonathan Dearborn, Hon. Frank Jones, Hon. Frank W. Miller, Hon. William Simes, Hon. John H. Bailey, Hon. T. E. O. Marvin, Hon. Daniel Marcy, Postmaster E. G. Pierce, Collector A. F. Howard, Master of Ceremonies, Col. William H. Sise. In the absence of Mayor Goodrich, Hon. Albert R. Hatch presided, and briefly alluded to the occasion that called them together. After music by Harlow's full band Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett was called upon to respond to the first sentiment, "Our Country." We regret our inability to give even the substance of the speeches that followed, as some of them were exceedingly "pat," and all of them more or less interesting. The sentiments and responses were as follows:

Our Country—W. H. Y. Hackett.
The President—E. G. Peirce, Jr.
The Old Congress—W. H. Alden.
The Present Congress—Band.
New Hampshire—A. R. Hatch.
The Army and Navy—S. S. Hebbard.
Our Governors—Band.
The Militia—T. E. O. Marvin.
The Present—Jas. De Normandie.
Our National Achievements — Carlos Martyn.
Our Public School System — Jas. P. Bartlett.
The Press—Charles W. Gardner.
Music by the Band.
Our City Government— Band.
Peace—J. A. Goss.

The meeting then closed by the audience joining in singing while the Band played "The Red, White and Blue."

WHITE ISLAND, Dec. 26.

We have had two new arrivals on White Island, viz: Nathaniel of Texas, and Esau. N. of T. brought us out some papers, and a copy of the ticket he didn't vote last March. Several of the papers mention that "the House of Representatives has pronounced against a third term." Good news, certainly, and of mighty importance! What has the House of Representatives to do with the question, anyway, until after the people have failed to elect a President? In case of such failure the House of Representatives has the election of a President, I know, but I never had any idea that it was any part of its duty to nominate candidates for the people to vote for, or—what amounts to the same thing—to tell the people whom they shall not vote for; and that pronouncing against a third term seems to me a very pretty exhibition of no more, no less. If the people of the United States choose to elect Grant, the devil, or even an ex-rebel democrat to the next presidency, they will probably not ask permission of the House of Representatives.

I notice that Grant's speech at Des Moines and Blaine's proposed amendment to the constitution do not please all hands, Grant being called a Know-Nothing and an alarmist, and Blaine's amendment asserted to be entirely needless. All correct, possibly; but it is notorious that the Tammany democracy of New York, during the Tweed-Sidee reign, bestowed vast sums of the State's money on the Roman Catholic church; and the democratic Superior Court of New Hampshire not long ago decided that the customs and rules of that church take precedence of our State laws,—for the ruling in the Portsmouth Catholic-church-trouble case amounts to that. It is after all his life supposing himself to be an American citizen, to find himself ruled to be a subject of the Roman Pontiff by the highest tribunal of the State.

Great and very unusual distress, it seems, exists in the British Provinces this winter, and "bread or work" riots have commenced. Well, things will always be no better than they are until the people arise in their might, hurl from power the corrupt and tyrannical republican party, and instal in office the pure and patriotic leaders of Tammany and the White Leaguers. When that is done the millenium will start out under the most flattering auspices; work will abound for the laboring men of Europe, Canada and this country, with "two dollars a day and roast beef" as the least compensation; ship-building will revive, in England as well as the United States; and for the shipping already afloat there will be—what there has not been for many years—freighting enough to keep all vessels profitably and continuously employed. Then we shall have no more financial panics and smash-ups like that of 1857 and the others which took place under former democratic administrations, when capitalists and manufacturers failed and workingmen hungered, and nobody would take paper money who could avoid it, because it was worthless; nor like the last one, when business was dull and laborers thrown out of employment, and nobody who had paper money would part with it, because it was so precious. Also, "it is understood" and "reported by well-informed persons," is susceptible of proof" and "not to be questioned," that will be lost after the democracy take full charge of national affairs.

Two men have recently been "pardoned" out of the Massachusetts State prison, I see by the papers, their innocence of the crimes for which they were convicted having become apparent. Of course the wronged men were entitled to a prompt release, but I can't see just where the "pardon" comes in. Pardon (as I understand it) signifies forgiveness, and forgiveness presupposes wrong-doing; and what was the offence of which these men were guilty, that they needed "pardon?" Was it a crime that they did not commit any crime? or that they were wrongfully convicted? Surely the injury of an unjust conviction and imprisonment is enough to put upon an innocent man, without adding thereto the final insult of a "pardon" after his innocence becomes manifest. An innocent man sent to prison for a crime is about as effectually damned for this world as though he had really committed the offence charged against him; he becomes a "jail-bird" just the same, his relatives are as much disgraced through their connection with a convicted felon, and his imprisonment must be more keenly felt than if he were guilty; and a "pardon" does nothing whatever toward removing the from his name, or in any other way making reparation for his wrongs. The records of the court which convicted him will always show that he was charged with and found guilty of committing a crime, but not that he was afterward found innocent; and his accusation, arrest, trial and conviction, at a time when the crime he is charged with is fresh in the public memory, makes his degradation known far and wide, while the three-line item announcing his discovered innocence and resulting "pardon" attracts but slight attention, the man and his alleged offence having alike passed from public interest. In such a case what good reason—legal, moral, financial, political or other—can be given against the Governor of the State by official proclamation declaring that the man's innocence had been proved, and ordering his release in consequence, without punishing him for being innocent by compelling him to accept a "pardon?" Were a bill to carry out this idea introduced in the New Hampshire legislature I question if it would get an opposing vote.

EXODUS

is well, barring that his ears and tail are very lame from having been frozen so many times while he was rock-ranging last winter, and that he has chronic a cough contracted at the same time, in addition to which he has fits once in a while. When he has a fit he doesn't make himself objectionable by tearing about the room as cats usually do, causing people to get up on chairs and kick out wildly, and cry "scat," but just tumbles down in the most gentlemanly manner wherever he happens to be. Yesterday he had a fit and tumbled out of his chair

where he would have drowned but for my mate, who fished him out with a stick and hung him across the fence to dry. Esau and he are great friends—by the way, I must introduce Esau. We gave him that name because he has much hair on his face and hands is a mighty hunter, and a terrible fellow for potage—whatever that may be. His age is four months and his race is terrier,—probably intended for "tearer," judging from his exploits in the tearing-to-pieces line. He acts so we are obliged to keep our trowsers, stockings, hats, etc., off the floor, or we soon would have nothing to wear, and he has pulled nearly all the paper off the parlor walls, hunting for rats; but the most earnest desire of his heart is to totally from our peaceful dwelling. The Sin I refer to is not the original and unpardonable sin we read of, and exemplified by Eve when she robbed the orchard, by Judas Iscariot, Benedict Arnold, Jeff Davis, and men who vote the democratic ticket,—we don't keep any of that kind out here except when Nathaniel of Texas is visiting us; the object of Esau's animosity is our black cat Sin, whose peace of mind and pieces of whose body he has utterly destroyed. Exodus don't care a snap for him, but purrs away while Esau nips mouthfuls of hair out of his sides and back; but when the little dog takes liberties with one of his lame ears he just reaches out a claw, him liberally. Between the lot of them they make things quite lively for us—they are almost half as much of a nuisance as one small boy.

HAULS HIM IN AND CHEWS

Not Qualified.

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Journal writes:

A stalwart, burly democrat, who has for some time desired to see his name on the pay roll of Congress, in consideration of slight services, was rewarded recently by the appointment of "custodian of the flag." His duty was to hoist the flag over the hall of the House at the hour of meeting, and to lower it promptly after the adjournment. Rejoiced over his good fortune, he was on hand, and taking the "stars and stripes," he started for the flagstaff on the roof a few minutes before noon. But "there's many a slip" between an appointment and an office, and on reaching the garret he found that he could not squeeze himself up through the small scuttle hole. No prisoner bent on escape ever tried harder to contract his dimensions, but it was in vain. At last he was forced to give it up, and a more slender democrat has been appointed "custodian of the flag."

—Little Johnnie Smith had been out shopping with his mamma a good part of the afternoon yesterday. He had bought a bird-cage with a cunning canary in it; a rocking-horse, to give to Sammy Green, the boy over the way; a cornucopia full of luscious candies; two dolls for his sisters; a jumping-jack for the baby; and a few other trifles for Christmas gifts, such as a trunk for Susy's doll's clothes, and a miniature locomotive made of tin, etc. Mamma also had purchased a few ribbons "and things." They lived in Jamaica Plain, or Malden, or Somerville, and with the usual courage and reckless enterprise of suburbans, carried home a good share of their purchases in their arms. As they were rounding the corner of Washington and Winter streets, at about 5.30 o'clock, a man, evidently a paterfamilias, bearing a good-sized Christmas tree over his shoulder, turned suddenly to look in a shop-window. The results were terrible. The tree swung around, and wiped Johnnie and his mamma, together with several other highly respectable people, into the gutters. And with them went bird-cage, canary, rocking-horse, cornucopia, candy, dolls, jumping-jack, trunk, locomotive, ribbons, and about fifty other parcels of queer shape, all in a heap and confusion. It was just at this particular juncture of affairs that a stranger from Vermont, spending a few days in Boston, happened to come upon the scene. He caught a glimpse of the swiftly revolving pine-tree, the flying mother and son, the obstreperous bird-cage, the ungainly rocking-horse, and a few other whirling articles in mid-air, and he halted. The next instant, with the single horror-stricken ejaculation, "Another side-walk bust up!" he turned and fled.—Boston Globe.

—The Floridian says that Mr. A. L. Eichelberger, near Ocala, has the model farm of East Florida. He has twelve acres of grapes of the Flowers variety, twelve acres of oranges (twelve hundred trees), three acres of bananas (fifteen thousand plants), and another vineyard of three acres in which are also planted orange, peach, apple and other trees, besides six acres of cane, from which he makes twenty barrels of sugar. In addition to this, he has a forest of thirteen and one-half acres. The western side contains twenty-five thousand banana plants, with alternate rows of orange trees, and the eastern side is planted with eighteen hundred orange trees from sweet seedings or budded upon sour oranges. In the same lot is his large nursery, which contains at least two hundred thousand young orange trees, a few young date palms, carob trees, custard apples, guavas and other fruit trees. Close to the fence are planted sour oranges, which in the course of time will form a live and impenetrable hedge. A good property, taken together. Mr. Eichelberger employs from eight to twelve hands the year round to work this farm.

—Among the 'stinguished gentlemen present at the newsboys' dinner in New York on Christmas, were Schneider, Red Wizard, Billy the Bootblack, Johnny the Squirt, Lotty, Squirt, Little Tommy the Loon, Shorty, Patsey, Muggins, Hard Money Tom, Jack Tar, Bluffer, Joncsey, Bouncer, Big Isaac and Scotty Shooks.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 78 State St., Opposite Kilby St., Boston.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Examinations made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent, more trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me many patent applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of skill and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful and careful attention on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Notices of the Press.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any Journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidery, slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and equips, are all invigorating to the mind. —Chicago Evening Journal.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

☞ Those Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased once continued to purchase for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that I was almost a helpless burden. I grew much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and concluded to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I first bought two the first time, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all other medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of your Pills for my wife, and she reports herself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done me wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to my friends report as much good as I. I was told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I could eat no more. Now I can eat almost anything, everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give ten dollars for a box if I could not get this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,

Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaint, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have spent hundreds of dollars, and great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I commenced using the first package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and has tried two packages, to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money cost them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute to your valuable medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Reshenlake, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall witness a Presidential campaign of unusual importance, and under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time in years, and the Democratic party in the House is under the control of the Democratic party, and it possesses the key to bars the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its courses during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party means to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the climax of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and, particularly to the State school, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes that it will witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all who desire to see the direction of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan prejudice or personal interests or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of caucuses or conventions. It will approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and condemn what it finds evil in both, or neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics it has no object in view but to benefit those whom the country knows and can trust; to secure honest money, Administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as to lighten the burdens of the private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it hopes itself but fairly to share the favor for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as earnestly strive to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes, but which needs to feel the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its positions and courses through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One result of the policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without tying too much considered to any mere names, has been that both parties find themselves forced to adopt some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to practise some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have thus within six or three years actually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which has already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wranglings; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from some rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor to their families, THE TRIBUNE receives a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned it among the leading critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally admitted, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watching-near and the most unremitting endeavor to deserve it, by best intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most or complished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors the members many of the most eminent men in the country.

The Country Gentleman

POSTAGE FREE FOR 1876.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published WEEKLY on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN possesses an unequaled Corps of Correspondents, regular and occasional, among the Best Farmers in the Country, and constantly reflects the practical condition and progress of Agriculture and Rural Affairs in every section of the United States and civilized world.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN gives in its Horticultural Department a comprehensive view of information and suggestions, equal or superior in the aggregate to what is obtained in the monthly numbers of most Horticultural Journals devoted to Horticulture.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN has probably done as much as all other agricultural journals in introducing and disseminate Improved Stock of every kind through the country; and commands to a greater degree than any contemporary the confidence and support of breeders and purchasers.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN over contains unusually full and trustworthy Market Reports, and devots a special attention to them and to the Prospects of the Crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN embraces numerous minor departments of special interest, such as the Dairy, the Poultry-Yard, the Apiary, the Vineyard, and Orchard, and Kitchen Garden, a column for the Housewife and an interesting variety of Fireside Reading. It contains a well-edited Review of Current Events, and the advertising pages furnish a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

In the ultimus thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the damp trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the course of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredient "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large sized steel engraving of Tompkins's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages in all; 12 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 13 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments (stories, &c., also, engravings) than it gives morefor the money than any in the world. Its are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers contribute to its pages exclusively for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTEES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all subscribers in the United States, it gives more for her money than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

Republican State Convention.

A Republican State Convention for the nomination of candidates for Governor and Railroad Commissioner, will be held at White's Opera House, in Concord, on WEDNESDAY, January 5, 1876, at 11 o'clock, A. M.

All the voters of New Hampshire who cherish the principles and achievements of the Republican party; who desire an honest, efficient and economical administration of the National and State governments; who insist upon an early return to a currency based on specie, and a strict fulfillment of every obligation of the government; who approve the course of the National Administration looking to the reform of abuses and the punishment of wrong-doers; who favor such a national policy as shall permanently secure the rights of the freedmen and protect them against fraud, intimidation and violence, to the end that the sentiment of nationality and perfect equality may be made predominant in the reconstructed States, and our whole country placed on the high road to general education, free suffrage, enduring peace and a solid prosperity; and, especially, all who condemn the late Executive usurpation in New Hampshire which disfranchised thousands of voters in contemptuous violation of law and precedent, and fraudulently deprived the Republican party of the legislative power which they had fairly won at the polls,—are cordially invited to participate in the primary meetings for the choice of delegates.

A meeting of the State Central Committee will be held at the Eagle Hotel, in Concord, Tuesday evening, January 4th, at 8 o'clock, to which all delegates to the Convention are invited. DANIEL HALL,

Chairman Republican State Committee.

Battle of Trenton Centennial.

[N. Y. Sun.]

The President read a letter from Mr. John Taylor, a wealthy pork packer, who proposed to celebrate the centennial anniversary of the battle of Trenton next year on a stupendous scale. The patriot army, he thought, should cross the Delaware, ice or no ice, at the place where Washington went over, on the night preceding the celebration, and fall upon the enemy the next morning at daybreak. He promised to raise a regiment of men and a platoon of artillery, in continental costume; to furnish blood enough to fill all their boots; and to provide two tramps to freeze on the march, and thus personate the two soldiers of Wasington's army who were frozen to death before the battle of Trenton. A resolution to approve Mr. Taylor's proposition and make arrangements for carrying it out was adopted amid tumultuous cheering.

French Industrial Resources.

The power of the French, as a nation, to find some good use for everything was never more strikingly illustrated than in the case of a woman who has established near Paris an institution for the propagation of the ant species. She has insured herself to the stings of her pet insects, and handles them with perfect confidence. From every brood born in her preserves she elects the best "layers" to rear, and their eggs are sold at a fair price to bird fanciers as food for pheasants. The police see to it that she keeps her anthouse a good distance out of the city, and a number of agents are continually scouring the forests in the rural districts of France and capturing large nests of ants to send to her. Her establishment is, therefore, not only no nuisance to her neighbors, but a positive blessing to thousands of farming people.

Probability of a European Outbreak.

[London Letter in N. Y. Tribune.]

As to the probability of a general outbreak, the week has contributed little or no fresh information. Some importance may be attached to the remark of Gen. Ignatieff that there would be no hostilities for a year to come—which means a year and a half, since nothing is less likely than a general European conflagration at the beginning of winter. This remark, there is reason to believe, was really made. Its value depends on the mood the Russian Embassador was in at the time. He is capable—in the estimation of Prince Bismarck—of blurting out truths; and also capable of blurting out falsehoods he wishes taken for truths. Of late it has suited him to be frank; as when he foretold the coming bankruptcy of Turkey to incredulous ears.

Four Women.

[N. Y. Star.]

Truth is stranger than fiction. Within half a mile of Printing House Square live four women who are known in connection with the stage. One sprung from nowhere, is the wife of the editor of a leading American newspaper. A second, after years of toil and some marked success, is the wife of a millionaire. A third, better born than the others, is one of the wives of the present managing editor of a leading American newspaper, and earns a modest subsistence as a ballet girl in one of our chief theatres. Her husband sports a second "wife" on a large salary, confident that the love of his real wife will protect him from prosecution. A fourth started as low as one can start, and is to-day not only among the stars of her profession, but an honored member of the selectest social circle. Queer, isn't it?

New Beatitudes.

Blessed are the blind, for they shall see no ghosts.

Blessed are the deaf, for they have not to lend money or hear tedious stories.

Blessed are they that are afraid of thunder, for they shall hesitate about getting married, and keep away from political meetings.

Blessed are the lean, for there is a chance to grow fat.

Blessed are the ignorant, for they are happy in thinking they know everything.

Blessed is she who would get married but can't, for the consolations of the gospel are hers.

Blessed are the orphan children, for they have no mothers to spank them.

Blessed are they that expect nothing, for they shall not be disappointed.

—A noted desperado has just died with his boots on in Kentucky whose bloody deeds would be better suited to a yellow-covered novel than the history of a civilized Commonwealth. For many years George Northcraft had been the terror of the order-loving citizens of Lebanon and its vicinity. He was known to have been guilty of the murder of three inoffensive men; yet such was the fear that he inspired that none dared not prosecute him, lest their houses be burnt and they be murdered in their beds. When a reward was offered for his capture he rode boldly about, and no man dared to touch him. Witnesses could not be induced to appear against him, while a single threat would enable him to secure testimony to any assertion he might choose to make. Some years ago, in consequence of a most brutal murder he had committed, a reward of $500 was offered by the State for his capture, and a company of militia was sent up to secure him. For weeks he eluded them simply because he inspired such fear that no one dared refuse him assistance. Finally he delivered himself up to a comrade, who claimed the $500 reward, gave it to Northcraft, and with it he paid the expenses of his trial, which, through witnesses procured by the dread of his vengeance, resulted in an acquittal. Thomas Chandler had been for several years Marshal of Lebanon, and for some time Northcraft bore a grudge against him. Accordingly Northcraft raised a disturbance in Lebanon recently in order to call out the Marshal and put a bullet through him. It wasn't long after the trouble began that Chandler appeared upon the scene. Coming up to Northcraft, Chandler presented a shot-gun and ordered him to surrender. The desperado refused, and Chandler fired and killed Northcraft, and at the same time one of Northcraft's companions, who was on horseback, fired at and killed Chandler. Northcraft's friends escaped. As soon as the remains of Northcraft and Chandler were cared for, about twenty-five men, armed and mounted, started in pursuit of the fugitives, and succeeded in capturing two of them, who are now lodged in jail.

—It is related of Curran, the famous Irish orator and wit, that he was one evening sitting in a box at the French Opera, between an Irish noblewoman, whom he had accompanied there, and a very young French lady. The ladies soon manifested a strong desire to converse, but neither of them knew a word of the other's language. Curran of course, volunteered to interpret, or in his own words, "to be the carrier of their thoughts, and accountable for their safe delivery." They went at it at once, with all the ardor and zest of the Irish and French nature combined; but the interpreter took the liberty of substituting his own thoughts for theirs, and instead of remarks upon the dresses and the play, he introduced so many finely-turned compliments that the ladies soon became completely fascinated with each other. At last, their enthusiasm becoming sufficiently great, the wily interpreter, in conveying some very innocent questions from his countrywoman, asked the French lady "if she would favor her with a kiss." Instantly springing across the orator, she imprinted a kiss on each cheek of the Irish lady, who was amazed at her sudden attack, and often afterwards asked Mr. Curran, "What in the world could that France girl have meant by such conduct in such a place?" He never revealed the secret and the Irish lady thought French girls were very ardent and sudden in their attachments.

A Just Verdict.

Elwin W. Major, the wife poisoner, whose second trial has just ended at Nashua, was found guilty of murder in the first degree on Saturday. Judge Cushing's charge bore heavily against the prisoner.

Public feeling had been wrought to an unprecedented state of excitement, and all through the evening, after Court was adjourned, the court-room was surrounded by an excited throng, waiting for the verdict. Shortly before eight o'clock it became known that the Court had been sent for, and the crowd thronged into the court-room to hear the result of the deliberations of the jury. At 8:05 the prisoner entered, with firm step and self-possessed demeanor. The Court was in waiting, and as the jury entered and took their seats a deathlike stillness fell upon the assembled multitude. The prisoner sat with his eyes cast down. At 8:21 the Clerk rose and said: "Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?" The foreman answered in a voice which was greatly affected by emotion, "We have." "What is it?" "Guilty or not guilty?" "Guilty, and so say we all of us." A tremor ran through the audience, but not a whisper was heard, and the prisoner sat apparently the least concerned of all. His eyes were still cast down, his face slightly flushed, and he did not indicate that he felt the perilous position in which he was placed. Solicitor Barrett then moved for sentence. Counsel then consulted for some moments, and the court-room, meantime, was oppressed with stillness. The condemned man maintained the same self-possessed manner; but in spite of his efforts his face would alternately flush and pale, and ever and anon he would choke with suppressed emotion.

After the consultation the Clerk said: "Elwin W. Major, have you anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon you?" Major rose and consulted his counsel for a few moments, and then returned to his accustomed place; and, as he stood supporting himself by a convenient post, said, in a voice broken with emotion, "There is nothing I desire to say." Judge Rand then imposed the death sentence.

Elwin W. Major: After a somewhat protracted and most impartial trial, you have been found guilty of the most heinous crime which can be committed in civilized society. The law has been careful to throw around you all its safeguards; you have had the State's process to summon your witnesses, and you have had in your defence most able and eloquent counsel appointed by Court. The good and true men by whom you have been tried have been selected with great caution; indeed it may be said to be a tribunal almost of your choosing, and they had no reasonable doubt of your guilt; and I ought, perhaps, to say to you that the Court has as little doubt as the jurors who have tried you. The enormity of your guilt has ceased to be questionable. You have not only destroyed human life, but you have destroyed that particular life which, beyond all other lives, it was your duty to cherish with the utmost tenderness. And yet the law entertains toward you no malice, and it speaks to you now through me, its agent, sorrowfully, but not wrathfully, and it says to you this: That you be imprisoned in the State Prison at Concord until the 5th day of January, in the year of our Lord, 1877, and that on that day, between the hours of ten in the forenoon and two in the afternoon, you be hanged by the neck until you are dead. Permit me to admonish you that the days and the hours are passing swiftly, that you should abandon the possessions and the vain expectations that belong to this world, and struggle to bring the remnant of your life a little more into harmony with the eternal laws which you have broken, in the hope that the eternal mercy that waits upon justice may not be altogether denied to you.

During the delivery of the sentence the condemned man appeared to be but slightly affected. Once he dropped his head into his hands and appeared to be almost broken down by the trying situation. After the sentence he left the court-room with the same firm step and self-possessed manner that characterized his demeanor throughout the trial. But as soon as he was beyond the limits of the room he broke down entirely. Later in the evening he said he was satisfied that he had had a fair trial, and was perfectly satisfied with what his counsel had done for him. He professed to be surprised at the result of the trial, and protested his innocence of the crime of which he had been convicted. It is stated that the jury first took a ballot on the question how Mrs. Major came to her death, and were unanimous that it was by strychnia. On the second ballot two were opposed to convicting Major of the crime of administering the poison to his wife, but on certain points being cleared up they voted "guilty" on the third ballot.

Is He Charlie Ross?

The excitement and interest caused by the presence at St. Albans, Vt., of that mysterious boy who claims to be Charlie Ross are on the increase, and the mystery is growing thicker daily. If he is not Charlie Ross, it will be difficult to establish his identity. He continues to answer all questions satisfactorily, and seems to be thoroughly posted on all subjects and people in Philadelphia. The officers at the jail discoveder five or six suspicious-looking men lurking around the shed in rear of the jail building, who rapidly disappeared on finding themselves observed. A short time later they went back again, and when the officers manifested an inclination to make an investigation they ran up the street a few rods, unhitched a team and drove rapidly away.

Mrs. Rugg has received a letter from Salem, Mass., signed "Mrs. Nelson," charging the careful guarding of the child from everybody, and especially detectives. The boy selected pictures of Mr. and Mrs. Ross from a large collection which was shown him. Public sentiment refuses to entertain the belief that he is the missing Milford boy. Added to this, advices have been received from Milford, and elsewhere, which satisfy the authorities that the boy is not the missing Jimmy Blanchard. Friday evening he visited the residence of a citizen of St. Albans, whose family are quite intimate with the family of Hall Stanton, Esq., of Philadelphia. On looking over an album with one of the family, he identified and called by name two sons of Mr. Stanton, whose photographs he saw, and said that he knew them and had been at school with one of them in Philadelphia, giving the name of the teacher of the school correctly.

The office at St. Albans was in telegraphic communication with Mr. Ross Monday morning. He telegraphed that the picture was just received, and it certainly was not his boy. The following interview over the wires took place: A dispatch sent Mr. Ross said the boy recognized pictures of the family of Mr. Hall Stanton of Philadelphia. Mr. Ross said: "I don't know Hall Stanton, nor does Charlie Ross. Ask him what street or lane did he live on?"

A—Albion street.

Q—How were you taken from home?

A—By two men in a carriage from the sidewalk.

Q—Who was taken with you?

A—My brother.

Q—What is your brother's name?

A—Eddie.

Q—What is your oldest sister's name?

A—Mary.

Q—That is wrong. Can the boy read?

A—Yes, very well.

Q—Can he write?

A—Can write Charlie B. Ross, and that is all.

We are satisfied he is not the boy. We are very much obliged to you.

In response to this was sent: He gives the names of schoolmates Willie C. Stanton, Geo. Billings, Fred Barnes, Mickey O'Donnell, Ellie Hadlock, Elmer Armstrong, Miss Grant, teacher, and Miss Cope, Sunday school teacher.

Sheriff—"Hold on to the boy. We will see Mr. Hall Stanton, who is a prominent citizen here, and communicate the facts to him." Signed, Ross.

A Milford dispatch says the names of playmates he gives as belonging in Philadelphia are recognized as the cognomens of Milford boys, and that the boy is Jimmie Blanchard, after all.

EATING UP A RAILROAD.

[Boston correspondence Chicago Tribune.]

Never was there a better illustration of the policy of sapping the strength of a road by building branches, by investing its earnings in land that may one day be worth something, and by buying stock to control other roads, than in the downfall of the Eastern Railroad Company in Massachusetts. Probably nowhere in the country can there be found an instance of a road with a large freight traffic, an enormous amount of passenger travel, and comparatively unencumbered with debt, so completely swamped by injudicious and careless competition, and reckless and wanton speculation, as here.

For the beginning of the bad days, we need go back no further than 1870, when the road was paying 8 per cent. dividends. The Railroad Commissioners report the road, rails and equipment in excellent condition and well cared for. Its capital stock paid in was $4,062,600, and its total debt, floating and funded, $3,612,600. Its line extended from Boston to Portsmouth, N. H., a distance of 56 miles; it had 17 3-4 miles of double track, and 43 miles of branches. Its passenger mileage was $1,220,764, and its freight mileage 7,810,627. It had 47 locomotives, 86 passenger-cars, and 777 freight-cars. Its operating expenses were $89,496, its net earnings $444,710 79, and its surplus $180,542. Two years later its capital stock was increased $200,000, and its debt almost $2,000,000 ($5,586,349). It had invested $584,085 51 in bonds and stock of the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway Road at par, and its branches had grown to 77 miles. It was also operating 151 1-2 miles of road besides its own. The locomotives had increased to 73 and passenger cars to 133. Its expenses for maintenance of way were about the average—$2,581 46 per mile of single track; its salaries, office and law expenses $70,000; its percentage of expenses to income, $68 47, and its net income above operating expenses, $574,201, or 5.31 per cent. of its capital stock and debt. It had a nominal surplus of $405,582, but this was not enough to pay the cost of the Revere disaster ($422,414). The Directors had also advanced over $1,000,000 for the construction of branches and extensions. They had also entered into a competition with the Boston and Maine, under these circumstances: Both the roads ran over the Portland, Saco & Portsmouth from South Berwick to Portland, 37 miles. The Eastern broke the lease, paid the penalty of $100,000, and shut out the Boston & Maine from the use of the Portland, Saco & Portsmouth Road. The result was that the Eastern Road had to pay the rent all alone, and the Maine Road is a single year built an extension to Portland, which runs nearer the sea, and has taken away all the sea-shore traffic formerly enjoyed by the Portsmouth Road. The Eastern has found its 10 per cent lease so onerous that the P. S. & P. has just voted of its own motion to reduce the rate to 6, knowing that its road is useless except as an extension of the Eastern.

One year more, and in 1873 we find the capital stock increased to $4,977,600, and the debt to $9,733,493.76, an

and yet the net earnings had fallen off, being but $548,141.87, and there was a deficit of $97,383 in the year's business. The percentage of expenses to income was 75 per cent. and we look in vain to ascertain where all this increase of debt comes from. We find $765,000 charged to load, and about $870,000 advanced to other roads. On this showing the Lothrop-Hooper management went out, and John Wooldredge, a Lynn shoe manufacturer, steps in as President, with very little other change. Mr. Charles F. Hatch, formerly of the Lake Shore, had a little while before been made General Manager. The report for 1874 shows but $20,000 added to the stock account, but the debt had been increased as nobly as ever. The road now or almost three millions more than it did the year before. The managers now saw the necessity of figuring to make some excuse for this tremendous increase of debt. There had been no vote authorizing any building, and yet in one year the construction account shows the enormous increase of over four millions. This increase is divided something as follows: Grading and masonry, $270,009; bridging, $430,000; superstructure; $840,000; land and land damages, $1,-900,000; stations, $540,000; engineering and salaries, $75,000. The result of this scandalous operation in figures was raising the "average cost of construction per mile of road" in a single year from $54,557.58 to $92,303.39. It doesn't seem as if the book-keeping of the Credit Mobilier days could show any feats greater than this. The equipment account shows vagaries as wonderful. We find that seventeen locomotives have been added to the rolling at a cost of $134,-000, the number of passengers has been increased by four, but the total cost by $80,-000. But in the matter of freight cars the GREATEST WONDER OF ALL IS FOUND.

OWED OVER TWELVE MILLIONS,

According to the reports which these Directors have sworn to, the number of freight cars has been decreased by fifty-six, but the cost of smashing up or losing these fifty-six cars was over $60,000. The Company had also bought some more Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway stock at par, its investments in that and the Wolfeborough Company now standing it at over $1,400,000. The land account was also increased by $636,178.28, as if the road were a building and homestead company rather than a railroad, and the land charged to capital account during the year footed up the tidy sum of $1,893,799.61. This year the net income above operating expenses, is put at $988,317, but the running expenses were cut down to 34 3-4 per cent., for which no New England road can be operated, and for which no New England road pretends to be operated.

Let us then compare the balance-sheet:

Dr.	October, 1871.	October, 1875.
Capital stock	$4,262,600 00	$ 4,997,600 00
Debts	4,507,545 63	14,733,000 17
Balances	163,797 42	189,388 81
Profits and loss	91,218 78	272,590 02
	$9,026,161 83	$19,243,979 10
Cr.
Railroad	$5,917,861 99	$12,262,114 84
Equipment	1,261,498 55	2,398,674 73
Unfinished work	302,411 00
Rails, iron, coal, etc.	241,954 31	327,132 83
Property	767,769 26	4,851,567 21
Balances	446,158 84	547,850 18
Cash	95,696 88	45,651 81

That is to say, in four years the capital and debt has increased over 100 per cent. and the net income above operating expenses has fallen to $556,503, and left a deficit of $335,859 26.

Now let us look at some of the "property" which stands on the books at over $4,000,-000. There is P. G. F. & C. stock at $551,-300, market value about $55,130; and Wolfeborough Railroad stock, $537,900, worth about $33,000. Among the expenditures charged to capital stock during the year are $474,000 for advances to these roads, which are but creatures of the Eastern, and can never repay a cent of it; $964,-000 for land, and $860,408 for Maine Central stock at prices necessary in order to get control of a road which is of no use now that they have got it.

The debt of the road is then as follows:

Bonds due September, 1875	$ 191,400 00
Bonds due April, 1885	100,000 00
Bonds due March, 1887	958,000 00
Bonds due March, 1889	500,000 00
Bonds due May, 1889	500,000 00
All the above are currency.
Bonding	2,878,043 00
		$ 5,691,443 00
Ten-year coupon notes, due 1882	$1,163,000 00
Ten-year coupon notes, due 1883	2,901,500 00
Ten-year coupon notes, due 1884	512,000 00
		3,576,500 00
Sinking fund loan, 1884		2,000,000 00
Notes payable E. R. R.	1,827,400 00
Notes payable, mortgages	734,125 00
Notes payable P. S. & P. R. R.	250,000 00
		2,801,525 00
Bills payable		861,841 96
Bonds and coupons, August, 1874, due and unpaid	2,235 00
Dividends due and unpaid	40,063 26
Coupons and interest, due and unpaid	106,095 02
Borrowed money	11,509 00
Balance due roads and individuals	149,228 91
		309,325 19
Total		$14,835,500 16

If the stockholders could dispose of some of that land which is valued at thrice the amount credited to any other New England railroad, or yet at a few of the millions conceded in that "construction account," there might be some hope for them, but at present the bondholders are quaking. Stock is worth $10, and 7 per cent. bonds $60. It is a sad commentary on financial integrity to think that their bonds were negotiated at 93 six months ago. R. W. M.

News and Notes.

B. T. Babbitt of New York, the soap manufacturer, has been robbed of $300,000 by his confidential clerk named Charles R. Beckwith.

The thermometer is sixty degrees above zero in the shade, and the snow has nearly disappeared at North Conway.

Hurrah for Tobey! His first act as Postmaster was to bounce four of the female delivery clerks. If a prize were offered for the champion set of impudent, brazen-faced, inefficient and generally disagreeable set of young women, the female delivery clerks at the Boston Post Office during the past few years would take it.—Globe.

Gov. Carpenter of Iowa has accepted the position of Second Comptroller.

Conductor Henry Eaton has purchased a little steamer which formerly plied between Lowell and Lawrence, on the Merrimack, and will put it on Massabesic Lake next summer. It will carry a hundred passengers or more and is so light of draught as to skim over marshes and reefs like a swallow. It will be quite an addition to the attractions at this favorite resort.

A woman named Lolly, who was recently sent to the almshouse on account of general destitution, was discovered to have concealed in a belt around her waist the sum of $106, $95 of which was in gold coin. The belt looked as if it had been worn for years.

The forgeries of George A. Dyer, Register of Probate in Hancock county, Me., appear to have been going on some years, and lately he had received insurance premiums, without effecting insurance, appropriating the money to his own use. His forgeries amount to $3500 and his embezzlements a few hundred more. He became deeply in debt to various railroad and insurance companies, by reason of having used their funds. To supply these deficits he resorted to forgeries, and the inevitable end has come.

Sozodont.

An article that is at once a teeth preserver and breath purifier and yet so pleasant and convenient to use, its exceeding popularity does not surprise any one. Time has fully established the fact that the SOZODONT possesses these excellent qualities in an eminent degree. It has legitimately acquired the right to a position upon every toilet table.

Call and be convinced.

To My Patients and the Public!

I propose to leave Portsmouth about February 1st, for an absence of several months. Will those contemplating or needing my services please give me an early call? Previous to my departure for Europe in 1874, so many of my patients neglected to call until the very last that I was compelled to seek the assistance of a stranger to help me out with my forced engagements. I cannot do so this year. The responsibility rests with my patients after this call.

Jottings.

John Sise, Esq., has withdrawn as a candidate for Railroad Commissioner in favor of William A. Peirce, Esq., who has a large support from all sections of the Sta.e.

The last lecture of the S. P. C. A. course will be delivered by James T. Fields, Esq., this (Tuesday) evening. His subject will be "Rufus Choate." Our public schools are indebted to Mr. Fields for many gifts of books for the libraries, and other manifestations of friendly interest in the young people of his native city. Arrangements are made by the Lyceum committee to admit the pupils of the High School to the lecture at the low price of ten cents each. Tickets for the schools can be obtained at the ticket office of the Temple.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trade for the election of officers and the transaction of other business, is to be holden on the third Wednesday of the present month.

The first Congregational society of York have recently placed in their church a splendid pipe organ, of the most modern style, superbly finished, at an expense of about $1000.

Charles H. Mendum, Esq., has purchased the residence of the late Capt. William M. Shackford, on Daniel street.

Come, gentle Spring; isn't this putting in an appearance so early and so persistently an indication that you've the james-james and are not aware that you are wandering about without forethought? Old Winter needs a fair show. Give the old man a chance!

Mr. Augustus Hatch of Greenland sowed grain and harrowed it in on Monday, the third.

The Centennial year must have its novelties in dancing as well as other amusements. Mr. Lamprey, the veteran master of the art, teaches every new phase of this delightful accomplishment, and is prepared to instruct classes and individuals in the intricacies of the "diagonal" and "Boston" waltzes. See advertisement.

Mr. E. P. Sherburne of this city was elected teacher of the North grammar school of Manchester, by the school board, on Saturday, receiving seven of the ten votes.

New Hampshire was the first province or State to declare its independence of Great Britain, through an act of its provincial Congress, assembled at Exeter Jan. 5th, 1776. Will the Board of Trade not take measures to celebrate the one hundreth anniversary of the independence of our State, the first of the thirteen to assert its right to "take up civil government?"—thus laying the granite corner stone of the Union.

The ice in Great Bay has broken up and the lower portion is open. Smelters found difficulty in reaching land after their day's work on Saturday.

Devilish.

Rev. Carlos Martyn has been telling all about his Satanic Majesty in his sermons of late; but as I know as much concerning the Old Boy now as I want to, I did not go to hear him. But the announcement of the topic reminds me of the wicked story of the wicked Duke of Buckingham, who was on his deathbed, and another Duke, his friend, knowing Buckingham to be a dissenter, and thinking he must be a Catholic, offered to send for a priest of that persuasion; but "No," says the old Buck, "those rascals eat God; but if you know of a set of fellows who eat the Devil, I should be obliged to you if you would send for one of them."

Which reminds me, again, of the man who on recovering from a very severe and apparently fatal illness, and being asked by his friend if he were not afraid to meet his God, answered, "No, I was a good deal more afeared of t'other feller."

On an old-time English sign, were five full length male human figures, with an inscription over each; first, the clergyman, and "I pray for all;" second, the lawyer, and "I plead for all;" third, the farmer, and "I maintain all;"—which surely is true enough; fourth, the soldier, and "I fight for all; "and last,—but alas! by no means least, to judge from the historian,—"the gentleman whose name should never be mentioned to ears polite," but whom, nevertheless, both Rev. Mr. Martyn and your irreverent correspondent have been quoting, and his motto, "I take all!" Oh, dear!

NATAS.

—The brilliant paragraphist of the New Orleans Republican was once a steamboat captain. He tried to be a minister and failed. Any reader of his paragraphs can see that he has a religious turn of mind.—Alabama State Journal.

There is something too much of this, but no matter. The slander on the steamboat profession is too Bard—too Sam Bard; but let that pass. The paragraphist referred to may have been a minister and a postmaster, for ministers (in Brooklyn) embrace all things, and he may have failed; but why publish failures to the world? We are conscious the failure was not a total eclipse of goodness; the "religious turn of mind" shows a few Christian assets left. It is better to have been something and failed, than to have lived a long life without attempting to do any moral business. There is more in a religious turn of mind than is a third term, and there would be more joy in Heaven over one Alabama editor that makes an attempt to behave himself than over ninety and nine New Orleans paragraphists who are all right. We can only say that would be the case, for Heaven has not yet heard from the Alabama State Journal.—N. O. Repub.

—Every little while we read of some person who has stuck a rusty nail in his foot or some other portion of his person, and lockjaw has resulted therefrom. All such wounds can be healed without any fatal consequences following them. The remedy is simple: It is only to smoke such wound, or any wound, or bruises that are inflamed, with burning wood or woollen cloth. Twenty minutes in the smoke of wool will take pain out of the worst case of inflammation arising from such a wound.

—Tight times are not confined to this sublunary sphere. The other night there was a tremendous ring about the moon. It was a fair, square promise of a severe storm, and everybody prepared for it; but after several days of vacillating policy, the matter was finally compromised at about thirty cents on the dollar.—Danbury News.

Elements of Bone, Brain and Muscle.

The food contains the elements of bone, brain and muscle, and in a healthy system, properly nourished, the manufacture of these bodily constituents is uninterrupted, night or day. On the other hand, when digestion or assimilation are imperfect, the manufacture is hindered, and the destructive not being counteracted by the reparative processes of Nature, the system is threatened with early decay. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are peculiarly fitted to overcome the causes which lead to an untimely decadence of the vital energies, removing as they do all obstacles to complete digestion and assimilation of the food, and restraining an undue waste of physical substance. For the loss of strength consequent upon depleting diseases, they are the best possible remedy, and their bracing upon the system enable it to withstand hurtful atmospheric influences inductive of malaria.

"A Slight Cold," Coughs.—Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough or "slight cold" which would yield to a mild remedy; if neglected, often attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give sure and almost immediate relief.

The Atlantic Cable is a world-wide blessing, and so is Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. A cure for 35 cents.

The Spring Crop of Coughs and Colds is heavy, and will ripen into a terrible harvest of disease and death, unless rooted out with the Standard Antidote, HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR.

The Longest Tramp on Record.
[Minneapolis Mail.]

Ephraim Lincoln, colored, passed through Moorhead the other day on his way to Manitoba. There is nothing remarkable in this save that he has walked from Louisiana to Virginia, and from that place to Boston, through Maine to Nova Scotia, from there through Canada to Illinois, Wisconsin, St. Paul and Duluth, overland to Moorhead. His journey has been of one year and nine months' duration, and he contemplates traveling nine months longer, when he hopes to bring up in Washington, D. C. He was headed for Manitoba, and will go to the headquarters of the Missouri, the Black Hills, and—if the Indians do not interrupt his longevity—east to Washington.

—To-day I saw old General Sutter, on whose land gold was first discovered in California, stepping out of a car on the avenue. A more pitiable instance of great old age, uncompensated and neglected, I never knew. It was in his mill race near Sacramento the precious gold dust was first seen by Americans. He is a native of Switzerland, but went to the Sandwich Islands to cultivate oranges, and thence to the Pacific coast of America, where he took a large tract of land under a Mexican grant, with the hope that the United States would some day stretch out to him. But it came, like Jupiter to Danae in a golden shower, and the rush of miners trampled over his fields, killed his herds and made desolation in place of the fair estate they had found. From that discovery came the most enormous tribute Nature ever paid to man. The present year's yield of gold in California cannot be less than $100,000,000 in specie, and while this immense runnel of wealth has been flowing for more than a quarter of a century, and great merchants and bankers have been made by its possession, poor old Sutter, on the brink of the grave, is unable to find an ear in which he can tell his story. He is now more than 80 years of age, and lives in a little cottage at Litiz Pa., where he is educating his grandchildren at a German school. The whole world has been exercised by Ralston's fate and Flood and O'Brien's fortunes; yet here is a man at the source of this mighty romance with scarcely a place to lay his head. He is a kindly, gentle old person, but he has passed his age. Some morning during the session there will be an announcement of his death, and then perhaps Congress will give the tardy stint of its generosity to "the golden farmer." He has a claim for damages here.

American Genius.—Moody & Sankey.

The great revivalists, Messrs. Moody and Sankey, who electrified staid old England with their eloquence and enthusiasm, are fair samples of American genius. Springing from among the common people, their sympathies are alive to the wants of the whole people, and herein lies the secret of their great success. Those who seek to be popular must study and be familiar with the wants of the masses, and prove loyal thereto. To this fact we may trace the grand success in business, as well as in religious undertakings, which many Americans have achieved. Strikingly illustrative of these suggestions is that great establishment, located at Buffalo, N. Y., and known as the "World's Dispensary,"—a most appropriate name, indeed, for that vast institution, within whose walls are manufactured remedies which are in demand in every quarter of the globe, and at which a corps of distinguished physicians and surgeons, under the personal direction of Dr. Pierce, are constantly administering to the needs of thousands of sufferers on every side, and whose success in the treatment of all forms of chronic ailments has become so well known that there is scarcely a hamlet in the land, in which his name is not familiar. Its proprietor, says the Herald and Torchlight, of Detroit, "is a man of the people, writes for them, and to them tenders his eminent professional services." His advertisements are earnest exhortations. Like the great revivalists, his enthusiasm is multiplied by the unparalleled success of his enterprise, as well as by the efficacy of his remedies in curing disease. The people believe in him and his remedies, because, as the New York Tribune says, "the sympathizes with them in all their afflictions, efforts, and attainments." Hence, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is to-day more largely employed as a blood and liver medicine, and also as a cough remedy, than any other remedial agent in the world. His Favorite Prescription he does not recommend as a cure all, as is so often done by compounders of worthless, humbug nostrums, but for all diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women it has proved itself so much of a specific that it now enjoys great popularity and universal confidence. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, scarcely larger than mustard seed, have proved as agreeable and reliable as cathartics as they are rapidly taking the place of the large, nauseous pills heretofore so much in use; while his Compound Extract of Smart-Weed is a favorite remedy for Colic, Cramps, Summer-complaint, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Cholera and Cholera Morbus, and also as a liniment. Of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, little need be said, as they are known everywhere as the greatest specifics for Catarrh and Cold-in-the Head ever given to the public. And besides this large measure of success, Dr. Pierce seems likely to achieve as great renown as an author as he has as a physician. His Common Sense Medical Advisor, a book of about 900 pages, which he sells at the unparalleled low price of $1.50, has already been sold to the extent of exhausting two editions amounting to forty thousand copies. The secret of Dr. Pierce's success, as well as that of the great revivalists, and scores of other Americans, who by their genius have advanced step by step from obscurity to affluence and distinction, consists in treating the people with consideration, sympathy, candor and honesty. No man, who hopes to attain either wealth or distinction, can afford to deal unfairly with the world, or be indifferent to the wants and best interests of humanity.

Republican State Convention.

A Republican State Convention for the nomination of candidates for Governor and Railroad Commissioner, will be held at White's Opera House, in Concord, on WEDNESDAY, January 5, 1876, at 11 o'clock, A. M.

All the voters of New Hampshire who cherish the principles and achievements of the Republican party; who desire an honest, efficient and economical administration of the National and State governments; who insist upon an early return to a currency based on specie, and a strict fulfillment of every obligation of the government; who approve the course of the National Administration looking to the reform of abuses and the punishment of wrong-doers; who favor such a national policy as shall permanently secure the rights of the freedmen and protect them against fraud, intimidation and violence, to the end that the sentiment of nationality and perfect equality may be made predominant in the reconstructed States, and our whole country placed on the high road to general education, free suffrage, enduring peace and a solid prosperity; and, especially, all who condemn the late Executive usurpation in New Hampshire which disfranchised thousands of voters in contemptuous violation of law and precedent, and fraudulently deprived the Republican party of the legislative power which they had fairly won at the polls,—are cordially invited to participate in the primary meetings for the choice of delegates.

A meeting of the State Central Committee will be held at the Eagle Hotel, in Concord, Tuesday evening, January 4th, at 8 o'clock, to which all delegates to the Convention are invited. DANIEL HALL,
Chairman Republican State Committee.

History of the Commune.

[London Daily News.]

The story of the Paris Commune, and of the events which made the name commune once more as terrible as it was in the mediæval history of France, has been told again by General Appert. If any one could disentangle the embroilment of the spring months of 1871, and see clearly through the smoke of the burning capital, and of the retaliatory platoon fire, to the actual facts of the case, it should be General Appert. A man no longer young, who must have wearied out all vindictive passion in the tedious investigations of more than four years, he has presided over the courts martial which tried the communists, and now gives to the world an abstract of his researches. Possibly he may be under the influence of unconscious prepossession, and we therefore tell the story after him, without necessarily adopting all his conclusions and estimates. To English readers the Commune has possibly seemed like a power born in one moment of popular distress, shame and social jealousy. We are apt to suppose that the movement suddenly took shape, and provided itself with an organization, after the populace had seized the guns on Montmartre, and murdered Generals Lecompte and Thomas. But General Appert declares that a distinct and eager revolutionary propaganda, a thing apart from the government of the fourth of September had existed from the evening of that memorable day. By the eleventh of September a central republican committee of vigilance and national defence was formed; so early was this house divided against itself, and a republic formed within the republic. This second republic, through all its changes, preserved one constant feature—it was founded on the support of the armed part of the people. Its administrators were persons who were for the people, and who looked on the working men of Paris—at least on such of them as held revolutionary opinions—as essentially and exclusively the people. The words "national defense" had little real meaning, unless we choose to look on Paris, or so much of its children as obeyed the committee, as a nation, or a fatherland in itself. It happened, by what must have seemed a lucky chance, that the people at this juncture had arms in their hands. The nation (of Paris) consisted, as the nation used to do among our Saxon ancestors, of the host, the men-at-arms. "The central committee of the republican federation of the national guard" was the upper house in this curious commonwealth. There was a council of the legion, an assembly of the battalion, and the lowest association, and political unit, was the company. Here was a republic militant indeed, and it was a happy thing for France that the central committee did not carry out the promising idea of opposing the Prussian entrance. The shade of old Martial Vorwarts might have rejoiced at such an attempt, and muttered his famous "What a town to plunder!" But civilization would have had to deplore an even greater ruin than the hands of the republic militant afterward wrought in this city that claims to be the capital of civilizat on.

When the Prussians had departed peacefully, the central committee seems to have had an instinctive knowledge that its moment for action had arrived. The charming pretext that on the authority of the State within the State, only the people in the technical sense should keep the cannon which it had originally removed from the sacrilegious path of the Prussians, became the ground of quarrel. These cannon were pointed, in General Appert's opinion, at all supporters of all institutions which had existed before the republican federation of the national guard came to regenerate, by means of virtuous placards, a world which certainly sadly needed regeneration. Another revolutionary body, which had seen its best days, and was looking about for support, was blended with the republican federation of the national guard. The international had suffered severely during the siege.

No money came in from affiliated branches without the circle of the forts of Paris. Subscriptions could not be looked for; aid, on the other hand, was demanded from members within Paris who suffered from the paralysis of trade. A paper called the Lutte a Outrance was started and was a failure. Now, there is a story told of a certain French man of letters to the effect that he was the stormy petrel of journalism. Whenever a newspaper ceased to have subscribers and advertisements, when the most improper novels would not attract readers, and offers of gold watches as prizes failed to draw subscriptions, this gentleman's signature always appeared at the foot of an article filled with indignant virtue—so much so, indeed, as to be dangerous to moral order. He denounced the shocking robbery called property, we may presume, the selfish exclusiveness of the monogamous family, the shameful corruption of the emperor, king, president, marshal, or whatever he might be, of the moment.

Then the minions of the marshal, president, king or emperor, suppressed the insolvent print, which fell decently, like Cæsar at Pompey's statue, uttering cries of virtue to the last. Now, the Lutte a Outrance was driven to contemplate the same sort of suicide, in the shape of an appeal to the army and an honorable suppression. Headed in all their attempts to be journalists, the chiefs of the international now get themselves elected delegates to the Central Committee of the republican federation and so on, and it became clear that what with the international, and what with the federation, lawful government must assert itself by some vigorous action. This action, as every one will remember, was to have been the seizing of the guns in the possession of the National Guard on Montmartre. The scheme for doing so was well planned, but resulted in a fatal failure.

Among all the dreadful events by which the reign of the Commune recalled the revolting scenes of the old revolution, none more resembled, in the ferocity of the mob and the weakness of the executive, such occurrences as the fall of the Bastile, than the attempt on the guns at Montmartre. At two o'clock in the morning of the eighteenth of March, General Lecompte surrounded the approaches to the heights with a force of infantry. In another hour he surprised the national guards, who held the artillery, both on the higher and the lower level of the heights. A number of the delegates of the Commune were taken with the guns, only one or two men were wounded, and troops waited for the horses and material to carry off the artillery. The horses never came. The morning grew late, a crowd collected, the soldiers were pitied for going breakfastless, sausages and case bottles were handed about by the friendly specimens of the people, ladies rushed up to the gallant men who surely would never fire on their compatriots, rifles were reversed, and the process of fraternizing was in full swing. The men who were expected to guard the flanks and approaches to the heights were engaged in this genial way probably when the National Guards occupied the upper heights in force. Companies of chasseurs, advancing under Lecompte, were encircled, the General was seized, and the moment of genial expansion being over, the populace turned to its tiger mood. General Lecompte probably knew that he was a doomed man from the first; he knew his countrymen of the class into whose hands he had fallen, and must have been aware that, as a representative of order, of society and discipline, he was doomed. General Thomas was recognized and captured some hours later. Both were hurried into a house, outside of which the crowd judged and condemned them on no charge save that of being men of position and authority. The unhappy Thomas was driven into the garden by the blows of the raging mob, and every one who had a rifle seems to have fired as he pleased at these victims. This is the kind of scene which makes reprisals certain, and that maddens men, at the moment for vengeance, to actions no less terrible than those which they punish wildly and at random. From the tragedy to the comedy, from the rage of the tiger to the tricks of the ape, it is only turning a page in General Appert's report. There are the various placards about fraternity and equality; then the fraternization and "free breakfast table" of the soldiers at Montmartre; then the massacre. The central committee, after its baptism of blood, distributes titles of honor among its members. Generals and colonels went about out of all proportion to the number of soldiers, like the five-and-twenty clansmen of the Macpherson in the ballad. Last, municipalities are ordered to collect all their most explosive chemical material for the supreme moment of the burning of Paris, and the drama ends with the fight to the death among the tombs of Pere-la-Chaise.

Will there ever be a "war of the descendants," a new rebellion, by the sons of those who perished when the Versaillaises entered Paris, or who have found rest in the Isle of Pine? This is the question that General Appert's report naturally suggests, for there seems nothing quite decisive in the battles whose history it tells once again.

News and Notes.

Thomas Drury, living in East Cambridge, murdered his wife by stabbing her with a butcher-knife, Monday afternoon.

Amesbury had a $45,000 fire on Tuesday. Biddle's wheel factory, six tenements belonging to the Salisbury mills and a large amount of lumber were destroyed.

The new city governments of Boston, Cambridge, Chelsea, Newton, Somerville, Lynn, Salem, Newburyport, Lowell, Gloucester, Lawrence, Springfield, Holyoke, New Bedford, and Fall Riverwere inaugurated on Monday. The total debt of these cities is placed at $49,438,589.

The December statement of the national debt shows an increase of $1,915,062.70.

Bowen is pressing his second libel suit against the Brooklyn Eagle for $100,000. The Loader-Price perjury suits have been nol pros'd.

The Andrew Jackson club of Dover celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of the battle of New Orleans on Saturday next, with a salute, a ball, etc.

The trial of La Page, which commences to-day, forms the chief topic of conversation on the streets in Concord. The counsel on both sides are busy at work preparing the case and completing their preparations for the trial. Seventy-five jurors have been drawn and returned, to serve on the case if needed, and there is an impression among attorneys that even more than that number will be required before the proper number can be obtained, as many are without doubt disqualified by their already expressed and decided opinions. On the part of the State, a list of 116 witnesses has been presented as the probable persons to testify for the Government, several of whom are from Canada, the scene of La Page's outrage on his wife's sister. On the part of the defence, probably not more than twenty-five witnesses will be called, and there seems to be strong reasons for thinking that an alibi will be the line of defence.

The Dynamite Explosion.

The steamship Salier arrived at New York on Sunday with the surviving passengers of the Mosel who were unharmed by the fiendish plot to destroy that vessel with dynamite at Bremerhaven. There were several relics of the explosion on board. The Chief Engineer of the Salier had in his possession a piece of wrought iron, bent and twisted, which weighed about five ounces. It was a portion of the wagon which conveyed the dynamite to the quay, and was found on board the Salier, which was at a wharf fully half a mile from the scene of the explosion. Another was a portion of a calico dress, in the possession of a steerage passenger. It is spotted with blood, and in the center of the skirt, is a large hole, burnt out by the dynamite. Capt. Francke, of the Salier, happened to be a witness of the fearful explosion of dynamite on the quay at Bremerhaven, and he related the scene as he saw it. He had come to the wharf to see the captain of another steamer, and was in conversation with a friend when it occurred. He said: "I had no idea of what had occurred when the explosion took place. It was about half an hour before the Mosel was to sail, and the first thing I knew a terrible report was heard and the air was full of flying fragments of almost everything. I was thrown to my feet, and when I recovered from the shock and arose a fearful scene met my gaze. Before the explosion I should think three hundred people were on the quay, laughing, chatting, making adieus, etc. Immediately thereafter there were not more than fifty standing, and the dock seemed to be covered with dead bodies. The spot where the explosion occurred was marked by a deep black hole in the ground, and nothing more. It was as if a blast of wind had swept the ground for a few feet around. I saw pieces of wood and iron, chests, boxes, all in splinters, flying about, and the air was full of fragments of human bodies, legs, arms, head. Pieces of broken glass were showered down, and the noise partially drowned the screams of the wounded and dying. I looked at the Mosel as soon as I recovered, and afterwards went aboard of her. Her upper works were nearly ruined; sky-lights were smashed in, the navigation-cabin a mass of splinters, and the rails and wood-work generally torn and smashed. The hatchways were broken in, and the glass ports cracked and rent into atoms."

The Boston Post says the strange and terrible stories regarding the antecedents of Thomas, or Thomassen, if true, show that the enterprises of the dynamite monster were not the fruits of sudden, desperate impulses and conclusions, but the mature products of years of study. This, again, would seem to shatter, as with his own dynamite, any extenuating excuses that the charitably disposed might have formulated in his behalf. If the biographical outline furnished by the mysterious Herr K. is to be relied upon, the distinguished acts of Thomassen's career are no longer "psychologically explicable" by the light of his American education, for Herr K. says that he was born and educated in Germany, and lived there during the eight years between 1867 and 1875. After soaking in German virtue for all that time it seems hardly natural that his lapse could have been altogether due to his somewhat limited acquaintance with the commercial practices of this country. Probably the easiest way to account for this man's horrible plans is to lay the whole responsibility upon original sin and total depravity, which will work to the surface under favorable conditions, whether the subject be a German, an American, or a Hottentot.

Flying Machines.

English Paper.

The new flying machine, the invention of Mr. Simmonds, and intended for use in military operations, was subjected to a public trial by the inventor on Chatham lines recently, the experimental trial being attended by a large number of the officers of the Roy l Engineers, among whom were Maj. V. G. Clayton, Secretary to the Royal Engineer Committee; Capt. M. T. Sale, one of the instructors in field fortifications, and other heads of departments connected with the School of Military Engineering. A number of non-commissioned officers and men of the Royal Engineers had been placed at the disposal of Mr. Simmonds to assist him in carrying out the experimental trials. The machine, which may be said to consist of two independent parts, is nothmore than a huge square-shaped, light canvas covering, stretched on four slight but strong ash-poles, or arms placed at right angles to each other, the covering being further attached to a centre pole—resembling nothing so much as the handle of an enormous umbrella—by means of light galvanized wires, the entire machine being in appearance an enormous, square-shaped umbrella the largest of the two parts or more properly machinery weighing about one hundred weight, and the other, which is smaller, somewhat less.

From the extremities of each of the four arms is attached a rope of considerable length, the four ropes being brought to a point—somewhat similar, in this respect, to a parachute—so as to support a man, the machine being intended for reconnoitring observations in connection with an army in the field. During the experiments sandbags were employed to represent the weight of a man. The smallest of the two machines was first tried, but owing to their being but little wind it attained an elevation of but a few feet only, a number of sappers of the Royal Engineers running away with the rope to which the machine was attached, much in the same way as that adopted by children when flying their kites. After repeated attempts in this way, Mr. Simmonds only succeeded in inducing the machine to rise to about twenty feet, when it would immediately fall with great force to the ground. After some time spent in these fruitless efforts, which occasioned much impatience among the spectators, it was decided, at the request of the Royal Engineer officers present, to try to raise the largest of the two machines, which had been lying during the former part of the experiments in the centre of Chatham lines, where it was swaying backwards and forwards with the little wind blowing.

The same method of raising the larger machine as that adopted in the previous experiments was again employed, a number of men of the Royal Engineers being stationed at the end of the rope, about three hundred yards away, the machine itself being held up to face the wind by several other sappers. At a given signal from Mr. Simmonds, a run by the men was made, when the machine rose to a height of about fifty or sixty feet, and then came to the ground. A readjustment of the four guiding-ropes and wires having been made, a further attempt to raise the machine was tried, but although an altitude of rather more than one hundred feet was obtained, the flying machine obstinately refused to remain in the air, but fell with a crash to the ground, breaking one of its fore arm poles, and sustaining other damage. The cause of the collapse of the machine was stated by Mr. Simmonds to have been occasioned by the ballast attached to it not being of sufficient weight, and the four ropes which were connected with the ends described not being of the proper length. After a consultation it was decided to abandon any further trials on the occasion with the large machine, as some time would be required to substitute a new arm-pole for that broken, and the machine was at once stripped of its canvas covering. A second series of attempts to raise the smaller of the machines was then made, but with little or no better result than those previously achieved, and, after upward of two hours had been consumed in carrying out the trials, the experiments were for the present abandoned.

—All that is needed to start a sheep ranch in Texas is two jackasses, two Mexican boys one Mexican man, one sack of frijoles (Mexican beans,) some coffee and a few extras, 1,500 ewes, and twenty to thirty bucks, and a gun to kill game. The Mexican ewes, if bought in August, will cost $1.50 to $1.65. A Mexican boy will cost $8 to $10 a month, and the man about $20 a month; jackasses $25 each; the frijoles three cents a pound—altogether for the first year about $3,500. The ewes will yield from 2 1-4 to 2 1-2 pounds of wool, and then, come the lambs which will double the herd if properly taken care of. A man then has from his investment of $3,500, 2,000 sheep, and upward of $900 from the sale of the wool.

—Bayard Taylor says: "During a long tour of observation last season, extending from New Hampshire to Nebraska, I found it to be a fact that Mrs. Southworth is still the novelist most in demand in the circulating libraries; yet, notwithstanding this fact, it is pretty certain that the lowest point of literary demoralization has been reached and passed."

—The Prince of Wales took but $10,000 worth of wine with him to India, and it is feared that he will be obliged to drink more or less water.

The Verdict in the Major Trial.

[Nashua Telegraph.]

The public breathes freer since the jury found a verdict of "guilty" in the Major poisoning case. The jury in the first trial reached a most lame and impotent conclusion, wholly unwarranted by the evidence, or by common sense. It must be said, however, that the State's counsel did not make so complete a case as they should have done in the first instance, and the jury was not wholly at fault. In the second trial the counsel made full amends by the vigor and thoroughness with which they prepared and handled the case, and the verdict was undoubtedly due to their extraordinary exertions in presenting the chain of evidence without a break or a link missing.

The public have been nearly unanimous as to Major's guilt from the beginning. They have been certain that he is no ordinary criminal, and hence had little doubt that if his mask could be stripped off that it would disclose the poisoner of more than one person. For one so young his career has undoubtedly been a monstrous one, and it is no wonder that the public shuddered after the first failure to convict over the possibility of such a criminal being turned loose upon society, with a long life still before him. The law has stepped in, all too late, however, and deprived the murderer of further opportunity to ply his fiendish instincts. He will need close watching, however, for beneath his fair exterior is great muscular power and a desperate resolution.

In recalling some of the circumstances of the case, and some of the facts understood but not brought out at the trial, it is impossible to acquit the parents of Major's wife, or indeed the people of Wilton who were knowing to the rumors, of a grave responsibility, for stifling inquiry as to the cause of the sudden death of Ella Lovejoy, who unquestionably met death by poison at the same hands that administered the deadly drug to her sister, Mrs. Major. Had an official investigation followed her death, one innocent life if not more might have been saved. But it is easy to lock the stable after the horse is stolen, and so, in the general satisfaction that the most dangerous criminal that New Hampshire has ever known has been tried, convicted, sentenced, and now awaits his doom, we drop the unpleasant subject.

The Coolie Trade at Hong Kong.

[Cor. Troy Times.]

Hong Kong is the great shipping point of Chinese Coolies for San Francisco. These men bind themselves to pay over a certain proportion of their earnings to merchants known as hongs, under whose direction they are sent out. Corresponding hongs in San Francisco then take charge of the Coolies, and hire them to service. The contract is for them to serve for a stipulated number of years, and their relatives are here absolutely personally mortgaged to secure its fulfillment. These hongs represent millions of capital. If a Coolie sent to America by them fails to keep his agreement, then the hong here secures one of the mortgaged relatives, and compels him to serve to make good the contract, sending him to San Francisco for that purpose. This is the Coolie trade in its mildest form. The Coolie becomes a slave for a number of years on certain conditions and these conditions, enforced on this side, become operative in a voluntary form in the United States. This business is a source of immense revenue to the hongs. The United States consulate there, under a law of Congress, exacts 25 cents a head on the Coolie emigrants for medical examination, allowing only those who are free from diseases to be shipped to America. The emigration amounts to between 15,000 and 20,000 a year.

The Cuban Question.

The Manchester Guardian's London correspondent writes as follows on the subject of Spain, Cuba and the United States: "I have been furnished with what purports to be the substance of America's Cuban note. I believe it is correct, though I do not pretend to give the exact language. It recites that the general interests of humanity and commerce demand the cessation of the struggle which has been waged in Cuba for seven years. The United States are great sufferers, but are unwilling to act without the concurrence of other powers, including Spain. The continuation of the attempt to govern Cuba from Madrid will be fatal to the hopes of the restoration of peace—nevertheless. Cuba belongs to Spain, and a great share of the population is opposed to separation. In these circumstances the solution of the question might be found in establishing a confederation in the West Indies resembling the Canadian. Cuba and Porto Rico might be constituted a confederation with a local independent right and a Governor-General appointed by Spain. The powers are asked to join the United States in proposing such a consideration and aiding Cube to establish it. The abolition of slavery would, however, be a necessary condition, and such pressure must be brought as would make the insurgents cease warfare. This would be difficult, but it could be accomplished. Secretary Fish is emphatic in denying that the United States desire the acquisition of Cuba; they only wish peace restored, slavery abolished and commerce allowed to resume its course. The powers are asked to express their opinion upon the proposed means of accomplishing these ends."

—Steadily and surely old time delusions are being exploded. Almost everybody is under the impression that there are no snakes in Ireland, and yet Mr. E. W. Greene, of Kilranalagh Baltinglass, Ireland, writes to the Daily Express, under date of September 11th: "My gardener killed a large snake in the garden here, measuring five feet long by three inches in circumference."

—A Pennsylvania man named his first three boys America, United States and Christopher Columbus, and a new comer he has called Centennial.

—A little boy who was nearly starved by a stingy uncle with whom he lived, meeting a lank greyhound one day in the street, was asked by the guardian what made the dog so thin. After reflecting, the little boy replied, "I suppose he lived with his uncle."

—The printers of the Philadelphia Inquirer set (not sat) up "The Night before Christmas" twenty-seven years ago, and the poem has been kept standing ever since, and was printed in that paper last week from the original types first used in 1848.

The U. S. S. S. Marion.

This splendid specimen of naval architecture, now nearly ready for sea, at this navy yard, is expected to go into commission within a day or two, under command of Captain R. F. Bradford. Her list of officers is as we have before published, except that Gunner George W. Fouse is ordered to her, and Ensign Schufeldt, a son of Commodore S. The engines were run on Thursday and Friday, and their test was satisfactory. The dimensions of the Marion are as follows:

Length on the lead line, 216 feet, length over all, 249 feet; breadth extreme, 37 feet; depth of hold from top of spar-deck-beam to throats of floors, 19 feet; depth in the clear between decks, 6 feet; draught of water, forward, 15 feet 9 inches; draft, of water, aft, 17 feet 6 inches. Tonnage, 910 tons. Displacement, 1840 tons.

The Marion is ship-rigged, having a total sail-surface of 19,548 square feet. She carries no studding sails. She is provided with eight boats, including a beautiful steam launch, all built, like most of her furniture and fittings, at the yard. Her battery consists of one eleven-inch Dahlgren pivot gun, six nine-inch Dahlgren broadside guns, one sixty-pounder Parrott rifle on top gallant forecastle, two twenty-pounder Dahlgren howitzers, and four Gatling guns.

She has two horizontal back-acting compound engines. Diameter of high pressure cylinders, 42 inches; low pressure cylinders, 64 inches; stroke of piston, 42 inches; steam pressure, 60 pounds; calculated to make 60 revolutions per minute. Indicated H. P. 1100 Surface Condensers—diameter of the shaft, 11 inches. She has a four-bladed screw, expanding pitch from heel to periphery. Diameter of screw, 15 feet 6 inches; Pitch, 21 feet; area of blades 79 feet 5 inches.

She is supplied with ten high pressure horizontal tubular boilers. Length, 8 feet 1 inch; diameter, 8 feet; grate surface, 240 square feet; heating surface, 5,950 square feet; coal consumption, about 24 tons every twenty-four hours. Coal carried in bunkers, 180 tons.

She carries coal enough for hard steaming for 7 1-2 days, but under a moderate head of steam it would last 15 days. She is supplied with Baird's fresh water distilling apparatus, capable of making 2000 gallons potable water every twenty-four hours. Her engines and boilers are supplied with all the modern improvements. The engines were designed and built by the government and have been placed in the vessel under the immediate superintendence of Chief Engineer David R. Macomb, U. S. N., in charge of the Steam Engineering Department of the yard.

The frame of this vessel is of live oak entirely, planked with white oak and copper fastened. The materials of all kinds used in her construction are of the very best quality and a better built ship does not float on the waters to-day than this one.

The Marion was rebuilt from plans designed by the Chief of the Bureau of Construction, Chief Naval Constructor Isaiah Hanscom. She was built and launched by and under the direction of Naval Constructor Thomas E. Webb, and completed and fitted out under the direction of Naval Constructor Theodore D. Wilson. Captain Jonathan Young, the Equipment Officer of the yard, deserves great credit for the handsome set of rigging which she has on her.

Jottings.

Sheridan and Mack's minstrels will visit Portsmouth soon.

To-day we shall have a quiet time in the city. The politicians have all gone to Concord.

The man who plowed his land recently got through the harrowing operation in season to go skating.

The next farmers' discussion will take place at Portsmouth grange hall, Thursday evening, Jan. 19th.

The cold snap makes the coal-dealers rub their hands. They are now of opinion that there is still a God in Israel.

A teachers' meeting is to be held this evening at half past seven o'clock in the Aldermen's room, to organize a voluntary teachers' association.

As Rev. Carlos Martyn says: "With Frank Jones in Congress, and Elbridge Pierce in the Portsmouth post office, who's afraid?"

The delegates to the republican county convention are requested to meet at Common Council Rooms this (Wednesday) evening at half-past seven o'clock.

James T. Fields gave a very interesting sketch of the life and character of Rufus Choate in his lecture before the S. P. C. A. lyceum, Tuesday night. The great advocate and his wonderful achievements at the bar were portrayed in vivid colors.

The committee to initiate steps toward the formation of a temperance reform club will report at the meeting to be held at the hall of the Sons of Temperance, Thursday evening. We understand that plans have been matured, and prompt action will be taken in the matter. All are invited to attend the meeting.

Ought not Portsmouth to feel proud this centennial year? One of our citizens is a member of Congress, and if he does cut a bigger dash on the Avenue than he does in the Capitol, whose business is it? Another citizen, and one of our most venerable and respected residents, is to be offered up by the democratic party as a vicarious sacrifice in the approaching gubernatorial canvass. Glory enough for one year.

The telegraph has it that Mr. Robert Harris, one of Portsmouth's sons, has been tendered the position of superintendent of the New York Central Railroad. Mr. Harris is now superintendent of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, which is known all over the country as the best-managed road in the West, and his removal to New York would be greatly regretted in Illinois.

Congress meets to-day, and when Frank Jones rides into the hall of the House of Representatives, in that elegant carriage, won't there be a sensation? There will be no "indisposition" to give him all the credit due him. In the matter of carriages and general style of living, Frank will probably prove the most talented man New Hampshire has ever had in Congress.

Foster's Democrat comes out for Daniel Marcy for Governor, "subject to the decision of the democratic State convention." As this is already "fixed," the Democrat's action is rather superfluous. Why don't it come out and ratify the decalogue or say a word of approval of the declaration of independence, or endorse General Washington, or do something that will have the flavor of novelty about it?

During the firing of the midnight salute, New Year's Eve, a crowd of spectators gathered dangerously near the guns and ammunition-chest of the artillery company, seriously impeding the men and endangering their own safety. Capt. Marvin ordered them to move back out of the way, tempering the peremptory command with the felicitous remark that they could hear the guns just as well. The crowd good humoredly took the position assigned to them.

By order of Gov. Cheney a national salute will be fired to-day at sunrise, noon and sunset, by the Portsmouth Artillery Company, in commemoration of New Hampshire's declaration of independence of the mother country, one hundred years ago to-day. The Board of Trade has a meeting this evening to take notice of the event, and also of the appointment of Meshach Weare as President of the Provincial Congress, and consequently Governor of New Hampshire.

The "very sudden" marriage of our well known musical and artistic townsman, Mr. T. P. Moses, in Boston, which is announced under the connubial head this morning, is the most unexpected event thus far of the new leap year, we doubt not. The happy couple started for South Carolina on the 5th inst., where Mr. Moses has a professional engagement, and where the many friends he "left behind him" will wish him all joy and success in his new social and business relations. O, tempora! O, Moses!

Who is to be County Commissioner? is a question of especial interest to Portsmouth which pays about one-third of the County taxes? The name of Hon. Marcellus Bufford was presented to the Convention last year, as a nomination eminently fit to be made; and it should be brought forward again this year. His friends should see that this is done, as the Judge is not a man to press himself for any office. One thing seems to be pretty evident—that with the very small republican majority in this county last year, it behoves us to nominate a strong man, or we shall not be sure of electing him. S. O. R.

Elements of Bone, Brain and Muscle.

The food contains the elements of bone, brain and muscle, and in a healthy system, properly nourished, the manufacture of these bodily constituents is uninterrupted, night or day. On the other hand, when digestion or assimilation are imperfect, the manufacture is hindered, and the destructive not being counteracted by the reparative processes of Nature, the system is threatened with early decay. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are peculiarly fitted to overcome the causes which lead to an untimely decadence of the vital energies, removing as they do all obstacles to complete digestion and assimilation of the food, and restraining an undue waste of physical substance. For the loss of strength consequent upon depleting diseases, they are the best possible remedy, and their bracing upon the system enable it to withstand hurtful atmospheric influences inductive of malaria.

"A Slight Cold," Coughs.—Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough or "slight cold" which would yield to a mild remedy; if neglected, often attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give sure and almost immediate relief.

The Atlantic Cable is a world-wide blessing, and so is Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. A cure for 35 cents.

The Spring Crop of Coughs and Colds is heavy, and will ripen in a terrible harvest of disease and death, unless rooted out with the Standard Anodote, HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR.

Pyle's Dietetic Saleratus.—Universally acknowledged the best in use. Each pound bears the name of JAMES PYLE. None genuine without. tje76

Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in New England, August 18th, 1755.

Revn'd Mr. Arthur Brown."

The feeling of the churchmen against the dissenters is very strongly shown in these commercial letters. Says Atkinson, "The Parish of Rye in the town of New Castle hath some time since, discovered their minister, whose name is Nathaniel Morrell, to be one of the greatest villains in America; and 't is reported he's gone for England to take Orders. If this be true and he gos, Doubtless you'l hear of it and I assure you it will Do more Diservice to the Church than than is possable to conceive; and this leads me to tell you our Church now wants glass which if we had would be fit to preach in by midsummer." Governor Belcher, who was not very partial to the Massachusetts, and seems to have ridiculed the Episcopal movement, is severely denounced. "The Govern'r," says Atkinson, "may make what pretences he pleaseth, but 'tis the greatest Enemy the Church of England hath upon this Continent, I believe, and had it not been for him I believe ours in this place would have been finished but he upon being asked whether he would contribute toward it sed not as a church but if the proprietors would make a Stait-house of it he would give twenty or thirty pounds."

In another letter we find Atkinson saying to Thomlinson, "We are now in hopes of Mr. Brown's consent to move to us, having made him an offer agreeable to his request, as soon as we have his answer shall authentically apply to you in order to facilitate and finish that matter we want apout 1500 squares of glass 8 by 10 inches square and hope by midsummer next to have it completely finished. There is a new church erected at the South end of Boston and they are laying for Mr. Brown but as they can't expect assistance from the society we hope they will not prevail; if we miss that man it will much retard our settlement I fear; now here is a congregation on the other side of the river at Kittry who Imbrace the church and we should for the present satisfy them and Mr. Brown would do this in case he could have the same salary from the society that he now hath."

Thomlinson at London was to plead with the missionary society there to have Mr. Brown removed from Rhode Island to Portsmouth, but for a long time he had poor encouragement, on account of the difficulty in finding any one to put in his place. In the earnest desire to secure him as rector here, we find the same workings as at the present day to get a minister away from his parish, and a tendency to think his work could not be so valuable elsewhere. Thomlinson writes, "I observe what you wrote me of ye difficulty you met in this affair, and that the chieff objection to Mr. Brown's removal was yt Providence must be provided for by a new missionary which the society at present was not able to do. That society, I apprehend, has always made it their practice to send their missionaries where was the greatest prospect of success, and if they 're made (as I doubt not you have done), sensable of the difference of the places—this being a seaport, the metropolis of the King's Government, in which this is the first Church ever Erected, and this carryed on by the chief people in the whole province, whose good Example will, hope, be very prevalent in all the neighboring Towns as well as Portsmouth, and upward of one hundred familys of the best sort of People already Declared their fixed and Determined Resolution, and such as without whose help this Town will scarce ever be able to maintain another Dissenting Minister when either of those now here shall be removed—who because we were under obligations to at their first settlement think ourselves obliged still to contribute for yr support. Now Providence being a country town of but very few Professed Churchmen to these and these too more so in profession ya reality, of very different behaviour, scarce any stranger, and but a small distance from Rhode Island where there is a church established, and I believe were Mr. Brown to write his own sentiments he could give but a very Indifferent carracter of the people there, and such an one as never scarce deserve the Society' care." In 1736 Thomlinson writes from London, "I am very glad to find that the society has at last given leave to Mr. Brown to remove to your place. I shall be glad to hear his good success amongst you."

Here, then, dispersed among a mercantile correspondence, we have the substance of the movement to gather the Episcopal sect of this town into an organized church body. It was begun in the year 1732, and the building was finished in the year 1735. It was a frame church, a little smaller than the present one, with a steeple like that of the Old South. There were two entrances, one on the west, the other south, with a vestry room under the stairs on the west side. On the north side the central part of the wall pews was raised above the rest, a heavy wooden canopy built over it bore the royal arms, and red plush curtains were festooned around it. Previous to the Revolution this was called the governor's pew, and it was occupied by General Washington when on a visit to this town in 1789.

Mr. Thomlinson was one of the largest contributors, and procured aid in London to complete the church. We find also that Benjamin Franklin, although himself a theist, was one of the contributors. Queen Caroline, consort of George II., gave the books for the altar and pulpit, the plate (consisting of five pieces, stamped with the royal arms), and two mahogany chairs for the chancel, in honor of whom the building was called Queen's Chapel.

The bell was taken from Louisburg at the time of its capture in 1746, and in that year presented by the officers of the New Hampshire Regiment to this church. It is to be remembered, too, that the one most valuable relic and ornament of the church, the font, a beautiful piece of porphyritic marble of a brownish-yellow color, was plundered from a church in Senegal, Africa, by Colonel John Tufton Mason, and presented by his daughters to Queen's Chapel—but according to the present rules of civil warfare, the cathedrals are exempt from violation.

The church had been built, and the salary assured, by the liberal help of the English Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts, mainly as a missionary enterprise; and it seems hard to understand how the enthusiasm which was manifested, and the number of prominent families subscribing, provided so small a portion of the minister's support, for of the £100 sterling which Mr. Brown was assured the society paid him £60 as missionary for Portsmouth, and £15 for Kittery, leaving but £25 for the parish to contribute, and in some years, perhaps, a small additional sum if the contributions of the strangers did not amount to £20 a year.

Arthur Browne was born at Drogheda, in Ireland, in 1699, a son of Rev. John Browne of Scotland, who, in early life, returned to Ireland. Arthur was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and received from that institution the degree of master of arts in July, 1729. About that time Dean Berkeley had gone to the New World on his mission of converting the Indians, and his example had aroused a good deal of enthusiasm among others to engage in the same work. The accounts which Dean Berkeley gave of the ungodliness of the New World were helpful in creating a missionary spirit among those who would win it to a higher faith. "Though some persons," says the dean, "of a better sort were accustomed to assemble themselves regularly on the Lord's Day for the performance of public worship, yet most of those who were dispersed through the colonies seemed to manifest a thorough indifference for all that was sacred, being equally careless of outward works and inward principles, whether of faith or practice. Of the best of them it may be said certainly that they live without the sacraments, not being so much as baptized.

Republican State Convention.

The republican State convention met at Concord on Wedneday. There were present 532 delegates, and the utmost enthusiasm characterized the meeting. O. C. Moore, of the Nashua Telegraph, was chosen president, and made a telling speech, in which the issues of the campaign were graphically outlined. Gov. Cheney was unanimously re-nominated, and William A. Peirce of Portsmouth was nominated for Railroad Commissioner, by 373 votes to 102 for J. W. F. Hobbs, of North Hampton. The resolutions adopted have the right ring, and the convention adjourned with a feeling that its work had been well done, and that success is assured if this good work is followed up with hard work.

News and Notes.

The La Page trial began at Concord on Tuesday, a jury being empanelled and everything made ready for business on the first day.

Sir Anthony Rothschild died on Tuesday in London. He was the second son of Nathan Rothschild, the third of the original brothers, and born in London in 1810. He was created a baronet in 1846.

The distribution of free soup to the poor of Boston began on Tuesday.

The college boys have voted to row their next race at Saratoga.

It is believed in Washington that the National Republican Executive Committee will select Chicago as the place and the 15th of June as the date for holding the next National convention of the republican party.

The New York Sun says that since Tilton began his present lecturing tour he has gained fifteen pounds, freed his paintings from pawn and repainted his house. Whether he has as yet hung his pictures in his newly-painted house is not stated.

Senator Boutwell is reported as having said that he was entirely opposed to any meddling with the Cuban insurgents and the Spanish government. If Spain wants to continue hostilities on the Island it is her business and not ours. The talk about making peace between the contending forces is uncalled for and impertinent. The plea that the country is losing trade is absurd. It is better to lose part of it for a few years than to lose it all and have our navy swept from the sea in a hundred days, as it surely would be if we attempt to dictate to Spain. She has the vessels and power to ruin our commerce, and destroy our vessels of war.

—Speaking of the "cramming" in the New York medical colleges, a correspondent remarks: "How an ordinary mind can receive seven lectures a day is a mystery." If there is a subject upon which the American people may be said to be more ignorant than upon another, that subject is education. And the most profoundly ignorant of these are the professors of the medical schools, who being by their calling, both material and mental physiologists, should be best instructed.

—"My onthankful hearers," said a backwoods preacher, "you are like onto hogs eatin' acorns. They never look up to see where the acorns come from."

A Remarkable Woman.

A correspondent, who has been doing up the coal regions of Pennsylvania, describes a rather remarkable specimen of a woman whom he ran across in his travels. She lives at Lewisburg, on the Susquehanna, and although dressed in woman's garb she is said to be as devoid of womanly qualities as an iceberg is of heat. Her name is Emma Britton, though she is better known as "Johnny." She has a broad forehead, clear blue eyes, a prominent nose, finely curved lips, pretty teeth, round dimpled chin, fair complexion, rosy cheeks and a very genial and lively disposition. She is above the medium height, is fleshy and well formed, and weighs about 140 pounds. She has taken several prizes for fine skating, and can outstrip the fleetest young man in the neighborhood. She seems to be particularly fond of ball playing; throws a heavy base ball with great force, swiftness and regularity, and can catch swiftly-thrown balls with great ease and certainty. On skates she can jump fifteen feet, and execute the most difficult figures. She has run 100 yards in thirteen seconds, which is good time even for a man, and can saddle and bridle a horse as well and as quickly as any jockey. She is an expert rider and driver, brave, almost reckless, and no horse can go too fast for her. At a race or match of any kind, she will join the sporting men, buy pools and wager her money with the rest of them. She will stand at a bar, call for drinks, swallow liquor, pay for it, smoke and talk horse. She is an expert marksman with rifle and pistol. As an offhand shot her skill is simply marvellous. At quoit pitching she shows to good advantage, and she can swim a half-mile very easily. From her earliest recollection she was extremely sorry that she was born a girl. She remembers having stoutly protested against wearing dresses when quite young, and she vowed then that she would be a man in spite of all of them. There is nothing foolish or frivolous about her, but she appears to be a sensible, thoughtful woman, fully cognizant of what she is doing, and at all times ready to defend her position by argument that has a sound ring. She always said she would never marry. She liked men as companions, but she could not think of being the wife of one.

Tweed's Memory of Faces.

The boss never forgets a face. He had learned that men esteemed it a compliment to be remembered personally, and he practiced upon this information. Some years ago, at Albany, the writer had occasion to call upon Mr. Tweed, having met him frequently, and having always found him ready to give any information that lay in his power. An acquaintance said he would go, too, having only met the Tammany sachem once, and being desirous of renewing the acquaintance. Tweed met the writer cordially, and then, turning to his companion, called him by name and inquired after his little daughter. A flush of gratified delight spread over the gentleman's face, and he afterward expressed astonishment at the recollection. It seems that at the time they had first met the gentleman had his daughter with him, and she attracted Tweed's notice and he spoke to her. The incident bore its fruit. Tweed gained a firm friend by the power of his memory. The courtesy cost nothing, and in its rank fruits proved to be very valuable.—Knickerbocker in Toledo Blade.

—A few mornings since, the conductor of a train which daily brings to our city many of our substantial business men who reside in the southern part of the State, asked one of the patrons, who is something of a farmer, what he gave his pigs when they were troubled with worms. "Gin and aloes," promptly responded the person questioned. The other morning, the conductor, as he entered the smoking car, approached his former adviser and told him that the dose which he recommended had been given and the pig had died. "Nothing strange about that," responded the other. "I gave it to five of mine and all of them died." "Why didn't you tell me so?" said the conductor. "Because you didn't ask," replied the other, and then such a roar as went up from the inmates of that car, has seldom been heard on that line.—Providence Press.

—Turning wounded Union soldiers out of office to make room for ex-Confederates, may be fully up to the "true reform" promised by democracy, but it will fall far short of the reform that will satisfy the country. It is bad enough to appoint ex-Confederate soldiers and leading rebels to office while tens of thousands of brave fellows can be found who served the nation in its hour of peril, and who stand in need of some employment that will yield them fair pay for honest service, but it is far worse to turn out one-legged and one-armed heroes from positions conferred by a grateful country to make room for the former enemies of the Republic. If this is the policy of the democracy, the people will effectually squelch it when it presents itself at the ballot box at next election.—The Republic.

—It is rumored in Washington that Mr. Randall is going to propose in the House to reduce the salary of Congressmen to the old figures. It may be true, for a politician will make almost any sacrifice for his party, and when Mr. Randall voted to raise his salary to $7500 two years ago and pocketed his back pay besides, he did not foresee what a stir it was going to make through the country. We do not know what the Senate will say to such a plan. Senators set a higher value on their services, and they stay in office six years.—Worcester Gazette.

—A New Jersey compositor turned "carnation pink" into "darnation pink." Doubtless the same one who manipulated the "trousseau of the bonny bride" into the "trowsers of the bony bird." He's a sad wag

—Mr. Speaker!"Good morning, Brother Wood. You look a trifle dull. Bad luck at poker?" "Poh! Kerr, no! 'Twas you, Kerr, that did it!"—Providence Journal.

—The St. Louis Republican has taken to printing its original poetry in French, and the subscribers are delighted. It relieves them at once of the responsibility of reading it.

Jottings.

Who next?

Portsmouth still exclaims, Holy Moses!

The way to get up a revival is to revive.

Pakeha and Nathaniel of Texas no longer feel safe.

A soiree by the Woman's Temperance League is among the coming events.

The grand march at the leap year ball this evening begins at 8 o'clock, sharp.

The Rye ladies ain't going to be euchred out of their leap year dance. Invitations are out for the 13th.

Our old friend Stillman B. Allen is a member elect of the Massachusetts legislature. Tenders of sympathy and consolation are in order.

Don't forget the temperance meeting at Sons of Temperance Hall this evening. If we are to have a reform club, let's have a rouser.

We are almost afraid to risk a weather item, but how about the old adage, "As the days begin to lengthen the cold begins to strengthen?"

A revival meeting is to begin next Sunday under the auspices of Rev. Clarence Fowler, who will receive assistance from the orthodox churches.

James T. Fields has been elected a member of the Portsmouth Artillery Company. If any one attempts a pun on the new member's name, shoot him on the spot.

We don't know how the rest of the country is getting on, but Portsmouth is doing her share of the centennial business. Nothing like living in a town with a revolutionary history.

Theodore Tilton, who will possibly be remembered in connection with a recent scandal case, will lecture at the Temple on Wednesday evening of next week on "The Problem of Life."

The Artillery company didn't have very good luck with the salute in honor of the centennial celebration of the independence of New Hampshire. They do say that the powder was of a democratic brand, and refused to burn on such a patriotic occasion.

The New Hampshire S. P. C. A. have voted to offer to the pupils of the Rye schools a copy of Webster's unabridged and a handsomely bound volume of poems for the best essays on the humane treatment of animals. The following are the committee of award: Rev. J. K. Aldrich, G. H. Jenness and Emmons B. Philbrick of Rye; and Charles W. Gardner and Thomas E. O. Marvin of this city. Mrs. Ichabod Goodwin and Miss Susie E. Christie will act as referees. The award will be made some time in February.

Princely Proclivities.

[Independent.]

The Prince of Wales did not take his wife with him to India. Perhaps his somewhat notorious taste would have been too much restrained by her presence. We see significant hints in our Indian exchanges that he needs to practice a little circumspection in a land where his influence in favor of purity might be of incalculable service. We remember that the trip of his party up the Nile some years ago was remarkable for such a display of dancing girls as has scarcely been equaled there since, unless on one too famous occasion, on which a party of Americans of some notoriety, of whom some advertise themselves every week as "gentlemen," made the same trip. The Prince, we hear, has been giving his countenance to the detestable native "Nautches;" and in Madras an amateur dramatic performance was to be given before him, the play being the "Dumba Charry Valasum," one of those obscene productions which have rendered the vernacular literature infamous, and the filthiness of which lately gave rise to a police prosecution. We are afraid that, even since his sickness, nothing better could be expected of him, or of the kindred spirits whom he has selected for his suite.

—The once notorious colored lawyer of Greenville, Mississippi, J. D. Werles, walked aboard a boat lying at the wharf, a few days ago, and accosted a couple of cartmen with, "Did you ever see any one commit suicide?" They both answered "No," when he rejoined, "Then watch me," and leaping into the river was drowned before he could be reached.

—Mr. Ruskin at present is advocating dancing as a part of religious education, and thus assails young lady Sunday school teachers: "At present," he says, "you keep the dancing to yourself, and graciously teach your scholars the catechism. Suppose you were to try for a little while learning the catechism yourselves, and teaching them to dance."

—It is not strange that the Sultan should be badly off in a money way with 1,200 wives. It must take a round little figure, now, to pay for their striped stockings.

Ladies' Fairs.

The Cleveland Leader says: 'Tis now the very witching time of fairs, when grab-bags yawn and pocket-books breathe forth their contents. Every church in Washington that has not had its annual fair is about to have one. The average woman really revels in fairs. If there is any charitable project on foot, a church to be built, or organ to be bought, why, have a fair. Spend months and months in all sorts of fancy work and knick-knackery, and, since people will not give their money for the asking, beguile it from them with all the ingenuity of which worsted is capable. As men generally carry the purse, they are necessarily the victims, and all womankind becomes mercenary, with an eye to the pocket-book of every individual man of her acquaintance. The average man subscribes to a fair as an evil, necessary to the full development of his Christian fortitude—a something to be wrestled with and overcome by. He has early learned to look upon a fair as the only human institution that knows no change, and his air of lamb-like resignation as he sees his five-dollar bills disappearing, and himself the happy possessor of a penwiper or pincushion, is beautiful to behold—"a fair exchange is no robbery." Happy man! if he does not find himself decorated with lamp-mats and tidies or some other indispensable adjunct of masculine comfort.

How the Blood is Filtered.

When the blood contains the acrid elements which produce rheumatism, gout and venereal disorders, the kidneys ought, for it is their office, to filter from the blood, in its passage through them, these hurtful impurities. When they do not, they may be incited to a thorough performance of their duty, and the blood thoroughly deparated by that admirable corrective of organic inactivity, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only is torpidity of the kidneys overcome, through the agency of the Bitters, but digestion is facilitated, bilious tendencies counteracted, and the bowels stimulated to a due discharge of their function, which, in connection with that of the kidneys tends to free the system from the bodily refuse, whose retention is so prejudicial to health.

Daily Chronicle.

Michael Angelo as a Workman.

Through his impatience and enthusiasm, Michael Angelo ruined block after block of marble by working with too great vehemence near the surface. He had a wonderful faculty as a mere workman in marble, but his genius and impetuosity of temperament would not brook the opposition of so stubborn a material, and unfitted him for those first processes of roughing out into shape the block, which require patience and precision. Too eager to arrive at a point where his true genius would find play, he assailed the marble with such violence that he often struck off pieces which trenched into the just limits of the surface; and as they could not be replaced, he was forced to finish as he could—not as he would. Had he confined himself more to elaborating his work in clay, and then intrusting the blocking out in marble to a mechanical workman, we should have had not only a much larger number of grand works by him, but they would have been freer of great defects. For instance, the back of the head of Moses has been chiselled away until it is an impossible head. Again the David is sacrificed to the exigencies of the marble. And the head of his famous "Day" was probably left unfinished because he perceived it was turned beyond the limit permitted to nature without breaking the neck.

—The growth of Texas within the past ten years has been marvelous. Before the panic she was receiving about one hundred thousand emigrants per annum, of a very superior class, and building railroads more rapidly than other States. Her agricultural resources are unsurpassed, while the extent of her territory is nearly double that of France. She bids fair to become one of the most populous, wealthy and powerful States in the Union.

—Now pick almanacs. They are dead ripe, and are worth about two and a half cents a pound, rag measure. None genuine unless branded "1876." Ask your druggist for that kind and take no other.

—The St. Louis papers demoralize their readers by such headings as "Railroadistic," and "Telescoped," while a Detroit paper publishes lake disasters under the head of "Wreckord."

"Facts are Stubborn Things."

Thousands of human beings are yearly borne on the swift current of disease down to the grave, just because they do not possess a sufficient knowledge of disease. A man meets his neighbor, and the first salutation is "How are you?" or "How is your health?" The reply frequently is, "Oh, I am well, with the exception of a cold." Most persons lightly regard a cold. Reader, do you know that a cold is one of the most dangerous of maladies? A cold not only clogs up the pores of the entire system, and retards circulation, but it is productive of Catarrh, which is quite apt to lead to Consumption. "Oh," you say, "it is nothing but a cold in my head." True, but that cold is really a mild form of Catarrh, and if not arrested in its course will become chronic. Catarrh is one of the most loathsome and offensive affections in the catalogue of diseases. The passage to the nose is obstructed, the sense of smell impaired, and there is a disagreeable sensation of pressure in the head. In the more advanced stages, there is a discharge having an offensive odor. If the disease be allowed to continue in its course, thick, hard incrustations will form in the head, the bones of which sometimes become softened and break away in pieces. Why will persons continue to suffer from such an annoying, disgusting disease, when they can just as well be cured of it? Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure the worst forms of Catarrh; in fact, it is the only sure and safe remedy which has yet been offered to the public. Many harsh irritating preparation may, for a time, relieve the urgency of the symptoms, but they do not cure the disease. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is soothing and healing in its effects, and when used in connection with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, according to directions, does not fail to effect a cure. Sold by all Druggists.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE ELIOT ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Circulars, containing advice, requirements, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Examinations to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Models or drawings and any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No delay for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the small great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of securing their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY Applications for Patents, having been successful almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all in need of such aid to go to him for procuring their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

EPISCOPACY vs. PURITANISM.

History of the South Parish.

NO. XII.

BY REV. JAMES DE NORMANDIE.

[Boston Transcript.]

Concluded.

Arthur Browne was one who had caught the missionary spirit, and offered himself to the venerable Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts. He was ordained by the bishop of London in 1729, and designated to an Episcopal church in Providence, R. I. For a little while before leaving he was private secretary of Dean Swift, who, it was surmised, was to be sent as bishop of America. Browne began his work as rector of King's Chapel, in Providence, on the 1st of October, 1730, and remained there until he came to Portsmouth in 1736.

His ministry in Providence was most successful, and his reputation reached to these parts, whither, again and again, he was solicited to come. His parishioners there were greatly attached to him, and gave to him and his heirs a parsonage house and a glebe of about twenty acres; but there is a report that they could not make good their promises for his support, which had some bearing upon his acceptance of the invitation of this church. He came, and was its faithful and popular minister for thirty-seven years. In 1750 he visited England for several months, and was received with marked attentions, and returned to a still greater popularity, diligence and success in his ministrations here. He died while on a visit to Cambridge, on the 10th of June, 1773, at the age of seventy-four years, and was interred in the Wentworth tomb of Queen's Chapel Graveyard. His funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Bass of Newburyport, from the text, "Your fathers, where are they?" in which he says, "This man of God came into our country a young man, soon after entering into holy orders, and for more than forty years, with very little interruption, he labored in the work of the ministry, which he executed with great reputation, having been all along esteemed an excellent preacher and orator, and a faithful parish minister."

The NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE of that date says, "The death of so respectable a pastor must, to his parishioners, be a most afflicting stroke of Providence. His great ability as a divine and eminent preacher is too well known to need an eulogy; and as his moral character, hospitality, generous and universal benevolence were the eminently striking ornaments of his conduct in life—his death is universally lamented by all who had the happiness of his acquaintance. He was an affectionate husband, a tender parent, a generous friend, and a truly pious and honest man."

The bereaved church in a letter to the venerable society, of London, of which he was the faithful missionary, says, "Good conduct, a most able and benevolent disposition, excellent preaching, sound doctrines and good oratory, were qualifications regularly exhibited and ever-conspicuous in our late faithful divine." All the tributes offered to his memory show that Mr. Browne must have been a man of real culture, of unpretentious goodness, and of eminent worth. "His character, talents, and preaching were," says Rev. Dr. Burroughs, "through Providence, eminently influential in giving strength and permanence to this church. His able and faithful care caused its roots to spread far and deep. * * He was a thorough theologian and accurate Scholar. In controversy he held a vigorous pen, and evinced great directness, clearness and logical acumen. He had a highly conscientious mind, which kept him from the two extremes of latitudinarianism and enthusiasm. He was highly respected by all denominations, and is spoken of by those who have seen and heard him, and are rarely surpassed in dignity and influence."

Adams says of him, "Mr. Brown possessed a strong and active mind, improved by education. He was very attentive to his duties as a clergyman, and endeavored to promote the temporal as well as spiritual interest of the people of his charge. He sought for objects of novelty and distress among them, and exerted himself to procure them relief. His sermons were written with classical correctness and delivered with manly eloquence. He was strongly attached to the ceremonies of the Church, and observed them with scrupulous exactness. He claimed some prerogatives as a pastor, which, though usual in the English Church, had never been assumed by the other ministers here. This circumstance rendered him unpopular with the dissenters, and caused them to charge him with bigotry. He was beloved by his parish, who lamented his death."

And it was not owing to his popular gifts and assiduous labors only that his success was so marked. The times were propitious and helpful to second his own and the enthusiasm of a people gathered with all the interest attendant upon the establishment of a new church. The separation of New Hampshire into a distinct government, when every official, if not a member of the Established Church, was an outcast; the influence of the three Wentworths as governors and lieutenant governors favoring the State religion; the increased number of officials, and the officers of the army and navy, all expected, if not compelled, to claim that faith—these things worked together to give great success to Queen's Chapel.

Rev. Mr. Brown was as fortunate in his death as in his labors, for it occurred just as the troubles were gathering with England; and the breaking out of the war promised for a time to crush everything which related to English customs or English worship. The parish, which had enjoyed great prosperity for nearly thirty years, suffered a sudden and almost entire overthrow and extinction, and Episcopacy was reduced to a state almost as low as at the close of the ministry of Gibson, more than a century before, and for nearly twenty-five years after the death of Mr. Brown, the church was almost entirely neglected, or only transiently supplied. Once the parish employed lay readers for nearly a year.

In December, 1786, an invitation was given to Rev. John C. Ogden, of a prominent family in Connecticut, which was accepted, and he remained until 1793. It was during his ministry that the society was incorporated; and the feeling against every approach to or memory of loyalty was so strong that the name was changed from Queen's Chapel to St. John's Church. Perhaps the intense indignation of democracy against every reminiscence of kingly rule made this change of matter of good policy; but the example of the sister parish in Boston, which until this day retains the name of King's Chapel, seems to me worthy of commendation. The events of a disturbed generation in all things social, political and religious, may have made it impossible for any one to have had a successful pastorate in the midst of the prejudice existing at the close of the Revolution against Episcopacy; but that of Ogden was peculiarly unfortunate and unsuccessful. There was a general dissatisfaction on the part of his own parishioners, which diminished his usefulness; he was regarded as a preacher of popular talents, but of excessive bigotry, and found it convenient and necessary to leave after a ministry of seven years.

[In the act of incorporation granted to St. John's Church by the General Court in 1794, the following limit is annexed to the authority given to hold property: "Provided always that the annual income arising from endowments made for the benefit of said church shall not exceed the sum of three hundred pounds—and this shall not be construed to allow said parish to take possession of or recover any glebe lands granted by any governor of the Province of New Hampshire, or lands granted to the society for the propagation of the gospel in foreign parts."]

During a part of the year 1794, Mr. Joseph Willard, a resident graduate of Harvard, officiated on probation so acceptably, that early in 1795 he was invited to settle here, and was admitted to priests' orders in New York in February, and thereafter began his duties at St. John's, and continued as rector without the respect or confidence of a parish becoming enfeebled under his ministry, until 1806, when he resigned, and returned to Newbury. It remained for Rev. Dr. Burroughs, who was invited with unanimity and enthusiasm, to be the minister of the parish in 1809, at the completion of the new church edifice, to restore the parish to a prosperity greater than it had ever known.

On the 24th of December, 1806, early in the morning, a fire broke out in a store on Bow street, and by some burning shingles was communicated to the steeple of St. John's Church, beyond the reach of water from the engines, and the building was a prey to the rapid flames; a few of the valuable gifts to the church being saved, and the records lost. The next day being Christmas, the parishioners of St. John's met in the North Church to celebrate the day; the service was performed by a lay reader, and Rev. Dr. Buckminster of the North Church preached from the text, "Our holy and our beautiful house, where our fathers praised Thee, is burnt up with fire." At that time our parish was without a pastor, the long ministry of Dr. Haven having terminated the year before, and the use of the Old South, before any parish was provided with a chapel, was offered to St. John's; and for a long time the two societies united in public worship, if not in agreement of doctrine, certainly in some harmony of spirit—the same clergyman frequently officiating for both parishes, reading the liturgy one part of the day, and following the simple Congregational order of services for the other.

The proprietors and parishioners of St. John's at once began to gather subscriptions for the erection of a new church, in which they were generously aided by those of other churches, of which the greater in number and amount were from members of this parish; and the new church,—a building of such beautiful proportions and attractive finish as to give little idea of its real size, with a seating capacity only more than half as great as this church—was begun, and the corner-stone laid with great ceremony on Wednesday, the 24th of June, 1807; but the church had no Episcopal consecration until the year 1848, when Dr. Burroughs delivered an historical discourse of marked merit. Two things are to be noted in the building of this church—how generally the early Episcopal element, ignored or denied or berated by the writers of the Bay Colony, has been passed over until late years, even by the Church itself; and how little emphasis has been placed upon the progress of Episcopacy in this part of the country, by a comparison with its low estate immediately succeeding the American Revolution. The extremely feeble condition of the sect in this part of New England is shown by the fact that there was no Episcopal visitation of the Portsmouth parish from the visit of Bishop Seabury in 1791 to 1812. In that year we have the first record of the administration of the rite confirmation. Mr. Burroughs, then in deacon's orders, had been the minister of the parish for three years, yet had never the opportunity of being confirmed. The records show that on the day preceding his admission to the priesthood he received confirmation together with 150 of his congregation; and in order to be ordained as deacon he had been obliged to journey to Philadelphia, where he was ordained in 1809 by Bishop White in St. Peter's Church.

Dr. Charles Burroughs was born in Boston on the 27th of December, 1787, where his early boyhood was passed. He enjoyed and improved the best opportunities of that day for a classical education, in which he made good attainments, and all though life enriched a mind of fair proportions with all the elegant literature of ancient or modern time. He came to Portsmouth as a reader in 1809, and such was his reputation for entering into and rendering the beauty of the Church service, and the entire satisfaction he gave as a writer, that many from other parishes, being occasional listeners, confessed a willingness to remain permanently, if Mr. Burroughs could be induced to take charge of the parish. Under his ministrations, the church reached a high degree of prosperity, and I have heard many in the town and elsewhere speak of the interest with which they went, at stated days of the church's keeping, to listen to the fascination of the doctor's reading and the beauty of his flowing sentences. Among all the distinguished men of Portsmouth in the height of his ministry, Dr. Burroughs was still eminent, for his rare gifts of conversation; for his ample culture; for his elegant hospitality; for his inborn and acquired graces of manner; for his unfailing liberality; for his daily walk in harmony with his altar professions. He was rector until the year 1857, and a citizen with us until the 5th of March, 1868, when he became a fellow citizen with the saints. Since his resignation the church has had five rectors but is at present vacant, and during its whole history has had a most remarkable alternation of satisfaction and dissatisfaction with its rectors—of prosperity and decline.

Daily Chronicle.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1876.

FOR GOVERNOR,

Person C. Cheney,

of Manchester.

FOR RAILROAD COMMISSIONER,

WILLIAM A. PEIRCE,

of Portsmouth.

The Republican Nominations.

Gov. Person C. Cheney is again the republican nominee, with the warm support of every delegate who attended the State convention and every constituent in school district, town and city. The republicans of New Hampshire are fortunate in the selection of their candidates, against whom not a whisper of reproach can be brought. Gov. Cheney has not only won their respect, but has such admirable qualities of head and heart that he has a personal hold on the affections of men that is rarely acquired and retained. Said a Manchester man five years ago when asked why Mr. Cheney was not brought forward for a gubernatorial candidate: "We want to reserve him for emergencies. When the party gets into shoal water and a leader possessed of personal magnetism and winning address is wanted,—when misfortune is likely to overtake us in the contest for candidates and the nomination seek a man, we've got that man. Then and not till then will Person C. Cheney be our candidate." The result has proved as predicted, and the cordial support given the genial Governor is one of the cheerful omens of success in the campaign now opened. His name was brought forward when Weston occupied the gubernatorial chair, and Manchester was to be the battle ground. The circumstances of the times gave him preference over an unexceptionably able and popular candidate in Rockingham county and he led the republicans to success, receiving the largest vote ever cast for a gubernatorial candidate in the State of New Hampshire.

The delegates to the convention were excellent candidates from whom to make a choice for Railroad Commissioner, and it was a matter of repeated mention that the selection of either would not be a mistake. John W. F. Hobbs, Esq., of North Hampton, the unsuccessful candidate, is well known and popular, and the republicans of Portsmouth have repeatedly voted for him in convention and at the polls for responsible offices. He was one of the most efficient County Commissioners ever chosen in old Rockingham, and served with signal ability, acquiring a wide acquaintance and an extensive influence. Mr. William Augustus Pierce, the nominee, is the youngest son of the late Col. Joshua W. Pierce, and is an active business man who though a republican from the start never accepted political office until chosen to the legislature in 1874 and 1875, refusing repeatedly nominations offered him. The republicans of Greenland know how staunchly he stood by them year after year and held that town against the desperate onslaughts of the democracy. The rebellion found him engaged extensively in stock raising in Texas, the large investment being a total loss, the rebel government confiscating the entire amount. Since returning to Portsmouth, Mr. Peirce has been engaged in the commission business and the management of the large estate descending to his father from the days of Champernowne. His nomination will materially strengthen the State ticket.

The Republican Platform.

The republicans of New Hampshire, in convention assembled, declare in regard to national issues:

1. The States are one and indissoluble as a nation: all citizens are equal under the laws and entitled to their fullest protection.

2. Ours is a government of the people, for the people and by the people. The National constitution and the government established under it, the State constitutions and the governments established under them, are the creation of the people in their primary capacity, and supreme in their respective relations.

3. The General Government is bound by the most sacred obligation to preserve a republican government in all the States, and to protect the freedmen of the South in the full, fair and free exercise of every right of citizenship.

4. A just, generous and forebearing policy toward those lately in arms against the integrity of the Union, yet demanding a full recognition, in practice as well as in theory, of the letter and spirit of the Constitutional amendments and all the laws of Congress, made in pursuance thereof.

5. A tariff for revenue, which shall be so adjusted as to be the least burdensome and most favorable to home industry and labor.

6. A currency based on coin, and which shall be made redeemable in coin. Every consideration which affects the Commonwealth demands the speediest possible return to specie payment. An irredeemable currency is a national evil, involving a constant fluctuation in values, placing the earnings of labor in the power of speculators, and working untold demoralization in every department of human endeavors.

7. Regarding as conclusive the President's declaration that he is not a candidate for nomination, and with the profoundest gratitude for his patriotic services in both military and civil life, we reaffirm our unalterable opposition to the election of any President for a third term.

8. That the course of the present Administration in preserving peace with all nations, in liquidating so large a portion of the public debt, in conducting the affairs of the nation with energy, economy and impartial justice, and in exposing and punishing fraud and corruption wherever found, with the determination to "let no guilty man escape," meet with our highest approbation and commands our undivided support.

9. Our free public school system is the bulwark of American liberty. We approve, therefore, the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States declaring that "No money raised by taxation in any State for the support of the public schools, or derived from any public fund therefor, shall ever be placed under the control of any religious sect, nor shall any money so raised ever be divided between religious sects or denominations." We believe it to be the duty of the State not only to maintain the integrity of the common school system, but to do all that is needful so to increase its efficiency as to secure the blessings of a wise and generous education to every child within its borders.

10. That the republicans of New Hampshire earnestly desire a true reconciliation with their brethren in the South, and welcome gladly all assurances that this Centennial year will be made to contribute to that end.

11. That we cherish gratefully the services of our veteran soldiers, and hereby express our unqualified abhorrence of the action of the democratic majority, in the National House of Representatives, in removing from places of employment about the Capitol maimed Union veterans, and filling the vacancies thus made with men whose only claim upon the majority is that they fought to destroy the Union.

12. Prudence and patriotism alike require that the administration of the Government should continue in the hands of the political organization which has always been true to it, and not be given over to the custody of a party which has given ample evidence of its purpose to falsify every profession of loyalty to the amended Constitution and of reform, turning from it by constant defeat.

Touching matters relating especially to our own State this Convention declares: First, that the action of the democratic Council and Governor last June, in the matter of the vacancies in Senatorial Districts II. and IV., was an open and palpable usurpation of power, an overt encroachment of the executive department upon the legislative branch of the Government, and a deliberate subversion of the elective rights of the qualified voters of this State.

2. That we are in favor of a Constitutional Convention having for its object such changes in the Constitution as are required by the progress of the State in population, wealth, intelligence and political ideas.

3. That we hail with unbounded satisfaction the temperance reform movement which is making such wonderful progress in our State, and we hereby express our full and hearty sympathy with this and every other moral reform which will tend to elevate the character and promote the welfare of our people.

4. That in presenting the name of our honored Chief Magistrate, Person C. Cheney, for reelection, we but give expression to the wish of every republican of New Hampshire, and that his honest and upright character, his generous public spirit, his sympathy with every reform that can conduce to the good of the people, and the dignity and capacity with which he has discharged the duties of the office of Governor during the past year, commend him preeminently to the suffrages of the people. We pledge him our undivided support and a triumphant re-election.

5. That in nominating William A. Peirce for Railroad Commissioner we present a candidate eminently qualified for that position and inevery way worthy of our support. To him, we pledge our full party strength.

News and Notes.

The address of Orren C. Moore, Esq., president of the republican State convention, was admirable in every detail and has not been exceeded in point of ability by any person called upon to fulfill the duties of that position in the past twenty years. It was replete with sterling thought and we shall take pleasure in publishing it at an early day. Mr. Moore has rapidly risen to the front rank of editorial writers, and in speech and writing has a convincing style that commands the respect and esteem of his opponents. The address is a masterly effort and will further enhance Mr. Moore's influence. Being cool in counsel, of the strictest integrity, able in debate, and ready in repartee, we regard Mr. Moore as one of the rising young men of the State, and would suggest his transfer to a Congressional career did we regard a seat in the National councils as an especially honorable position.

The unanimous renomination of Governor Person C. Cheney by the republicans of New Hampshire is but a just recognition of his conspicuous merits. His record as a citizen and as a public official is absolutely spotless. His ability, integrity and exalted public spirit have never been questioned by any political opponent and every public act and word of his gives new proof of his fitness for the place he holds.—Globe.

Congress will appropriate $1,500,000 for the Centennial, and the individual who indicates any capability of generating an atomic idea of opposition deserves to be bounced into a "forever obscurity" as a fragment shivered from the mass of matter by contact with the invisible point of a cambric needle.

Even the speech of O. C. Moore, Esq., isn't satisfactory to the Boston Globe, which is an exceedingly dyspeptic sheet when New Hampshire matters are under consideration. Its highest endeavor is to be captious and censorious; its course, unjust to friends and forgetful of foes; its ambition, so eminently "independent" as to be ridiculous. There is every reason to believe that were its management to dictate the speech of the presiding officer of the republican State convention, and that convention's platform, and then subside into forgetfulness of its own doings, it would immediately proceed to review discontentedly its own production and scowl till all was blue over the neglect to provide gum-drops for the children.

The Massachusetts Senate re-elected Dr. George B. Loring for its presiding officer, and the House chose for clerk the jolly George A. Marden, of the Lowell Courier,—a centennial selection that could not be improved on in any of the original thirteen States. It is eminently proper that the Georges should be particularly remembered this year.

United States Naval Paymaster Spaulding has been arrested and confined at Mare Island on orders from Washington. It is supposed that he is charged with complicity in the Pinney frauds.

A man named Metcalf sued the Boston Herald for $10,000 damages for publishing an item in which it was charged that he obtained goods on false pretenses. The trial lasted several days and General Butler was counsel for plaintiff. The jury deliberated nearly all night and finally awarded Metcalf damages to the extent of one dollar. Of course the Herald will immediately suspend publication!

La Page and the jury trying him were taken to Pembroke, the scene of the murder of Josie Langmaid, before the trial commenced, to look over the grounds. La Page was cool and collected.

At the annual meeting of the Montpelier and Wells River Railroad, at Montpelier, Vt., on the 4th, a struggle ensued regarding the possession of 2000 shares of stock held by the town. The crowd rushed upon the stage, coats were torn, hair pulled, windows broken, scenery and pictures pulled down, and seats and benches broken. The clerk of the meeting was chased around the room, but finally escaped with the records.

Cyrus A. Sullloway has been appointed by Andrew H. Young, Collector of New Hampshire Internal Revenue District, Deputy Collector of Hillsborough county, with headquarters at Manchester.

The Salem Post, a democratic sheet, enunciates the doctrine that the giving of preference to Union soldiers is "played out." It is gratifying to witness the grand unmasking of the old element which has been making such dulcet promises.—Lake Village Times.

The mysterious boy at St. Albans has had a trial of wits or intelligence with Col. Crosby of Milford, which resulted in a drawn game. Col. Crosby says he is a Jimmie Blanchard, and the boy says he never saw Crosby before. He appeared frightened and cried a good deal when being questioned. The sheriff told him to tell the truth and he would protect him, and the little fellow looked the sheriff in the face with an air of perfect candor and innocence, and replied: "I have told you the truth; my name is not Jimmie Blanchard, but Charlie Ross. I never lived in Milford. The woman that is coming tomorrow is not my mother, and I never saw the man." A subscription had been taken up to have him carried to Philadelphia, where it was proposed to let him discover Mr. Ross' residence, but on being notified that the Milford woman who claims to be his mother would arrive in St. Albans in a few hours, the matter was postponed. On Thursday, it was ascertained that the woman declined to go to St. Albans and the boy was taken to Milford and thence goes to Philadelphia. The Traveller says: There is another theory in relation to the boy. It is, that he is both the Ross boy and the Blanchard boy, though not in the way that the spiritualists suggests. There is nothing in his appearance indicating that he is the child of the Blanchard man and woman at Milford, though it is evident that he is the boy that has been called their child. It may turn out that he is the Ross boy, and that he was left with the Blanchards by his abductors, and has borne their name.

There being no choice for Senator in York county, Me., the legislature elected Uranus C. Brackett, republican.

Mr. Jacob Barrett, a farmer, of Hinsdale, has been utilizing the spring-like mildness of the holidays in his sugar orchard. Upon tapping some of his maples he was rewarded by a flow of sap, and has made several pounds of excellent sugar.

Col. J. Horace Kent has arrested eight persons at Clinton, Me., charged with pension frauds.

The new city government of Dover has elected Jasper G. Wallace City Marshal and John R. Varney City Solicitor.

The Lighthouse Board is about adopting the use of kerosene oil in lighthouses of the fourth, fifth and sixth order. A lamp for kerosene has been fitted at Faulkner's Island (the second one in the United States,) and has been in operation for over four weeks, showing a much brighter light than one using sperm or lard oil. Funck's hydraulic float lamp is the kind used. Lightkeepers have had much trouble for several years past in keeping their lights going in cold weather with lard oil. With Funck's lamp and good kerosene oil, there will be no trouble in keeping a bright, clear light during the entire night, in the coldest weather.

Hon. Alexander H. Rice was inaugurated as Governor of Massachusetts on Thursday.

Congress.

Congress reassembled after the holiday recess, on the 5th. In the House, Mr. Cason of Indiana, democrat, offered a resolution recognizing the brave and gallant services rendered by the loyal soldiers to the country in the time of the greatest need and peril, and earnestly recommending to the people the utmost care and watchfulness over the rights and interests of these brave men by securing employment for them; that in all cases of public employment (all other things being equal) the soldier shall have the preference of the civilian, and declaring that the House is in favor of giving liberal pensions to deceased and crippled soldiers, their widows and children, and their dependent fathers and mothers. The previous question was seconded, 142 to 9, and the resolution was agreed to amid laughter on both sides of the House.

Mr. Fort, of Illinois, republican, offered a resolution declaring that the doctrine just enunciated by the House in the adoption of the resolution offered by Mr. Cason, of Indiana, is so wise and just that it should be followed by the officers of the House in filling the subordinate places under them, and instructing them in all such cases to give to well qualified Union soldiers the preference over soldiers of the late Confederate army. [Laughter.] He moved the previous question on its adoption. The ex-rebels and their Northern allies voted down the call for the previous question, 103 to 78.

American Ladies.

America is justly proud of her beautiful ladies but how many mar their beauty and lose their health and youth, become prematurely old in appearance by neglecting to take proper care of their teeth. There can be no excuse for this, as SOZODONT, pronounced by all worthy a place between the sweetest lips, can now be had in all civilized countries.

Call and be convinced.

To My Patients and the Public!

I propose to leave Portsmouth about February 1st, for an absence of several months. Will those contemplating or needing my services please give me an early call? Previous to my departure for Europe in 1874, so many of my patients neglected to call until the very last that I was compelled to seek the assistance of a stranger to help me out with my forced engagements. I cannot do so this year. The responsibility rests with my patients after this call.

Theodore Tilton's Lecture.

The attendance at Theodore Tilton's lecture on "The Problem of Life" promises to be large. Mr. Tilton seems to be the most popular lecturer now in the field, and our exchanges all agree in pronouncing the lecture a polished and able effort. In every city where he has spoken thus far his success has been astonishing, the halls being crowded with people. The Manchester Union announces that on the opening of the sale of tickets there, two weeks before the lecture, several hundred reserved seats were disposed of. There seems to be an eagerness on the part of the public to hear this distinguished orator. The New York papers declare that no other lecturer could secure such a reception as he met with in Cooper Institute, where every available standing place was taken. The sale of tickets commences at ten o'clock to-morrow morning at Preston's, and those who wish to secure good seats may as well be present at the opening.

Jottings.

Under existing laws we are to have three elections in Portsmouth the present year; for State officers in March, for city officers in September, for President and Congressmen in November. And citizens arise in the torment of anticipated political agitation, and most profoundly and earnestly yearn for the eternal quietness of the grave.

The following officers of Old Oaken Bucket Division, No. 2, of this city, have been installed: Frank E. Marden, W. P.; Lizzie Burnham, W. A.; Lorenzo T. Burnham, R. S.; Fannie White, A. R. S.; Mrs. Louisa White, F. S.; Freeman Vennard, Treas.; Joseph W. White, Chaplain; Chas. T. Wiggin, Conductor; Miss A. T. Hutchins, A. C.; Mrs. Alvira Brock, I. S.; Mary Boncer, O. S.; Mrs. Holbrook, P. W. P. The Lodge also elected Mr. Frank E. Marden as Representative to the Grand Division.

The Portsmouth Artillery has unanimously elected James T. Fields an honorary member of that organization, with the rank of captain. Capt. Fields' grandfather was one of the first members of this organization.

Col. A. H. Hoyt, formerly of this city, for eight years editor of the Historical and Genealogical Register at Boston, has resigned the position, and will be succeeded by John Ward Dean.

The republican State committee has organized by the choice of the following officers: Chairman, Daniel Hall, of Dover; Secretary, B. F. Prescott, of Epping; Treasurer, John Kimball, of Concord. Executive Committee—E. H. Rollins, of Concord; G. C. Gilmore, of Manchester; J. A. Wood, of Acworth. The members of the committee for Rockingham county are: Elbridge G. Pierce, John Pender, of Portsmouth; Albert H. Varney, of South Newmarket; John D. Ordway, of Hampstead; George C. Gordon, of Salem; William B. Morrill, James M. Lovering, of Exeter; Benjamin F. Prescott, of Epping; Frank P. Cram, of Hampton Falls; Henry H. Titcomb, of East Kingston.

Our exchanges will please notice that the name of the republican candidate for Railroad Commissioner is WILLIAM A. PEIRCE, the E before the I.

The following is understood to be a basis for the settlement of the financial embarrassment of the Eastern railroad, to be proposed to the creditors: The interest on all the liabilities to be calculated at seven per cent. to September 1, 1876, application to be made to the next legislature to allow the road to issue bonds to be secured by a mortgage on the property of the corporation, said bonds to bear interest for the first year at three and one-half per cent., payable in gold, and to be increased to six per cent. The bonds thus issued to be applied to the settlement of the outstanding notes and other indebtedness of the corporation.

Col. J. Horace Kent was selected as one of the secretaries of the republican State convention.

The following officers of St. John's Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons, have been installed: John W. Dame, Master; Thomas J. Mitchell, S. W.; James W. Wingate, J. W.; Isaac Dow, Treasurer; John H. Cheever, Secretary; Matthew T. Betton, S. D.; Robert King, Chaplain; Alfred J. Hill, Marshal; John L. Frisbee, S. S.; John McCombie, J. S.; William B. Randall, Tyler.

Naval Constructor Edward Hartt is detached from the navy yard at Philadelphia and ordered to special duty connected with the Centennial.

A centennial meeting was held by the Board of Trade at the city rooms on the evening of the 5th, at which Col. William H. Sise presided. Speeches were made by Dr. J. F. Hall, Dr. A. P. Stevens and Messrs. Thomas H. Odion, Thos. E. O. Harvin and Alfred Stavers. It was voted to procure and place on file the speeches made on New Year's night at the centennial meeting at the Temple.

There will be a meeting of the creditors of the Eastern Railroad at Melonaon Hall, Boston, to-morrow at eleven o'clock.

Edwin A. Peterson, Esq., of Greenland, is a prominent candidate for the democratic nomination for County Commissioner, and Gershom F. Melcher, Esq., of this city, for that of County Treasurer.

The free-thinkers of this city and vicinity propose to celebrate the centennial of the publication of Tom Paine's eminently American work, "Common Sense," which was written in Philadelphia, and issued Feb. 14, 1776.

A new centennial: The bachelor groom, at a recent wedding of a Portsmouth couple abroad, numbered 67 years, and his maiden bride 33, making just the necessary hundred for the centennial year. As a man and his wife are one, though you can't always tell which one, the new couple are both a hundred years old, don't they? May they live a thousand, and his shadow never be less.

—A man in Rockville, Conn., has sent the following bill to a neighbor:

How the Blood is Filtered.

When the blood contains the acrid elements which produce rheumatism, gout and venereal disorders, the kidneys ought, for it is their office, to filter from the blood, in its passage through them, these hurtful impurities. When they do not, they may be incited to a thorough performance of their duty, and the blood thoroughly depurated by that admirable corrective of organic inactivity, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only is torpidity of the kidneys overcome, through the agency of the Bitters, but digestion is facilitated, bilious tendencies counteracted, and the bowels stimulated to a due discharge of their function, which, in connection with that of the kidneys tends to free the system from the bodily refuse, whose retention is so prejudicial to health.

Children like the taste of Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. It cures their cold and prevents the cough.

For Throat Diseases and Affections of the Chest, "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are of value. For Coughs, Irritation of the Throat caused by cold, or unusual exertion of the vocal organs, in speaking in public, or singing, they produce beneficial results.

It is suicide in the third degree, if not worse, to suffer a cough and cold to culminate in consumption, when a single bottle of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, taken in time would effect a perfect and permanent cure.

"Facts are Stubborn Things."

Thousands of human beings are yearly borne on the swift current of disease down to the grave, just because they do not possess a sufficient knowledge of themselves. A man meets his neighbor, and the first salutation is "How are you?" or "How is your health?" The reply frequently is, "Oh, I am well, with the exception of a cold." Most persons lightly regard a cold. Reader, do you know that a cold is one of the most dangerous of maladies? A cold not only clogs up the pores of the entire system, and reduces circulation, but it is productive of Catarrh, which is quite apt to lead to Consumption. "Oh," you say, "it is nothing but a cold in my head." True, but that cold is really a mild form of Catarrh, and if not arrested in its course will become chronic. Catarrh is one of the most disagreeably offensive affections in the catalogue of diseases. The passage to the nose is obstructed, the sense of smell impaired, and there is a disagreeable sensation of pressure in the head. In the more advanced stages, there is a discharge having an offensive odor. If the disease be allowed to continue in its course, thick, hard incrustations will form in the head, the bones of which sometimes become softened and break away in pieces. Why will persons continue to suffer from such an annoying, disgusting disease, when they can just as well be cured of it? Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure the worst forms of Catarrh; in fact, it is the only sure and safe remedy which has yet been offered to the public. It is a pleasant irritating preparation may, for a time, relieve the urgency of the symptoms, but they do not cure the disease. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is soothing and healing in its effects, and when used with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, according to directions, does not fail to effect a cure. Sold by all Druggists.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries, Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents; attends to reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by sending one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

To Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary fees to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and conscientious followers with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unsolicited proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

PULMONICE.

It Pays! It Pays!
WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer, or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

IT PAYS the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper which is a guarantee that there is some one who cares for intelligence, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN

which has been published weekly for the past thirty years, stands in its sphere beyond that of any other publication, in fact it is the only weekly paper published in the United States devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions and new discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to Mechanics, Industrial Manufactures and Science, Progress of Commerce; Home, With Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions; New Experiments; New Processes; Recipes and Industrial Items of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, on Farming and Gardening, and all the various arts, forming a cyclopedia of Information of New Inventions and Discoveries; containing a weekly record of the Progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Inventions in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics and Science abroad.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the forerunner of all industrial publications for the past Thirty Years. It is the oldest, largest, cheapest, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions, Science and Industrial Progress, published in the World.

The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. And for the shop and house will save many times the cost of subscription.

Merchants, Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Men of Leisure and Professors of Colleges and Schools, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN useful to them: it should have a place in every Family, Office, Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College and School. A new volume commences January 1st, 1876.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several hundred engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved in good binding and as new. Price $3.20 a year by mail, including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars giving full prospectus, with ten engravings, mailed on receipt of 10 cents. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the inventor. Any patented invention may be had in part or whole, to persons attracted to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, containing Laws and Decisions relating Patents. A bound volume containing the Patent Laws, Census of the U. S., and 142 Engravings of mechanical subjects, sent for 25 cents.

Notices of the Press.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by its droll and pretty illustrations, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to pateffamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the literary enjoyment it affords.—Evening Post.

In its sphere there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and equips, are all invigorating to the mind.—Chicago Evening Journal.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the fact of the first lot sent over their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of these were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 5, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have been out of work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. A friend urged me to try your pills, I took my wife, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Boston papers, and I was induced to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured your pills for myself and family, and they have proved well cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars in Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills safely, and they have proved to be wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have sold many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said he was cured by your pills after a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Evangelical. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Your pills have done me more than a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop and tie my shoes. Some friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Stomach, and I recommended her pills to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think their merit must be known to everyone who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Dyspepsia Cured, Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockingham, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. Inclosed $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

THE CENTENNIAL PARTY AND ITS CENTENNIAL DUTIES.

An Address Delivered by O. C. MOORE, Esq., before the New Hampshire republican state Convention, held at Concord, Jan. 5, 1876.

Gentlemen of the Convention:

In a year that signalizes one of the most momentous events in the history of the human race, it would be unpardonable in any man to address his fellow citizens as partisans, even on a political occasion like this. A hundred years ago there were no hostile parties of republicans and democrats, in in this State or country. The first year of hostilities between the British and Americans had been followed by a winter of inactivity. Sir William Howe held the town and harbor of Boston in complete subjection. From the Mystic river on the left to the heights of Dorchester on the right stretched the lines of General Washington's besieging army. Up through the pathless forests of Maine Arnold was making his toilsome march to the succor of the intrepid Montgomery and ill-starred assault on Quebec. All hope of peace had fled. The last appeal of the Continental Congress had been treated with contempt by the British King, Parliament and Ministry. Trade with the Colonies had been prohibited. The capture of American merchantmen had been authorized. The employment of German mercenaries to aid in crushing the American rebels had been determined on, and already 25,000 veterans had been sent across the Atlantic to fill up the gaps made at Lexington, Concord and Bunker Hill. The colonies were girding themselves for the deadly struggle which was now inevitable. Already a declaration of independence had been proclaimed in North Carolina, and was finding a responsive echo in Virginia, in Pennsylvania, in New York, and throughout New England. A sentiment of hostility to British aggression animated all true American hearts, and the feeling was fast kindling into a flame that was soon to wrap the thirteen colonies in one common and irresistible struggle for liberty and independence. The men who lived among these Granite Hills one hundred years ago were facing a dread alternative. They were launched into a war with the most powerful of civilized nations. Defeat was ruin. Success was possible only after a long and perhaps ruinous struggle. Inspired however by that love of liberty and courage to maintain it which are the inheritance of the great English speaking people, they said, with nearly one accord, we will give farms and stocks, we will toil and we will sacrifice, we will fight and we will die, if need be, to establish on this continent "a government of the people, by the people, for the people."

Five and eighty years pass. The thirteen feeble and struggling colonies have become thirty-three rich and powerful States. Thirty-one millions of people have succeeded to three millions. Wealth that was counted in millions is now only calculable in billions. The unknown power has become one of the first powers among nations. Our flag floats respected in every sea. The overflowing bounty of our mines and fields is feeding and enriching half the world. Just as we had reached the pinnacle of national prosperity and greatness came the demand that the stone which the builders rejected should be made the corner stone of the temple. It was an insolent and wicked demand. "The time has come now," said a noble son of New Hampshire—(blessed be the memory of Henry Wilson!)—"to organize the republican party." The republican party was organized to combat the aggressions of slavery by peaceful means. It sought its ends only through free thought, free speech, free soil, a free press, and a free ballot. For five years it made the fight on a battle-field stretching from Maine to Kansas, and when the night of November 6th, 1860, closed on the combatants it was master of the field, and Abraham Lincoln was President elect of the United States. Fairly beaten at the ballot-box, the slave power rushed to arms. It had a powerful ally in the incapacity and treachery of the Buchanan Administration. It had a great advantage also in the fact that the republican party had only been organized to oppose slavery by the ballot; but in six months from the assault on Sumter, the States that had given their electoral vote to Mr. Lincoln had half a million men in arms to sustain him. The republican party was put on a war footing. It sustained the government. It encouraged the soldiers. It never faltered in support of any measure that would render the prosecution of the war more vigorous and the triumph of liberty and union more certain. Ninety years pass, and the attempt to destroy the work of the fathers has failed. The Union is still undivided, and the stone which the builders rejected has been excluded from the temple altogether. No slave treads the soil of America. Every State is in its appointed place. The law knows no color. Reconstruction proceeds, perhaps sometimes mistakenly, but it proceeds. Treason is nowhere punished; it is nowhere made odious. The broadest magnanimity characterizes the victors. Political disabilities are removed, one after another, until there are no more to be removed. One hundred years have passed, and the republic, swelled to thirty-eight imperial States, is prepared to enter on a new career of prosperity and greatness, and to be a genuine exemplar to that humanity which is everywhere in the old world breaking the withes of despotism and struggling up to self-government.

We stand to-day in the radiant dawn of our country's second century. We know that the thick clouds which ushered in the first century passed and left a sky illumined by the sun's full glory. We saw the clouds and storm which gathered above that century's close. We recall the days, the months, the weary years of toil, sacrifice and patient waiting for that storm to spend its force and break away. Thanks to the patriotism of the people, the valor of our soldiers, and the protecting care of the God of battles and of nations, the clouds are gone, the storm has spent its force, and the fabric of our republican government and institutions lifts itself among the nations in stronger and grander proportions than ever before. Confronting this new century of our country's existence we are aware that its responsibilities must be met and its achievements won by men and parties that belong to itself. We accept the condition. If the republican party cannot meet the new want, how vain to expect the democratic party to meet it, which is a party of the dead past, and which ought to have ended its mission with the extinction of the slave power which it served so long and was so loth to give up. If the democratic party claims that it has abandoned its old positions, and is now prepared to grapple with vital and living issues, we say that the republican party, having conquered in every position that it has taken for twenty years, is not only prepared but it has already moved to new positions which it intends to maintain. There is a vast difference between the two parties in this respect. The republican party goes to its successive positions as a conqueror—as Grant went from Donelson to Vicksburg, from Vicksburg to Chattanooga, from Chattanooga to Appomattox. The democratic party is whipped into every position which it successively takes up. From the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia to its abolition in the Nation; from the crushing of the rebellion to the work of reconstruction; from arming the loyal black man with the ballot and withholding it not from the disloyal white man; from the issue of legal tenders to save the life of the nation in time of war to the withdrawal of those legal tenders to save its credit in time of peace, the democratic party has at first opposed, been whipped, and then unconditionally surrendered. And this is the party that says the republican party is a party of the past, that it has finished its course, and should now give way to the fresh and invincible democratic party to carry this country forward to its lofty destinies.

I said, if the republican party cannot meet the new demands upon it it ought to give way to a new party. What are those demands, and how is the republican party meeting them? Those demands are—

1. The maintenance of the spirit as well as the letter of the Constitutional amendments.

2. The inviolability of the public faith, and the adoption of effectual measures for securing specie payments in accordance with the pledge of the United States government to resume on the first day of January, 1879.

3. A reduction of the cost of government to the lowest point consistent with the efficiency of all branches, a rigid economy in all expenditures, and the strict accountability of all officials.

4. The elevation of the civil service by the rejection of all candidates whose character and record are not a guaranty that they will serve the public with clean hands and adequate ability.

5. A free unsectarian common school education for every child of the republic, and the compulsory attendance of all children between the ages of six and sixteen for at least six months in a year.

THE BALLOT THE ONLY GUARANTY OF EQUAL RIGHTS.

1. While it is a cause for general congratulation that no party now calls in question and but few men deny the validity of the constitutional amendments, it should never be forgotten that until those amendments become firmly established in experience they will not be safe. The promises of politicians, the platforms of parties, even the plain provisions of constitutions can be broken as well as kept. The recent history of this country and a recent event in this State furnish striking illustrations of this truth. After all it is the spirit quite as much as the letter of those amendments in which we are vitally interested. The ballot was conferred on the black man for his protection and that the white man might read in the badge of his citizenship the mighty fact that slavery is dead and all men are equal. The ballot alone makes all men equal. Deprive the black man of that, or prevent his free exercise of it, and you have already reduced him to a pariah class. Until the ballot flutters from the black man's hand as freely as from the white man's, the constitutional amendments are but little better than waste paper. Until their spirit as well as letter is observed the work of the republican party is not secure. The black man instinctively reasons that in the continued ascendency of the republican party he has a stronger guaranty of protection than he has in the Constitution itself.

INVIOLABILITY OF THE PUBLIC FAITH.

11. "Credit is a power which may grow," says an eminent authority, "but cannot be constructed. Those who live under a great and firm system of credit must consider that if they breakup that one they will never see another, for it will take years upon years to make a successor to it." In whose keeping has been the vast system of credit of this government for the past ten years? Who has maintained its inviolability at all times and under all circumstances? Not the democratic party certainly. Not a year of the last ten has passed but that party, at some point or under some guise, has attacked the public credit: Now it is the muffled voice of repudiation. Now it is the open declaration that the bonds shall be paid in greenbacks. And now it is the bold demand, coming from the democracy of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Indiana, that the policy of resumption shall be stopped, the National Bank system swept out of existence, and the nation launched upon a shoreless sea of irredeemable paper money. With such an insidious and powerful enemy constantly threatening the public credit, it is a matter of wonder as well as congratulation that our credit has continued to grow until it has become firm enough to allow of the funding of a quarter of the public debt at a saving of five millions in interest annually. When that great measure was entered upon it was derided by the democracy, and the leading organ of that party in New England contemptuously declared that "the new loan is doomed to be a failure." But firm as the public credit has become, it is perhaps in greater peril to-day than ever before. It has but just escaped a severe shock in the Fall elections to meet another in the conflict for carrying out the measures necessary for attaining resumption by January 1st, 1879. Those measures the very able Secretary of the Treasury has indicated with great force and clearness. They are, in brief, the reduction of expenditures so as to give an increased revenue; the accumulation of gold; the monthly retirement of two millions of legal tenders; the funding of a portion of the legal tenders in a long four per cent. bond, and the abolition of the legal tender act after January 1st, 1877. Until something better is suggested, the Secretary's plan is the republican plan, and the party will give it a cordial support. And what will the democratic party do? It it follows its own precedents it will oppose the plan until it succeeds; then it will "accept the situation," and then with a coolness that would chill an iceberg, it will ask the country to take the control of the finances from the republicans and give it to them. Whatever else the country may do it will never do that if it will but burn into its memory the lesson that is written in the financial disasters of all his tory: "Those who live under a great and firm system of credit must consider that if they break up that one they will never see another."

(Conclusion to-morrow.)

Untruthful James.

Jimmie Blanchard, alias Charlie Ross, has been taken home to Milford, and says that he went to St. Albans and other places because he enjoyed it; he did it for fun, and he would do so again when he wanted a good suit of clothes. He was afraid to go home, but he knew his parents would forgive him for his freak. They knew he was able to take care of himself. His presence in the Pullman car of course caused considerable stir and interest among the passengers. The boy was the centre of attraction, the ladies especially paying him more than ordinary attention. One lady with characteristic enterprise asked him for his autograph, when he looked up archly and with a peculiar curl of his lip asked, "Which one, Charlie Ross or Jimmy Blanchard?" The story was the subject of conversation all through the train, and when it became known that he had confessed, the passengers came in crowds to get a glance at him. When he arrived, he was taken to the Tremont House, where he was identified by Mr. Charles L. Wallace. A Mr. Gillis said, "You fooled St. Albans people nicely." The boy said, "Yes, sir." Other questions were put and he answered them satisfactorily, establishing beyond a doubt his identity as Jimmie Blanchard. On being questioned about his knowledge of localities in Philadelphia he said that he had gathered the information from various sources. He knew the family of Mr. Hall Stanton, because they used to spend the summer at Mount Vernon, about five miles from his father's house, and he had became acquainted with the children. From them he had learned a good deal. Mrs. Stanton he had never seen, but his mother had a picture of her at home, and so he could give a pretty accurate idea of her appearance. He will go home to his father's house and may be expected to remain at home for about three months, unless he accepts the offer of Mr. Rugg to become his adopted child. In that case he will go back with Mr. Kempton and make his home in St. Albans.

News and Notes.

In the House, Thursday, Mr. Rea, of Missouri, offered a resolution expressing as the opinion of the House that the contraction of currency in the manner and to the extent carried on has been detrimental to the business of the country, and that, in the present financial condition of the country, no further contraction ought to be had. On this the previous question was demanded. The House, by a vote of 64 to 122, refused to second the demand, the republicans voting in the negative, while a large majority of the democrats abstained from voting at all.

The official vote of Maine gives Connor, republican, a majority of 4061, for Governor.

Moses Sawyer, who was tried for the murder of Mrs. Emerson, of Piermont, last May, will have another trial, commencing Feb. 1, at Plymouth. Sawyer is looking well and has a good appetite, but not a word will he utter to any one, not even to the jailer, and will only reply by the shake of the head to any questions put to him in regard to what he wants to eat and drink. He will not ask for a fire, but will remain without it rather than ask for it. He seems to be rather morose, and it is plain to see that the trouble is wearing upon him exceedingly.

Hon. Charles E. Bartlett, of Great Falls, has in his possession a copy of the new testament printed in Exeter, in 1745. On its title page it reads: "Printed at request of Henry Randlett, Thomas Odiorne, Jr., Samuel Parker and William Stearns. To be read in churches."

A Boston Herald dispatch says: The painful news is abroad that Grant has cooled toward Babcock. The President does not express his firm belief in Bab's angelic innocence any more. The Secretary stays around the White House, but Grant has no use for him any more. Babcock is known to be in a very nervous state of mind about his trial. There is really no reason to believe that he will be acquitted, because the case against him is much stronger than has been made public.

Advices of a terrible catastrophe on the Island of Reunion, in the Indian Ocean, have been received. It was caused by the falling of an immense rock. Sixty-five people were buried, nearly all of whom were instantly killed, and at the latest accounts it was impossible to extricate the unfortunate victims, some of them being still alive.

On Christmas eve the Cuban insurgents attacked, captured and burned the fort and town of Fernandina De Jagua, at the mouth of the harbor of Cienfuegos. Only twenty men were on duty at the fort, the balance having been granted leave to join in the festivities of the village. At 7 P. M., about 200 rebels rode into the village and began sacking the stores. The soldiers started for the fort. The Commandant, Ripall, was killed near the fort, also about fifteen soldiers, and the rest made prisoners. The rebels having with another detachment of about 200 men captured the fort, while the other party sacked the town, burned or carried off everything valuable they could find in the village and fort. Seventy-five of the garrison are missing; seven rebels were killed; they left town at 2 A. M., having impressed all horses, mules and carts they could find to carry off their booty.

The treasury department is about to look over the books of the railroads and see how much is due the government for taxes that occurred between Sept. 1, 1863, and Dec. 31, 1871. Competent experts will be detailed to make examinations, and the proceedings will be as sudden and unexpected as was the recent warm weather. Railroads that have borrowed money with which to pay dividends will either have to make a bad showing to their stockholders or pay a round tax to the government.

A correspondent of the Newburyport Herald, pertinently says that it looks strangely to see the long haired sons of the South in honorable positions around the House of Representatives. Who would have believed when Lee surrendered, that in ten years the passport to favor for a position under the gift of the U. S. House of Representatives, would be the fact of having been in rebellion against the very government they are now serving? Who would have believed that men who have lost their limbs while fighting, would be removed to give place to men who were in open arms against the same government?

The democrats of the House is making a great effort to demonstrate to the people their capacity for reform. They propose to economize. They insist on a reduction of expenses in every department of the National Government, but bills have been introduced for the relief of Southerners amounting to $70,000,000, which it is proposed to pay from the Treasury of the United States.

Thirty-five indictments were presented by the grand jury at Manchester, and the following sentences were announced: Wm. Cunningham and Patrick Moran, to the State Prison for five years, for breaking and entering; Frank P. Webster, to the State Prison for three years and six months, for larceny; Joseph Harrison, to jail two months, fornication; Abbie F. Archibald, State Prison for three years, larceny; Joseph Greenwood, State Prison for three years and six months, larceny; Ernest Knight, to the State Prison for three years and six months, for larceny; Annie Adams, House of Correction for six months, larceny; James Labey, alias James Deering, assault with intent to kill, State Prison for nine years; Edward Kirby, State Prison for three years and six months, for larceny; Charles Mellen, State Prison for four years, for forgery.

Mayor Cobb calls the attention of Bostonians, in his annual message, to the Centennial of the Evacuation of Boston by the the British on March 17 next, and suggests a suitable municipal celebration of it.

Mr. J. M. Sears, the Yale student who is heir to a $9,000,000 estate in Boston, cannot come into full control of the property until he is 40 years of age. Till that time he will have an income of $10,000 a year.

The movement for abolition of the marine corps gains strength. It costs $1,000,000 per annum, should be carried on much cheaper, but is a very necessary branch of the service.

The New Haven Union doesn't like the hard money platform on which New Hampshire republicans stand, and says: If the democrats of New Hampshire expect to win they must denounce the hard-money policy set forth. Otherwise they will have no ground of opposition.

The New York Tribune thinks Mr. Blaine scores one in getting the approval of the New Hampshire convention for his constitutional amendment.

The resolutions adopted by the republicans in State convention are almost the entire work of the accomplished editor of the Concord Monitor, Mr. William E. Stevens. They meet with the hearty approval of all honest men.

The Senate committee on elections agreed, by five against two, to report that it is within the constitutional power of the Senate to elect a new President pro tem. at the present time if the majority of the Senators desire it. The committee make no recommendation, however, as to the advisability of exercising this power. The report is concurred in by Senators Morton, Wadleigh, Mitchell, Cameron, of Wisconsin, and McMillan (all republicans). Senators Cooper and Merrimon (democrats) dissent from its conclusions.

ASTRONOMICAL FEATURES OF '76

The astronomical features of 1876, are of sufficient interest to justify mention. The year will contain 366 days, of which fifty-three will be Sundays. April 9 will be Easter Sunday, being the first Sunday following the passage of the sun through the vernal equinox. There will be four eclipses in 1876—two of each luminary. First.—A partial eclipse of the moon in the night following March 9, visible from every part of the United States and Canada, if weather permit. At the middle of the eclipse 0.3 of the moon's diameter will be in the shadow. Second.—An annular eclipse of the sun March 25. The annular phase will be visible on this continent only at places very near a line from Vancouver's Island to the northwest shore of Hudson's Bay. It will be visible, as a partial eclipse, from all parts of the United States and Canadas outside that limit, except in Florida. Third.—A partial eclipse of the moon at 3:30 P. M., of September 3, not visible on this continent. Fourth.—A total eclipse of the sun at half-past 4 o'clock in the afternoon of September 17, not visible to any part of the American continent. The sun will rise eclipsed to the eastern half of Australia, and the phenomenon will be visible from a large part of the South Pacific and Antarctic Ocean, the limit of the partial phase passing very near the South Pole.

Venus will be an evening star till July 14, and rise before the sun during the remainder of the year. Mars will be an evening star till August 12, the date of his conjunction with the sun, when both will be in conjunction with Uranus and nearly in opposition to Saturn. He will rise before the sun for the remainder of the year. Jupiter will be the morning star till May 17, the date of his opposition to the sun, and an evening star from that date till December 4, when he will be in conjunction with the sun and Mercury. Saturn will set after the sun till February 17, the date of conjunction. From that time he will rise before the sun till August 27, when he will be on the meridian at midnight, and will be an evening star during the last four months of the year. Uranus will be on the meridian at midnight of February 6; and in conjunction with the sun August 12. He will be just visible to the naked eye on fine evenings, in the Spring and early Summer months. Neptune will be on the meridian at midnight October 26. His right ascension at that date will be 2 hours 9 minutes, and north declination 11 degrees 6 minutes—nearly on the line from Hamal to Menkar. He cannot be seen except through the telescope.

OCCULTATIONS.—February 3.—From 3:40 P. M. to about 11:30 P. M., the moon being near her first quarter, will pass over the Pleiades, occulting in succession all the prominent members of the group except one. She will again pass through the Pleiades November 2, from 11 to 12:26 in the evening, occulting three of the six that are ordinarily visible. February 17.—About 4:40 A. M. the moon will occult a star of the third magnitude, known as Pi. in Scorpio. August 6.—At 9:50 P. M., the moon being near the full, will occult the planet Saturn; and again at 2 o'clock in the morning of September 3. December 4.—At 10 P. M. the moon will occult Gamma in Cancer, of the fourth magnitude.

—Walter Phelps can make a good speech on the smallest provocation. His last was over the new insane asylum of New Jersey, and these are among the things he said: You have built the largest asylum in the world, and in building it you have added a new topic to the patriotic citizen. We shall say you spent two millions of dollars, and never stole a cent. They will believe it in Jersey. It will be incredible in New York. And the victim of New York legislation will retort, "Then your commissioners will be the first occupants of the insane asylum they have built." And if they ask how it really happened, tell them, "You choose Tweeds, Sweenys, and Connollys for your trustees—we chose the Lathrops, Vanderpools and Haiseys." (Applause.) Do you wonder why Tweed ran when he did? He might have gone before. When he called on Mrs. Tweed that day, she told him Judge Lathrop had finished on the hills of Morris, a public building three times as large as his court house for one-sixth of the price. The hardened Tweed groaned and fled. (Applause.) Now, how shall we fill the asylum? Disappointed ambition won't help. If defeat in politics could take either sanity or life, what a collection have we here of well dressed maniacs! What a crowd of lively corpses! (Laughter.) Halsey was disappointed, and was not elected governor. Look at him smiling there; is he insane? Cutler was disappointed, and was elected Congressman. I wish he was insane. But he doesn't look it. Will disappointed love? No! Jersey has a woman for every man. And my young friend, if one has jilted you, go to the next and say: "There are maidens of Jersey more lovely by far who would gladly be bride to this young Lochinvar." Will happy Jersey ever fill these cells? Ask the future. Tell me where are the missing Pleiades? Where are the lost books of Livy? Who can tell if Grant wants a third term? Who can tell how Blaine lost the Foster letter? (Great laughter.)

—The wealth of Liverpool and its citizens may be inferred by the sums bequeathed by a few leading men who have died during the past twelve months. Eight of these gentlemen have made bequests amounting in the aggregate to upward of $20,000,000, viz: Robert Gladstone, $1,750,000; James Houghton, $2,500,000; Richard Houghton, $2,500,000; Charles Turner, M. P., $3,500,000; James Tyur, $1,000,000; R. L. Jones, $1,750,000; J. J. Rowe, $2,000,000, and H. Dawson, $7,500,000.

—A countryman purchased a new hat at a Burlington store last week, leaving his old one with the merchant, who kicked it under the counter. The next day the countryman returned, and after a search among the rubbish found the old tile and turning down the band pulled out a fifty-dollar bill, quietly remarking, "I came pretty near forgetting where I put that money."

—Danbury News—The sheriff of New York appears to be anxious to find Tweed. We can tell him how to do it. Let him pour a little water into the palm of his left hand and strike it with the forefinger of the other hand. In the direction the most water spurts Tweed can be found. It is a simple plan, but it never fails.

—Punch—"March of Refinement," 1875—Brown (behind the age, but hungry)—"Give me the bill of fare, waiter." Head waiter—"Beg pardon, sir?" Brown—"The bill of fare." Head waiter—"The what, sir? Oh!—ah!—yes!—[to subordinate]—Chawles, bring this—this—a—gentleman—the menoo!"

—It is a notable fact, and will probably be confirmed by the observation of others, that of the hundreds of men who made their thousands and tens of thousands of dollars in questionable ways during and after the war, very few of them are now wealthy and prosperous, while others have been reduced almost to pauperism.

American Ladies.

America is justly proud of her beautiful ladies but how many mar their beauty and lose their health and youth, become prematurely old in appearance by neglecting to take proper care of their teeth. There can be no excuse for this, as SOZODONT, pronounced by all worthy a place between the sweetest lips, can now be had in all civilized countries.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse." CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.)

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. E. G. PIERCE, Jr., P. M.

Death of Henry C. Walker, Esq.

It is with sadness we announce the sudden decease of Henry C. Walker, Esq., only son of the late Horton D. Walker, which occurred at his residence on Elm street, under circumstances that are peculiarly distressing, Mrs. Walker being absent from the house at the time. About ten o'clock, he left his office and went home, paid his help and went up to his room, intending to return, and some minutes afterward was heard to groan by the domestic, who found him senseless, lying across the bed. Calling Mr. Dunbar, all efforts to bring him to consciousness failed, and Mrs. Walker was sent for. She hastened home, having the impression that her child was ill, and found her husband dead.

Mr. Walker had suffered for years with inflammatory rheumatism, but had been greatly relieved of late. He was present as a delegate at the republican State convention at Concord two days before his death, and took an active part. The friend who occupied the same room with him, on awakening in the morning, noticed that he was very pale, and thought at first he had died during the night. Springing from bed and bending over him, he found that he was breathing, and thought nothing more of the circumstance. Mr. Walker attended the ladies' leap year ball on the night before his death. His physician attributes his sudden decease to neuralgia of the heart. He was a Knight Templar and prominent in Masonic movements. Like his estecmed father, he was a member of the legislature at the time of his death, being chosen for the first time last March. He had filled various public offices in ward and city with credit and satisfaction to his constituents. He was also a member of the school board and is the second who has died since its organization, last September. He was the sole survivor of the firm of S. Cleaves & Son, the business having passed into his management on his father's death. He leaves a wife and two children in very comfortable circumstances, having acquired considerable property. His life was insured for $3000 and his heirs will receive $1200 from the Rockingham and Strafford county Masonic relief societies, of which he was a member.

Mr. Walker's friends were legion, and the grief of his bereaved widow is shared by every school-mate, friend and acquaintance whose pleasure it was to know and esteem him. He was possessed of a never-failing fund of humor, and his genial disposition made him a favorite companion. His sudden decease is a shock that will be widely felt and sorrowfully remembered. Enemies, he had none, and no man of his years has passed from among us more universally beloved or respected. "Green be the turf above thee," friend of our earlier years.

Jottings.

Eighty tons of ice for Mr. Geo. A. Perkins came down over the P. & D. R. R. a few days ago. Some careless individual left the car doors open over night and the wind bored air holes through it until it was ruined for storage purposes and had to be dumped into the mill pond.

Sermon at the Bow Mission, Sunday evening, by Rev. J. A. Goss, at six o'clock.

A tramp entered the residence of Ex-Gov. Goodwin on Friday and stole therefrom two coats and a cape. George Hersey discovered and corraled him, and Sam. Horton jugged him.

The old President Cutts burial lot at the corner of Green street, has been sold by the city to Thomas E. Call, Esq., for $400.

Theodore Tilton's success this season is remarkable. In the little town of Mt. Morris, Ill., where the entire adult population numbers but three hundred, the committee engaging Mr. Tilton, after paying him a fee of $175, made a clear profit of $517 on a single lecture. People went for miles in every direction, and many could not gain admittance to the hall but were obliged to return home disappointed. The sale of tickets commences this morning at ten o'clock at Preston's

The subject of the lecture in the Universalist church next Sunday evening by the pastor will be, "The Morality of Married Life."

As usual, the Portsmouth delegates to the County Convention seem determined, judging from common report—to present two or more citizens as candidates for County Commissioner, and thus almost certainly lose all chance, of our city being represented on the Board so important to its interests. Who so eminently fit for the position as Judge Bufford?

Mr. Edward P. Sherburne has resigned his position as Principal of the Haven school, having accepted a similar position at Manchester.

Portsmouth has only four city paupers at the City Farm, and it costs about five thousand dollars a year to run the farm, besides all the income from it. Whether it is more for the interest of the city or the democratic party, that this should continue thus, judge ye, taxpayers.

At the temperance meeting, at S. O. T. Hall Thursday evening, each person who came forward and signed the pledge received a button-hole bouquet—to the number of about seventy. Better, far better, such flowers as these, than toddy-blossoms.

On Monday evening, the 3d inst., about ninety of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Allen A. Rand assembled at their residence on Pleasant street, to celebrate the tenth anniversary of their marriage. The presents were numerous, and speeches, singing and a bountiful supper followed.

A seal sunning himself on a cake of ice in Great Bay a few days ago was shot by Albert Smith and Walter Shute of Newmarket. He weighed sixty-eight pounds.

The homestead of the late Nathan W. Barker of Stratham was sold at auction a few days ago to Nathaniel Wiggin, of Greenland, for $2950. Mr. Barker refused $5000 a few years ago.

Says the Nashua Telegraph: The nomination of Mr. William A. Peirce of Portsmouth for Railroad Commissioner was a merited compliment to a gentleman who was brought forward with enthusiasm by his own fellow citizens. He is a young man of high character, strong influence, and great popularity in his own section. He makes a worthy associate for Governor Cheney, and both together make up a ticket that will command as it richly merits the united and enthusiastic support of the entire republican and independent vote of the State.

Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett is to lecture before the Kittery Lyceum on Monday evening, Jan. 10th.

A meeting of the friends of temperance interested in the formation of a Portsmouth Temperance Reform Club, will be held at the Temple on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, to hear the report of a committee appointed to nominate officers for such a club. Remarks will be made by reformed men from Dover and elsewhere, clergymen and others. All are cordially invited. A contribution will be taken up to pay expenses.

How the Blood is Filtered.

When the blood contains the acrid elements which produce rheumatism, gout and venereal disorders, the kidneys ought, for it is their office, to filter from the blood, in its passage through them, these hurtful impurities. When they do not, they now be incited to a thorough performance of their duty, and the blood thoroughly depurated by that admirable corrective of organic inactivity, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only is torpidity of the kidneys overcome, through the agency of the Bitters, but digestion is facilitated, bilious tendencies counteracted, and the bowels stimulated to a due discharge of their function, which, in connection with that of the kidneys tends to free the system from the bodily refuse, whose retention is so prejudicial to health.

It is suicide in the third degree, if not worse, to suffer a cough and cold to culminate in consumption, when a single bottle of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, taken in time would effect a perfect and permanent cure.

"Facts are Stubborn Things."

Thousands of human beings are yearly borne on the swift current of disease down to the grave, just because they do not possess a sufficient knowledge of themselves. A man upsets his whole labor, and the first inquiry is "How are you?" or "How is your health?" The reply frequently is, "Oh, I am well, with the exception of a cold." Most persons lightly regard a cold. Reader, do you know that a cold is one of the most dangerous of maladies? A cold not only clogs up the pores of the entire system, and retards circulation, but it is productive of Catarrh, which is quite apt to lead to Consumption. "Oh," you say, "it is nothing but a cold in my head." True, but that cold is really a mild form of Catarrh, and if not arrested in its course will become chronic. Catarrh is one of the most disagreeably offensive affections in the catalogue of diseases. The passage to the nose is obstructed; the sense of smell impaired, and there is a disagreeable sensation of pressure in the head. In the more advanced stages, there is a discharge having an offensive odor. If the disease be allowed to continue in its course, thick, hard incrustations will form in the head, the bones of which sometimes become softened and break away in pieces. Why will persons continue to suffer from such an annoying, disgusting disease, when they can just as well be cured of it? Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure the worst forms of Catarrh; in fact, it is the only sure and safe remedy which has yet been offered to the public. Many harsh irritating preparations may, for a time, relieve the urgency of the symptoms, but they do not cure the disease. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is soothing and healing in its effects, and when used with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, according to directions, does not fail to effect a cure. Sold by all Druggists.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children, by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its useful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In no way there is anything like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and sparkle, are all invigorating to the mind.—Chicago Evening Journal.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from or a disordered state of the Blood!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package returned for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the testimonials are astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have spent my money freely. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I thought I had tried the last medicine I should try, but which discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package of Pills felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done more for me than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package for my wife, and she finds great benefit herself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send me another package." All told me they were good, they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia, so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and am much better. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would gladly pay that for them if I knew I could, by this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. H. LEONARD.

Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also with Liver and Kidney Complaint, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have spent much money, and a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer on to the wind up of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you the April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well night, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My kidneys suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them, if I think the most prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockdale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

THE CENTENNIAL PARTY AND IT CENTENNIAL DUTIES.

An Address Delivered by O. C. MOORE, Esq., before the New Hampshire Republican State Convention, held at Concord, Jan. 5, 1876.

[Concluded.]

REDUCING THE COST OF GOVERNMENT.

III. Much has been accomplished in the past ten years in reducing the cost of government, and much more remains to be accomplished. Ten years ago the ordinary cost of the National government was $520,809,416.00. The net cost of the year ending June 30, 1875, was $274,603,392 making an average annual reduction of $24,618,602. In the same period, the taxes imposed by the government, chiefly by customs duties and internal revenue, have been reduced from $558,032,620 to $283,000,000, an average annual reduction of $27,000,000. For the same period the public debt has been reduced one fifth or $540,000,000, and the annual interest from $143,000,000 to $103,000,000. No such results were ever before achieved by any government in so short a period. These few salient facts utterly demolish the charge of extravagance and corruption which the opponents of republican administration indulge in so audaciously. They ought to know on general principles that no government could accomplish such financial results as ours has in the last ten years without being both ably and honestly administered. Contrast the course of our financial management with that of Great Britain, which began with a debt of a million pounds in 1693, and in 1713, at the conclusion of the war with Louis the Fourteenth, it had increased to fifty millions. Another war carried it to eighty millions, and still another to one hundred and forty millions. The war with our American colonies added another hundred millions. The wars which sprang from the French revolution and the long contest with Napoleon, carried the debt up to eight hundred millions, and in the sixty years that have since elapsed it has only been reduced some $270,000,000, or one-half of the amount that the debt of the United States has been reduced in one sixth of the time. But as great as has been the reduction in our debt and taxation, there is room for further improvement, by refusing all subsidies, by cutting off all appropriations not absolutely necessary, by a rigid economy, and by a strict accountability on the part of every official. The necessity for economy in all the expenditures of government demands a vigilance like that of Napoleon, who found time amid the whirl of his vast affairs to examine in detail the claims against his exchequer and thereby saved the loss of millions. The necessity for retrenchment in all quarters demands an abnegation like that of Burke, who introduced into parliament a bill that cut off his own emoluments. The necessity for a more genuine simplicity in our national public life demands an integrity like that of a statesman of our own time who dared to be poor in an age that was mad to be rich.

PRACTICAL CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

IV. Although it is doubtless true that the civil service reform as a distinct remedy for some of the evils of our political system has fallen far short of the expectations of the sanguine friends, still the spirit of the reform is abroad, and all political parties are feeling its influence. The demand for candidates and officials of integrity and capacity was never more imperative than now, and that party runs great risk which has the temerity to ignore it or defy it. It is a healthy state of public sentiment which discriminates at the ballot box between fit and unfit candidates, and which in the same way sets its seal of condemnation upon aspirants who have once betrayed the public confidence. The history of our politics for the last few years has furnished some conspicuous examples of official short-coming and swift retribution. The record of the republican party in this respect, if not free from the stain of official misconduct, is not without the redeeming merit of exposing and punishing its own wrong doers.

On this point we do not shrink from comparison with the democratic or any other party. Our salary grabbers and Credit Mobilier speculators have not been returned to Congress, as the Woods and Randalls have been, and our revenue thieves are not enjoying their illgotten gains in Europe and Egypt, but are immured within stone walls and made to disgorge their stolen plunder. "Let no guilty man escape" is the laconic instruction of the President to his subordinates. While the republican party echoes this admirable watchword, and is especially pleased with the resolute and vigilant manner in which the Secretary of the Treasury applies it, it well understands that the cause of good government demands something more. Themistocles thought it the chief excellence of a general to know and foresee the designs of the enemy. Aristides said there is another excellence, and that is to have clean hands. The republican party not only demands that men guilty of fraud and peculation shall be punished, but it insists that all officials and legislators shall serve the public with the same fidelity and efficiency that they would serve their private interests.

UNIVERSAL SUFFRAGE BASED ON UNIVERSAL EDUCATION.

V. The diffusion of popular education in a republican government is so necessary that the founders of every free State have always laid great stress upon it. From the time that Luther proclaimed the education of the young to be a "grand and serious thing, affecting the kingdom of God and all the world," the upward struggle of the people to self government has been in the ratio of the diffusion of education among the masses. In this country we have laid the basis of suffrage so broad that not even treason disfranchises. Men will differ as to the wisdom of unqualified suffrage, but we have established it, and the alternative now remains to maintain it or raise some barrier, like an educational or property test, to limit its exercise. We have had too short a trial of universal suffrage for any man to claim that it has had a fair trial. We have not yet supplied the condition of a fair trial, and until every child of this republic, without distinction of race or color, receives a common school education, we shall not have supplied it. To restrict the suffrage now by a property or educational test is to reverse the march of ideas, and will strike at the branches not the roots of the evil. If republican government cannot stand on suffrage based on universal education, it cannot stand at all. Let us fix the foundations of the free common school on the impregnable basis of a Constitutional enactment, and then let us make the schools so useful and practical that they shall be the voluntary or compulsory means, as the case may be, of fitting every child of the republic for usefulness and for citizenship. With that accomplished—and it is certain to be one of the great problems of the second century of our national existence—all property and educational tests will be as useless as they will be illiberal. Through universal education—South as well as North, West as well as East, for blacks as well as whites, for foreign as well as native born—republican institutions will be more firmly rooted at their second centennial on this continent than they are at their first.

REVISION OF THE CONSTITUTION.

The Legislature in June last made provision for taking the sense of the qualified voters of this State on the question of calling a convention to revise the Constitution. The resolution received the support of both parties in the Legislature, and it was passed without a dissenting voice. While it is unquestionable that the fundamental law of this State affords a cheap and effective system of government, the lapse of nearly a hundred years from its adoption has developed some defects and indicated some improvements that ought to be made. One provision of the instrument has been a dead letter from the beginning. When adopted, the religious test was warmly opposed in the convention, and was only carried in answer to a taunt that the United States had become so enamored of their French allies that they proposed to adopt their religion. So the Protestant qualification to hold office in this State was engrafted upon the fundamental law. It was an unnecessary act to guard against a wholly imaginary danger. Though the provision has been a dead letter down to this day, we have never been able to eliminate it from the Constitution. Our State alone enjoys the unenviable distinction of retaining such a provision. It is a dead branch upon the tree and ought to be lopped off, but we cannot get rid of it without a convention. And while we are having a convention there are several other features of the Constitution that should be remodelled. Our House of Representatives has become such a numerous body that the last House had 371 members, besides the two interlopers from Hart's Location. Our last House had 100 more members than the present National House of Representatives. It has become altogether too large and unwieldy. As the democratic Senate last June refused to reform the abuse of the ratable poll law, no man can tell how large the next House of Representatives may be. The time has come when a remedy for this evil must be found by the people or they will soon find a mob instead of a Legislature assembled at Concord. I know that the small towns of this State are jealous of their right of representation. I respect that right, but is it not better that the right should be somewhat curtailed than that an abuse should be permitted which in time may destroy it altogether? I do not believe in a numerically small legislature, and I would not make the minimum of the House less than 200. It would seem that we ought to be satisfied with that number, provided the membership of the Senate is trebled as it should be. The Senate as it exists in this State is a dangerous body because its small membership is a constant temptation to the cupidity of private schemers and corporate bodies that have axes to grind. "Lead me not into temptation" ought to be the constant prayer on the lips of every one of the twelve men that constitute the Senate of this State. While we are amending the Constitution in these important particulars, let us get rid of that senseless feature which requires us to hold our elections at the most unsuitable season of the year. By the law of Congress that goes into effect this year, we shall have to elect our National Representatives in the fall, on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November. Unless we change the time of our annual election we shall hereafter be subjected every alternate year to a second election and double the present cost in time and money. For myself, I would not only make the change, but I would hold biennial elections only, for once in two years is often enough to be wrought up and fired up on politics as we are in New Hampshire. The rejected Constitution of 1850-1 made the changes that I have indicated, besides others. As great was the cost of that convention the adoption of its work would have saved the State at least one-half if not two-thirds of the $980,000 that the Legislature has since cost. The rejection of the Constitution of 1850-1 was the poorest financial operation as it was the greatest political blunder that the people of this State ever committed. Let us not make the mistake again. And while we are finishing up the work of perfecting the constitution let us not forget to engraft upon it, what is not there now, a provision making the establishment and maintenance of free unsectarian common schools forever obligatory upon the people, and a free common school education the patrimony of every child within the limits of our State. So doing, in this Centennial year of our country's independence, we shall do our part not only to transmit unimpaired but to improve the inestimable heritage which was bequeathed to us in the heroism and sacrifices, the blood and tears of the men and women who lived on these hills and along these valleys one hundred years ago. And so doing we shall prove to be worthy successors of the men who, just one hundred years ago to-day, adopted the first Free State Constitution ever given to New Hampshire or to Humanity.

THE SENATORIAL OUTRAGE.

It is with no pleasure that I pass from the consideration of topics in which we have a broad and common interest to a subject wherein duty compels us to arraign our opponents as the violators and subvertors of the Constitution of our State. No fact is better known, for it was at first universally admitted, that in two of the Senatorial districts of this State there was no choice at the last election. When no Senator appears to be chosen, the constitution points out one way by which the vacancy may be filled, and that way is not by the Governor and Council nor by the Senate alone. By the letter as well as the spirit of our Constitution the Governor and Council are made a board of canvassers for State Senators, and it is the plain duty of the Governor to summon such Senators to take seats in the Senate on the first Wednesday in June as appear to have a majority of the votes cast. We know that in Senatorial districts two and four no person did appear to have a majority of votes cast, counted, declared and returned to the Governor and Council, and yet in spite of that unquestioned and unquestionable fact, the Governor and Council did declare that certain persons did have a majority of votes in those districts. In certifying to that statement the Governor and Council committee two grave offences—one against the truth, and the other against the Constitution. This is not the time or place to enter into the details of the argument. Before the conclusion of this campaign it will be amply discussed by the press and on the stump. It is enough now to draw the indictment, and we will try it before the people of this State and await their verdict on the 14th of March without any solicitude whatever as to its character. We arraign Governor Weston and his Council as guilty of usurpation, inasmuch as they deliberately performed an act without any precedent in the history of the Government, without any warrant in the Constitution, and in open conflict with the uniform decisions of the highest courts in at least fifteen States of this country. We arraign Governor Weston and his Council for trifling with a grave constitutional question by its pretended reference to the Superior Court when all attending facts prove conclusively that there was no earnest purpose on the part of the Executive or the Court to meet it as such a question should be met by an Executive and Court solemnly sworn to support and defend the Constitution. We arraign the democratic party of this State as accessory to this usurpation both before and after the fact. Upon all the guilty parties to this transaction we invoke the condemnation of the people, to the end that the Constitution and the rights of thirty-eight hundred voters may be vindicated, and the future of our State insured against a recurrence of a similar disgrace and wrong.

—It is rumored that the present faculties of Yale and Harvard will be dismissed before long and a more thoroughly efficient corps of professional oarsmen employed in their stead. This report ought to be true, for colleges have been horribly mismanaged lately. Instead of being compelled to apply themselves to the art of rowing, which they are sent there to acquire, the students are obliged by their incompetent old fogy professors to devote much of their priceless time to mathematics, the classics, etc. The result is that parents are forced to see their sons return to them with a smattering of Greek and Latin, but very indifferent oarsmen. The time has come for reform in this matter. College faculties must understand that there shall be no more trifling, and that their curricula must not be corrupted with studies that have no more to do with boating than foot-ball has with metaphysics.—Chicago Times.

—Wendell Phillips says "you can't make a license law loose enough but what I'll struggle every grog-shop in Boston, if you'll make me Superintendent of Police." The Moral of It.

We have a great deal of sympathy for Jimmie Blanchard because people in general have none. The poor little wretch prefers lying to truth-telling, as do many grown persons who arrive at distinction and honorable position by systematic deceit, but is it wholly his fault? Ability often overshadows just such traits of character in men of public note and private enterprise, and it appears in many cases that nature in developing genius in one direction neglects to counterbalance it in others. The abhorrence of lying felt against men who have practiced it without limit for a life-time is one of the saving sentiments of the times—if it may be correctly termed a sentiment. But here is a boy of ten years who cannot strictly be held responsible for the utterances which have made him a national curiosity. His is a weakness that certainly is not wholly acquired, and which receiving more encouragement than persuasion of an opposite nature, has developed into an alarming precocity. He is not responsible for the circumstances of his birth or traits of character he possesses, and he is but a more prominent specimen of children brought into this world and left to grow up without proper care and instruction. The proper disposal of such cases is an unsolved enigma, but the state of society must be unnatural and tending to a wrong direction which produces or permits such painful results. If we are to become a nation of better men and women, our system of education of young and old needs a thorough reformation.

News and Notes.

Says the New York Tribune: "The New Hampshire republicans have entered so unequivocal a protest against a third term that their choice for the presidency is of interest." The Tribune seems to have an idea that Washburne is likely to be the New Hampshire favorite, but it may possess its soul in patience; Washburne, Blaine or Bristow will suit New Hampshire republicans to a dot. And there are contingencies that might lead them to name William A. Wheeler of New York as an available candidate.

The New Hampshire republicans have done a very excellent piece of work, says the Cincinnati Times.

It is now believed that in the suit of Frank Moulton against Beecher for malicious prosecution the lawyers for the defence intend to enter a demurrer on the ground that a nolle prosequi having been entered by the District Attorney on the indictment for criminal slander found by the grand jury against Moulton, on the testimony of Beecher, the latter has no legal liability for the action of that official.

Gen. Babcock has retained ex-Attorney-General Williams as his counsel in the approaching trial at St. Louis.

Internal Revenue Supervisor Tutton has received instructions from Secretary Bristow to proceed at once to Chicago to superintend the trials arising from the seizures of distilleries, etc., made by him in that city in May last. They involve the forfeiture of a large amount of property, and the trial of over thirty persons who have already been indicted.

Alexander Williamson, a prominent business man of Belmore, Putnam county, Ohio, has absconded, leaving unsettled claims amounting to $100,000 or more.

The Congregational society of Atkinson has for many years depended largely for its music on a family by the name of Noyes. It consisted of ten children, six sons and four daughters. All were members of the choir at different times and for forty-five years previous to 1870 the four sisters and one brother sang there together. The oldest sister had been a member of the choir for fifty-five years, and her husband, Deacon Franklin Gilbert, was a member for the same period, and was for twenty-five years the leader.

At a meeting of the Governor and Council, Thursday, Joshua B. Smith, of Durham, was appointed a member of the Board of Agriculture for Strafford county in place of Dr. Ezra Ferry, who declined to accept the appointment tendered him.

The New York Tribune says Mr. Kerr's committee command both astonishment and praise. This may be true, but so far the astonishment predominates over the praise, even as the consumption of fine Bourbon over that of plain lemonade in a democratic committee meeting.—Denver Tribune.

Secretary Bristow is now having some of the cotton claims paid at the Treasury Department investigated, and there are hints of unpleasant developments.

A long-lived family was that of the Lancaster man, who, the other day applied for a life insurance policy, and in answer to a question in reference to his ancestors replied that his grandfather on his father's side died at the age of 110, and his grandmother at 95; on his mother's side, his grandfather was 100, and his grandmother 98. His mother living, aged 105 years, and the father died at 103 years. He has eight brothers and sisters, whose ages range from 45 to 70 years, six of whom are living.

The Harrisburg correspondent of the New York Tribune says there is a movement among Pennsylvania democrats to throw the vote of the delegation from that State for Hendricks for President, on condition that the vote of the West be given to Ex-Gov. Curtin for Vice-President, thus abandoning New York to the republicans. He thinks Blaine will get the vote of Pennsylvania in the republican National convention.

The directors of the Boston and Albany Railroad have voted to abolish all free passes for the press. They have granted passes as usual, however, to members of the legislature.

Mr. Randall's first estimate in regard to the reduction of the expenditures included a cutting down of the consular and diplomatic bill five hundred thousand dollars. The sub-committees however, to which he gave the bill, after laboring to cut down in all directions in this service, has finally reported to the full committee, and has only succeeded in effecting a reduction of eighty-seven thousand dollars. The republicans in the last Congress overhauled the matter so thoroughly as to leave very little to reduce in this service.

It may not interest you much to learn, but it is a matter of fact that Minister Washburne has written a letter stating in very positive terms that he will not be a candidate for the republican Presidential nomination.

Of all the rumsellers in Manchester at the time of the soldiers' reunion last Fall, there was only one who had the pure cussedness to carry rum upon the grounds and sell the infernal stuff to the boys. And his fidelity to the temperance principles of the the democracy has been rewarded by giving him charge of the police force.

The Lebanon News, enlarged and improved, looks nice and clean, and bears internal evidence of being the product of much labor and expense. Mr. William M. Leavitt is associate editor with William M. Kendall, Jr.

John Young Scammon and Joseph S. Reed, former officers of the Mechanics National Bank of Chicago have been indicted for an alleged misappropriation of about $300,000 of the funds of the bank, in 1874.

"Perley" telegraphs from Washington to the Boston Journal that "it is evident that the democrats in the Senate hope to secure a majority in that body. Large quantities of evidence have been called in to show that Senators West of Louisiana and Spencer of Alabama were not legitimately elected, and vigorous efforts will be made to unseat them, and to seat Robert H. Marr as Senator from Louisiana."

Congressman Wheeler of New York thinks Congress will adjourn early in June. He is also confident that both the next House and the next President will be republican. He said to the Washington correspondent of the Springfield Republican recently: "Unless our people fling away all their chances, we shall take the country by a rousing majority next year."

New Hampshire at the Centennial.

An immense interest has been awakened throughout the country in relation to the Centennial Exhibition soon to be opened in Philadelphia. Our State is making an effort, in various departments, to make a respectable representation of our industries.

The State Board of Agriculture, with a view to encourage liberal contributions without cost or inconvenience to our farmers, has taken a large space in the Exhibition buildings for the products of the State.

The Board will receive anything that may be classed under the heads of farm or animal products, or implements used in farm work, whether in the field, barn or house,—in short, whatever pertains to the interest of the farmer,—forward it to Philadelphia, and arrange the articles in a proper manner, in the New Hampshire department of the Exhibition.

It would be very gratifying if every Agricultural Society in the State, every Farmers' Club, and every Grange of Patrons would make a collection, and forward it seasonably to the Board at Concord. It would ensure a superior exhibition, if every farmer in the State who reads this notice would at once select some product of his farm and send it by express to the rooms of the Board.

The Kearsarge Society, the Oak Park, and the Bradford and Newbury Associations have already given notice to the Board that they desire space for a large display of products. It is hoped that others will at once engage in the work, and that individuals who delight in specialties, as grasses, any of the cereals, fruits, roots, plants, flowers, varieties of woods, minerals, etc., will send specimens; and that manufacturers of implements, as well as inventors, owners of ancient utensils and other antiquities, will without delay, contribute samples for exhibition.

The commissioners for the State, the managing agent and the State authorities, cordially approve the efforts of the Board, grant all the aid in their means, and express an earnest desire that large contributions be made.

All live stock and very heavy articles should be sent directly to Philadelphia; but grains, seeds, common implements, and everything that can be conveniently sent by express should be forwarded to the State House, Concord.

Jottings.

Naval officers intimate that the whole available force of the service is to be concentrated at Port Royal. The Congress and the Juniata are daily expected there, and the Marion will go from Portsmouth to Norfolk, and perhaps further south, instead of directly to Europe.

Capt. Marvin of the Portsmouth Artillery has an "Account of Ordinance, Stores, Ammunition, etc., in Fort Washington, Jan. 1st, 1776," officially signed by Titus Salter, Captain in command. The supplies were then 16 cannon from 4 to 40 inch, weighing from 12 to 44 pounds each; round shot, 588; grape, 26; worms, 20; ramrods and sponges 5; wire primings, 20; ladles, 5; cartridge boxes, 340; powder horns, 30; handspikes, 56; powder, 5 barrels; cartridges, 1 barrel; flints, 400; and 15 bundles of match stuff.

Passed Asst. Engr. J. P. Kelly's orders to the Manhattan are revoked, and he is ordered to resume his duties at this navy yard.

Hon. Mark Adams, grandfather of Samuel Adams, Esq., of this city, was a member from Kittery, of the Massachusetts legislature for 29 years, when Maine was a part of that State. As there were no railroads in those days, the veteran legislator made the journeys to and from Boston upon horseback.

Mr. Alexander Dennett, of Kittery, is foreman of the York county grand jury.

Gen. Mark F. Wentworth has resigned the position of General Inspector at the navy yard. There is hardly anyone employed in the yard, but little material required, and he resigns, not willing to receive compensation unless he can render equivalent services.

An exchange calls Portsmouth "a jamboree of a place on centennial observance."

Mr. Theodore Tilton entirely fills the bill of a popular talker. He has many physical advantages in his favor, an imposing appearance and a graceful manner; a full and pleasant voice, and an animated delivery. His lecture in Brooklyn before the wealth, character and respectability of that place was acknowledged as "a stream of pure language, brightened by wit and humor, strong with philosophy, useful with ripe suggestions and powerful with impassioned oratory."

The following is the report of the Haven school for the year ending Dec. 31, 1875: Whole number of pupils enrolled, 629; males, 333; females, 296; average number, 567; average daily attendance, 96 49-100.

A gentleman writing from Florida warns laborers and mechanics that there is no opening for any one there, unless he is able and willing to go into the woods and clear a farm, and has means to support himself till he can grow crops, or is able to hire his work done. Large numbers are now looking for employment, and would be willing to work for their board. This inures to the benefit of those already established there. The writer advises all persons without means, to stay at home.

Theatre.

Next Saturday evening, Mr. Henderson, the lessee of the Providence Opera House, will bring to this city the very popular comedians, Messrs. Baker and Farron, two young men who have earned quite an extensive reputation in the South and West for their very life-like delineations of Dutch and Irish characters. We understand that this is the first visit of these gentlemen to this vicinity, and if they are as talented and display the ability accredited to them elsewhere no doubt our citizens will give them a very cordial welcome. From the Rochester Chronicle we clip the following extract of their appearance in that city during Christmas week:

These popular young artists appeared at the opera house last evening before a large and enthusiastic audience. The new play of Heinrich and Hettie," which they produced, gave them abundant opportunity to display their peculiar talents. Many of their songs are new, but they also introduced several of the old ones which became popular last year. In the first act Farron as "Michael Slagherty" sung "Tim Flaherty," which was given with such great success last year. The audience were so well pleased they continued applauding until the orchestra again commenced playing and Farron sang "Since Terrence Joined the Gang." The second act represents the Atlantic garden, New York, and the songs and dances by both the artists were very lively done. The duett "Sweet Christine" was loudly applauded. Being obliged to encore they sang "Du, Du," which took even better than the first piece and it was followed by after reappearing several times and a delicious speech by Baker that the play was allowed to go on. The sketch of the "Raw Recruits," was very ludicrous, and the audience were kept in a continual state of laughter by the blunders of the would-be soldiers. The members of the stock company all did what little they had to do well, "Heinrich and Hettie" are the principal attractions and the other characters are scarcely thought of.

A Bible of 1649.

The old Bible claimed by the Boston Herald as the oldest in America is a very juvenile affair when compared with several owned in Portsmouth. Ammi R. Fernald, Esq., is the possessor of two that were printed in the seventeenth century, at London, the older being published in 1649. This book contains the well preserved and plainly written autograph of Mr. Fernald's grandmother, as follows:

"July 25, 1748
SARAH FERNALD, Hir Book"

Mr. Fernald's father was born four years after the date of this signature, to wit, in 1752.

[Mrs. Dominick Peduzzi, a sister of Mrs. A. R. H. Fernald, has in her possession "The History of Philosophy," printed in London in 1655.]

Bound in the back part of the Bible is a collection of hymns set to music, the music being written in what is now known as the "old buckwheat notes," the heads of the notes being square and triangular, the scale consisting of but three notes: Fa, Sol and La.

The theology of some of the hymns is decidedly antique and slightly amusing. The following is a sample:

The Symbole or Creed of Athannfius.

What man foever be the that,
faieath n will attaine,
The Catholike beliefe he must before all things retaine:
Which faith vnleffe he holy Keepe & vndeffiedly:
Without all doubt eternally,
he fhall be fure to die.

The Catholike belief is this,
that God we worship one In Trinity, and Trinity in vnity alone.
So as we neither doe confound the perfons of the three.
Nor yet the fubftance whole of one,
in funder parted be:

One perfon of the father is, another of the fonne:
Another perfon proper of the holy Gheft alone.
Of father fonne and holy Gheft,
but one the God head is:
Like glory coeternall eke,
the mafefte likewife.

Such as the father is, fuch is the fonne in each degree:
And fuch alfo we do believe the holy Gheft to be.
Vncreate is the father, and vncreate is the fonne:
The holy Gheft vncreate fo, vncreate is each one.

Incomprehenfible father is,
incomprehenfible fonne,
And comprehenfible alfo is,
the holy Gheft of none.
The father is eternal, and the fonne eternal fo:
And in like fort eternall is,
the holy Gheft alfo.

And yet though we beleeue that each of thefe eternall be;
Yet there but one eternall is,
and not eternalls three.
As ne incomprehenfible we ne yet vncreate three.
But one incomprehenfible, one vncreate hold to be.

Almighty fo the father is,
the fonne almighty fo:
And in like fort almighty is,
the holy Gheft alfo.
And albeit that euery one of thefe almighty be:
Yet there but one almighty is,
and not almighties three.

The father God is, God the fonne,
God holy Gheft alfo:
Yet there are not three Gods in all but one God and no moe:
So likewife Lord the father is,
and Lord alfo the fonne,
And Lord the holy Gheft, yet are there not three Lords but one.

For as we are compell'd to grant
by Chriftian verity:
Each of the perfons by himfelfe,
both God and Lord to be.
So Catholic Religion,
forbiddeth vs alway,
That either Gods be three, or that there Lords be three to fay.

Of none the father is ne made,
ne create nor begot,
The fonne is of the father, not create, ne made, but got.
The holy Gheft is of them both the father and the fonne:
Ne made, ne create, nor begot,
but doth proceale alone.

So we one Father hold not three,
one Sonne alfo not three;
One holy Gheft, and not three holy Gheftes to be.
None in this Trinitie before, nor after other is,
Ne greater any then the reft,
ne leffer is likewife.

But euery one among themselues, of all the perfons three,
Together coeternall all,
and all coequal be:
So vnity in Trinity,
as faid it is before,
And trinity in vnity,
in all things we adore.

Therefore what man foreuer that falu ation wi l attaine:
This faith touching the trinite, of force we muft retaine.
And needfull to eternal life,
it is that euery wight
Of the incarnating of Chrift our Lord believe aright.

For this the right faith is, that we beleeue and eke doe know,
That Chrift our Lord the Sonne of God, is God and man alfo:
God of his fathers fubftance got before the world began,
And of his mothers fubftance borne,
is world a very man.

Both perfect God and perfect man,
in one, one Jesus Chrift,
That doth of reafonable foule,
and human flefh fubfift.
Touching his Godhead equall with, his father God is he,
Touching his manhood lower then,
his father in degree.

Who though he be both very God,
and very man alfo:
Yet is he but one Chrift alone,
and is not perfons two.
One not by turning of Godhead, into the flefh of man:
But by taking manhood to God,
this being one began.

All one, not by confounding of the fubftance into one,
But only by the vnity,
that is one perfon.
For as the reafonable foule, and flefh, but one man is.
So is one perfon God and man, is but one Christ likewife.

Who fuffred for to fave vs all,
to hell he did defcend:
The third day he rofe again from death,
to heauen he did afcend.
He fitt at the right hand of God,
the Almighty father there.
From thence to Iudge the quicke and dead, agaiue he fhall retire.

At whofe returne all men fhall rife, with bodies new reftorde:
And of their owne workes they fhall give account vnto the Lord.
And they into eternall life fhall goo, that haue done well,
Who haue done ill, fhal goe into eternal fire to dwell.

This is the Catholike beliefe, who doth not faithfully Beleeue the fame, without all doubt, he faued cannot be.
To father, fonne, and holy Gheft, all glory be therefore,
As in beginning was, is now, and fhal be euermore.

American Ladies.

America is justly proud of her beautiful ladies but how many mar their beauty and lose their health and youth, become prematurely old in appearance by neglecting to take proper care of their teeth. There can be no excuse for this, as SOZODONT, procurable by all worthy dealers, makes the sweetest lips, can now be had in all civilized countries.

Spalding's Glue, useful and always ready.

How the Blood is Filtered.

When the blood contains the acrid elements which produce rheumatism, gout and venereal disorders, the kidneys ought, for it is their office, to filter from the blood, as its passage through them, these deleterious particles. When they do not, they may be incited to a thorough performance of their duty, and the blood thoroughly depurated by that admirable corrective of organic inactivity, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only is torpidity of the kidneys overcome, through the agency of the Bitters, but digestion is facilitated, bilious tendencies counteracted, and the bowels stimulated to a due discharge of their function, which, in connection with that of the kidneys tends to free the system from the bodily refuse, whose retention is so prejudicial to health.

It is suicide in the third degree, if not worse, to suffer a cough and cold to culminate in consumption, when a single bottle of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, taken in time would effect a perfect and permanent cure.

It Pays! It Pays!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer, or Professional man, to be kept informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

IT PAYS the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that blows a trumpet for Progress of Mind, promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, which has been published weekly for the last twenty years, during this so active period, and is still the only publication, in fact it is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Mechanics, Mechanics, Inventions and new discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World. Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds. Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts, forming a complete repository of New Inventions and Discoveries; containing a weekly record not only of the progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Inventions in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics, and Science abroad.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the foremost of all industrial publications ever issued for the past Thirty Years. It is the oldest, largest, cheapest, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions and Industrial Progress, published in the World.

The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. And for the shop and house will save many times the cost of subscription.

Farmers, Mechanics, Manufacturers, Inventors, Engineers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, and People of all Professions, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room and School. A new volume commences January 1st, 1876.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several hundred engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. Terms, $3.20 a year by mail, including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars giving Club rates sent free. Single copies mailed on receipt of 10 cents. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. In connection with the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of all Inventions Patented through the agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold or exchanged, or persons attracted to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, containing full directions for obtaining Patents. The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by the fashion plates in useless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to pater familias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is uniformly good excellence. The paper Bazar is undoubtedly the popularity for the Bazar enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and sparkle, are all invigorating to the mind.—Chicago Evening Journal.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the blood!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1875, but from the value of the package their success was assured, for almost everyone who purchased one package soon ordered another for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Sales of the Pills were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have been confined to my bed. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so low that I could not recover, I thought. I had tried much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and concluded to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after using one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured my pamphlets, and read the testimonials, and they are well cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia, so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. But tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills a day. In one of the boxes I found testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. I enclose this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. H. LEROY.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaint, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for days at a time to move, the pain would incite from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist, and concluded to try one box of pills if needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well, can eat well, and have not a Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I send all to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think the most prove a blessing to thousands who will be only too glad to find out. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. R. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockingham, who are taking, by my advice, already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to do its share in the second of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to win the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may prove the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the Public Schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopeful signs that the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan prejudices or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banners, or under any new banner or vant of cuucuses or conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men, whom the country knows and can trust; to secure honest money, honest industry, honest economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. This is Republican ideal. But it will do its share for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as earnestly hold the reins of power in the Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Tweed Ring, stealing from the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be as clearly right in the future. Our success in the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much concerned by mere party lines, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon some of the worst practices of the old caucus system in order to secure the right to pester the people with the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have thus within two or three years actually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods with which it has already commended itself to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the instruction and entertainment of its pages, and keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1872 and 1873 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has worn this position ever since, by the closest watch and the most lavish expenditure to procure the fresh est intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and the most able editorial work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors is numbered many of the most eminent men in the country.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing to its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the busy trying climate of New England!

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent its spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in paradise" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that prescribed by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

"The very best ladies' magazine published."—Seneca Falls (N. Y.) Courier.

CHEAPEST AND BEST!

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a sup rb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift.

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition of Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spare no money on embellishments—stories, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its are the best published anywhere. All of the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL LOVE STORY NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

TERMS (Always in Advance) $2.00 A YEAR.

—A very pointed conversation was overheard on Congress street, recently. A young man had just come from the Museum, and was in the act of seeing his beloved to her home. As they passed up the street, the conversation turned to the play which they had just enjoyed. Judging from the conversation, he was finding fault with the love scene between Charles D'Arbel and Hortense. "I could do better than that, myself," the young man remarked. "Why, in Heaven's name, don't you then?" she replied. Then there was a long pause.—Portland Press.

"Facts are Stubborn Things."

Thousands of human beings are yearly borne on the swift current of disease down to the grave, just because they do not possess a sufficient knowledge of themselves. A man meets his neighbor, and the first salutation is "How are you?" or "How is your health?" The reply frequently is, "Oh, I am well, with the exception of a cold." Most persons lightly regard a cold. Reader, do you know that a cold is one of the most dangerous of maladies? A cold not only clogs up the pores of the entire system, and retards circulation, but it is productive of Catarrh, which is quite apt to lead to Consumption. "Oh," you say, "it is nothing but a cold in my head." True, but that cold is really a mild form of Catarrh, and if not arrested in its course will become chronic. Catarrh is one of the most disagreeably offensive affections in the catalogue of diseases. The passage to the nose is obstructed, the sense of smell impaired, and there is a disagreeable sensation of pressure in the head. In the more advanced stages there is a discharge having an offensive odor. If the disease be allowed to continue in its course, thick, hard incrustations will form in the head, the bones of which sometimes become softened and break away in pieces. Why will persons continue to suffer from such an annoying, disgusting disease, when they can just as well be cured of it? Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure the worst forms of Catarrh; in fact, it is the only sure and safe remedy which has yet been offered to the public. Many harsh irritating preparation may, for a time, relieve the urgency of the symptoms, but they do not cure the disease. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is soothing and healing in its effects, and when used with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, according to directions, does not fail to effect a cure. Sold by all Druggists.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more energetic in putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."
"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, and has been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

The Omelet as it Should Be.

[Pen and Plough.]

The mind that invented the omelet was capable of greater things. Many persons think they have made and eaten omelets, when they have not. Anything that is made of eggs stirred up and solidified over the fire is supposed to be an omelet, but it isn't. I have heard of people who put flour in it. Flour takes fifteen or twenty minutes to cook, and an omelet is made in one minute; and raw flour is not wholesome or appetizing. The true omelet is a pile of terror-stricken eggs and milk; it trembles with every jar, and crouches in a delicious, quivering mass upon the plate; any one who puts a silver knife into it will find a porous, flaky material, most impalpable to the touch, that will melt as quickly as a snowflake in his mouth. Upon reflection he will be willing to admit that hens were not made in vain. Proceed in this way, if you wish to make an omelet: Have some fresh eggs, not omelet eggs. All eggs that will not by any possibility do to boil are put away in restaurants to make omelets with. Break them into a china bowl. If they are fresh, the white will be as clear as a maiden's eye, and the yolk as round as the pupil of it. Add a table-spoonful of milk for every egg, and whip the whole as thoroughly as you would sponge cake. The omelet pan has previously been put on the fire and made so hot that butter will melt and almost brown in it, but not quite. When in this condition, you are to turn the whipped egg and milk into the pan and put it directly over the fire. Get a thin bladed knife, and run it carefully under the bottom of the egg, so as to let that which is not cooked get below. If the fire is right, the whole mass will swell and puff and cook in a minute; if it is not carefully attended to, it will burn on the bottom, and burned egg is most offensive in smell and taste. It is not necessary to wait until the whole mass is solid, as its own heat will cook it after it has left the pan; but begin at one side, and carefully roll the edge over and over until it is all rolled up, and then let it stand for a moment to brown, and turn it out on a hot plate and serve it, or, what is better, eat it yourself—immediately. You must not put one grain of salt in it while it is cooking, or all your hopes and your omelet will flatten down together. If it is properly made, it will be like a Summer sunset, rich with crimson and yellow hues, and the savor will gladden the heart. If any one has a fancy for mixing finely-minced ham with the egg batter, they will make a ham omelet; or for surrounding it with stewed kidneys and smearing a little of the sauce thereof about the egg after it is cooked, they have a kidney omelet; or by pouring rum over it and setting the same on fire, they will have an "omelet au rhum"; or by sprinkling granulated sugar over it, it will be an "omelet sucre;" but all these are simply inventions of the enemy to see how vilely they can ill-treat a good thing, and yet not utterly ruin it.

The Boy Who Was Astonished.

A frightful runaway took place in the northern portion of St. Louis recently. A large cur came trotting leisurely down the street, all in harness and drawing a sled, upon which in a state of supreme bliss, was the enterprising urchin who had conceived the idea of utilizing dog-power. They conducted themselves with a calm dignity, that boy and dog, and when the boy met a couple of other boys of his acquaintance, and stopped his conveyance for a chat, there was a shade of condescension in his manner to those who had to walk. The youth on the sled entered into earnest conversation with one of the boys on the ground, and, while the two were thus engaged, the other boy took occasion, unobserved, to pull out a piece of string and attached an oyster can firmly to the dog's tail, leaving interval enough between tail and can to allow the latter a degree of play. The interview finally terminated and the boy on the sled started up his dog. At the first move the animal discovered that his tail wasn't all right, and at the first rattle of the tin he took in the situation and acted precisely as other dogs have been known to do under similar circumstances. He just raised up his hair all along his back, curled his tail under him, laid his ears over, opened his mouth, struck up something from Wagner, and started! Commodore Vanderbilt, when he takes a special train and travels sixty miles an hour, doesn't make half so good time as that dog did. He straightened himself out and gathered himself up in awful leaps, and when he straightened there wasn't an inch of space between him and the ground, and when he gathered he looked like a horse shoe magnet three feet high. The boy gave one gasp when the dog started, and then tightened his grip on the sled; he slid down into the position known among the youth as "belly-buster," and there he stuck. The procession—dog, can, boy and sled—went down the street like a whirlwind, swerving neither to the right nor left. When a wagon crossed the dog's path, he flew under it, and on such occasions the boy's hair would flop up like the wig of the end man at a minstrel show. Finally a coal wagon came in sight, and it became apparent that it would be a close shave unless the dog turned a little. But the dog never swerved—he was too intent on reaching the end of the world. The wagon didn't cross the street quick enough, there was a crash against one of the hind wheels, and a boy with a bloody nose and one runner of the sled remained in the immediate vicinity, while the dog and the rest of the sled passed into the dimmest kind of perspective.

"Oh! Why Did Ye Die."

The New Hampshire democrats are artful political dodgers, and instead of relying upon the good sense of the people, depend a great deal more upon the trickery that the lowest demagogue is possessed of, caring little for the will of the people so that their cunning schemes be successful. The trait is inherent and is as active at the present time as in 1852 when they secured the nomination of Franklin Pierce for the Presidency, not because he was the choice of the democratic party of the Nation, but because, as a lively unknown as he was, he had a degree of pliability that would come into use in satisfying discordant and jealous elements.

When the finger of popularity points unmistakably toward this or that candidate in the democratic ranks, the chances are that the schemers will set aside the current if possible, it being the principal amusement of your true democrat to enter into some combination which may upset the usual order of things. The leaders and followers of the party find themselves continually in an attitude of suspicion toward each other, and it is not strange that the action of the party is generally considered with suspicion by the people. Manliness and straightforwardness are seldom detected in democratic platforms and less often in democratic performances.

The kaleidoscopic changes that have taken place in the New Hampshire democratic organization since they temporarily achieved power show the inclination as strong as ever to develop mischief and forget the interests of the people. It was an astonishing occurrence that overthrew temporarily the dictators from time immemorial, and brought to the front Judge Roberts as their gubernatorial candidate; and it was only the $35,000 spent in this Congressional district by the democracy that gave the Judge such a heavy vote. Still the fact remained undisputed that the Judge had polled the largest vote ever given for a democrat in New Hampshire, being but 167 less than Gov. Cheney received. It would be natural to expect that Judge Roberts would receive a unanimous recomination after such an exhibit, but the "whiffle-minded" patriots who so stoutly supported him at the polls, regardless of any feeling of justice toward the candidate, took a sudden liking for something new, and encouraged the element which had been unexpectedly in a minority at the State convention last year to agitate the question of a new candidate, bringing into the field Warren F. Daniell, Horatio Colony and Frank McKean. This eminent piece of democratic strategy was intended to render the Judge's renomination impossible, and that point gained there was little doubt that Daniell would eventually carry off the honors in a scrub race with McKean and Colony.

It was looked upon as a fixed fact three weeks ago that this was the result to be reached and the democratic sky had not the slightest haze overshadowing it. Daniell is a worker and his money would be forthcoming. Meanwhile John H. Pearson, grandfather of the Roberts movement of last year, was undermining the broad plan of treason, and Judge Roberts apparently did not relish being set back so suddenly. One morning, the tricksters awoke to find that Hiram's friends were active and the first shot fired struck twixt wind and water and brought down the game. The Boston Herald's Concord correspondent did the business; and the merciless manner in which the gun was loaded showed that no quarter would be given or asked. Warren Daniell had eminent qualities for a paper maker, but in the eyes of the Herald man he wasn't quite heavy material enough for a New Hampshire Governor. Had the Herald patriot lingered over the thought sufficiently long he might have remembered that when availability is thought of in a democratic nomination, ability is seldom regarded as any kind of a requisite!

The wounded in the battle which winged Warren Daniell were counted by the score, and fluttering victims sent in a flag of truce immediately—and the war was ended, and peace declared. So the schemes gathered in counsel The Daniell men declared that their favorite was the only man who stood a ghost of a chance to run within hailing distance of Governor Cheney. The Roberts men did not propose to withdraw their man unconditionally, and the fight for Governor was abandoned. Cheney would be re-elected without a doubt and the entire energies of the party should be devoted to two things, the capture of the legislature for the choice of a United States Senator, or failing that the retention of the Senate. Portsmouth, with its democratic city government and its democratic ward officials, must save the State, and a leader of the forlorn hope suggested that Daniel Marcy, who was "always born in Portsmouth" about the beginning of the present century, be taken up as a man who would unite all interests, and although he could not be elected he might come down handsomely with the greenbacks, which could be used in trying to turn the scale in this Senatorial district. Two years ago, Portsmouth democrats presented the name of Albert R. Hatch for the nomination, but it being evident that he wouldn't run "worth chucks" where the people could get a fair chance at him, and Eastern Railroad stock not paying holders very liberally, a liberal contribution from this source would be unexpected. It was also suggested that Hatch since being elevated to a seat in the House had an eye on the U. S. Senatorship and didn't care about being run down for Governor. The Manchester democracy saw a chance to kill off Bingham's ally and the Jones-Sinclair element fairly twinkled with joy over the scheme. The former hope to compromise Ex-Gov. Weston into the U. S. Senate and the latter prefer any such movement rather than Bingham or Hatch—and so the entire crowd throw up their hats for Daniel Marcy and the ancient dispensation is acquiesced in, although the young democrats of the McKean-Daniell-Colony persuasion do not enthuse to any extent, although they look eagerly to the opening of the candidate's pocket-book. So the men who have appeared as contestants for the nomination disappear from mortal vision like ghosts conjured up for a brief season, and the procession marches once more to the rear.

News and Notes.

The latest New-York Herald sensation is a statement that Secretary Bristow is figuring for a democratic nomination for President! Bristow is too practical a Union man to secure a nomination from ex-rebels and their sympathizers. He was a Union General during the rebellion and remained throughout a loyal Kentucky republican, as he is now.

Two large hogs were found in the woods, at Hampton, recently, frozen to death. How they came there remains a mystery.

Thomas Love was arrested in Worcester, on Saturday, for a peculiar crime. Love is a vagrant, with no ostensible means of support, and has part of the time lived on the bounty of A. J. Duncan, who resides in Worcester. The other morning Mr. Duncan went to his barn to feed his cattle, not in the mean time seeing Love, and, after he had finished, came down on a ladder from the loft, going down backwards. When Mr. Duncan had nearly reached the foot he felt a rope touch his head, and a slip-noose was thrown around his neck. Mr. Duncan turned round and found himself in the toils of Love. Love had a long rope and one end around the neck of Duncan. Love pulled at the other end fiercely. A struggle ensued, which ended in the escape of Duncan from an untimely end, and the hasty flight of Love from the barn. Love has since been at large, but was captured on Saturday.

An editorial writer in the Exeter Democrat speaks of Daniel Marcy as "firm and upright as a pillar" and "pliant as spray!" It was probably this spray-like pliancy that led to his being brought forward for the gubernatorial candidacy. The democracy want some one who will milk easily.

Saturday afternoon about 400 workmen were discharged from the Charlestown naval station, in accordance with orders from the Navy Department at Washington. The most of the mechanics were discharged from the construction department, about two-thirds of the number employed in that department being dismissed. As soon as the Vandalia goes into commission, this week, about 200 more mechanics will be discharged.

The valuation of Epping increased 26 per cent., from April to Sept., 1875. That of Raymond for the same time decreased 1-4 per cent. Candia has increased 24 per cent.; Kingston 18 per cent.; Sandown 4 1-2 per cent.; Kensington 12 per cent.; Hampton 25 per cent.; Fremont 2 1-5 per cent.; Deerfield 21 per cent.; Danville 6 2-8 per cent.; Brentwood decreased 7-10 per cent.

The report of the committee on sewing in the Boston public schools has been printed. The fact that sewing is a very important branch of public education is shown by the reports of thirty competent ladies from the community at large, who were invited to inspect the schools. The main reason for this appears to be that a very large proportion of the girls in schools can learn sewing in no other way during their school years, and the amount of instruction that they gain in the schools is shown by these reports to be of exceeding value. After careful consideration the committee advises a careful and thorough teaching of sewing in all the lower classes of the girls' schools; that it should begin in the primary schools, where the boys could be taught with advantage as well as the girls, and should be continued certainly through the lower classes of the grammar schools, and that it should be left optional with each committee of the several schools to pursue the instruction through the higher classes. But it should be required in all the schools that the instruction should be thorough and efficient, so that after six or eight years of careful teaching the pupil may have gained a satisfactory knowledge of this useful branch of education.

Three girls of Epping, strong, buxom, and as pretty as they grow 'em anywhere, recently won a $15 bet from an old bachelor by cutting down and cording one cord of white-oak wood in seven hours.

While a Mrs. Bruce was shaking the ashes from a sieve into the river near Great bridge, at Exeter, she was struck by a large gust, which was swinging to and fro, and losing her balance, followed the laws of gravitation and went down and into the stream, from which she was rescued in a dripping condition.

There are at present 286 boarders at the County farm; 105 of them are tramps and prisoners, while there are 183 paupers.

The death of Dr. Samuel G. Howe closes a career that has for the most part been spent in philanthropic service. His name has been a prominent one in many public enterprises, but the philanthropy by which he is best known is the system of instruction for the blind which he conducted in South Boston for so many years.

The republicans select a place for holding their National convention this week.

Alleged Pension Frauds.

[Portland Argus, 7th.]

A few weeks since it will be remembered that "Rev." Nathaniel W. Randall was convicted in the United States Court in this city, for attempting to pass a clumsily altered bank bill, in Waterville. He was committed to Auburn jail, where he is now serving out his sentence of five years.

The case against Randall was worked up by Col. J. Horace Kent, special detective in the United States secret service. At the time he was investigating this case he accidentally ran on to another, which has proved much more important. He incidentally learned that there were some pension frauds being committed, and after disposing of Randall's case, he set about investigating this one, and has succeeded in bringing it to a successful conclusion.

It appears that in the town of Clinton, twenty-eight miles from Augusta, on the Maine Central road, there was a ring formed to swindle the government out of money by pension frauds, the head of which was this same Randall, who acted as justice of the peace, before whom the fraudulent papers were sworn out. The ring consisted of Mrs. E. E. Randall, wife of the chief sinner, George Henry Lewis, Mrs. J. Lewis, John Lewis, Aaron Eldridge and his wife, Thankful Eldridge. They succeeded in inducing a woman, who has not yet been arrested, to impersonate a deceased widow whose husband had died in the army. This was in the year 1874, and they succeeded in getting the papers through. The woman drew $360 back pensions, and has been receiving eight dollars per month since that time.

The case was a very complicated one, every one who knew anything about the affair being extremely reticent. However, Col. Kent got hold of a thread, and with his usual perseverance, unraveled the whole thing.

Wednesday, taking with him U. S. Marshal H. D. Marble, they left this city, arriving at Clinton about six o'clock that evening. The parties arrested, whose names are given above, lived within a circuit of six or eight miles of the village. The officers therefore took teams, and with some assistance succeed in arresting all the parties and had them safely under lock and key at the hotel before two o'clock yesterday morning.

Such an unusual bustle about the hotel of course caused the greatest excitement, and early in the morning the news having got abroad, a large crowd assembled about the house, all excited to an unusual degree. The greatest surprise was expressed that people they so well knew should be under arrest on such grave charges.

Yesterday, Col. Kent and Mr. Marble brought their prisoners to this city. They were accompanied by three gentlemen friends. Those arrested were taken before Commissoner Rand, who held them each in $600, for appearance in the United States Court, Saturday. The gentlemen who accompanied them furnished satisfactory bail, and they were released. The grand jury were brought together and the case laid before them, and they will probably find an indictment, as the proof is said to be positive.

Two days later it would have been impossible to have brought the parties to justice on this charge, as according to certain statutes, offenses not capital cannot be presented, if not brought before the limitation, which in a case of this kind is two years.

The parties arrested assert that they were made dupes of by the "Rev." Randall, and think they will be able to prove their innocence of any wrong intent.

Resolutions of Respect.

At the special meeting of the school board, Saturday evening, the following resolutions were unanimously passed:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God, in his providence, to remove from this life Henry C. Walker, a member of our Committee;

Resolved, That we receive in sincere sorrow the bereavement which has thus suddenly taken from this Board a prominent and valued member, and from this community a citizen deservedly respected and beloved;

Resolved, That we hereby express to the family of our late brother our heartfelt sympathy and our own sense of loss;

Resolved. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to the family of the deceased and to the press of this city.

Resolved, That the public schools of the city be closed Tuesday, January 11th, and that this committee attend the funeral services on that day.

Jottings.

The funeral services of the late Henry C. Walker will be held at the Middle street church to-day (Tuesday) at 12 o'clock. The body of the deceased will be placed in the chancel of the church at half-past eleven, and those desirous of seeing the remains can do so before the funeral services. St. John's and St. Andrew's Lodges will meet at eleven o'clock. The stores on Market and Congress streets will be closed during the funeral services, as a tribute of respect to the deceased.

The service at the Bow Mission, Sunday evening, was as usual very interesting, the Mission room and stairway being crowded, many going away for lack of room. The service of praise was conducted by Dr. E. B. Goodall, assisted by his son, Eddie. The sermon by Rev. J. A. Goss, was heard with attention, the best proof of its worth.

Messrs. Baker and Farron at the Opera House, last evening, were welcomed by a large audience. They presented their New Comedy of "Heinrich and Hettie," a very interesting picture of New York life. During the evening Messrs. Baker and Farron introduced several of their latest sketches, dances and songs. "Since Terrance Joined the Gang," was loudly encored and repeated amid great applause. The play itself is quite interesting, and with the inimitable acting of the two leading characters, no one went home dissatisfied. The support was excellent, and should they return to this city they will be cordially welcomed by those who saw them last night as well as many new ones who have heard of their ability and talent.—Hartford Courant.

The republican Councillor convention for this district will meet at the court house this morning at eleven o'clock.

The report of the committee appointed in behalf of the creditors of the Eastern Railroad Company to confer with the Directors of the road is of unusual interest. The plan is to mortgage the road to Trustees and scale the rate of interest on the bonds. This project, it is stated, will be a success if the road can make a net gain of $50,000 a year upon the present net earnings. The reduction of the President's salary to twenty-five per cent. of its original dimensions and the cutting down that has been decided upon in every possible department seems to show a determination to conduct the road economically at least. An enabling act must be secured, and the assent of the bondholders, who for several years will be obliged under its provisions to accept a lower rate of interest, must be obtained before this funding process and organization can be successfully attempted.

William Flynn, Esq., of Berwick, Me., a railroad contractor, has been appointed superintendent of the construction of fortifications in this harbor, in place of Mr. Robert Sauthoff.

A temperance meeting was held at the Temple, Sunday afternoon, which was addressed by George Sterling, President of the Dover Reform Club, George F. Guppy, an ex-President, the clergy of this city, and others. A large number signed the pledge. An organization was formed under the name of the Portsmouth Reform Club, with officers as follows: President, John S. Treat; Vice-Presidents, Dr. Albion P. Stevens, Hon. Frank W. Miller, John Stringer and Alonzo T. Craig; Secretary, Benjamin F. Thorndike; Chaplain, Rev. John A. Goss; Treasurer, Sewell W. Webber.

Congressman Randall is giving particular attention to the navy in his investigations for the purpose of reducing the appropriations. He proposes to have all the work that is done at the navy yards next year concentrated at two or three yards. He thinks that it will be the best way to do what work is necessary to be done at Boston and New York.

The United States frigate Constitution, lately placed upon the dry dock, will be completed for the Centennial by contract, consequently Naval Constructor Edward Hart has been detached from duty. Thus, the finishing stroke has been given to the old yard. The business will now be managed at League Island, under Naval Constructor Philip Hichborn, U. S. N., who reported for duty January 1 as successor to Constructor Hart. Constructor Hichborn, formerly from California, but lately from the Portsmouth yard, will have a large field for an exhibition of his mechanical qualifications, and the millions of dollars to be expended at this yard will in the future make it one of the most important in the country. —Phila. Press.

The Squamscott river was on Tuesday of last week open from Exeter to Portsmouth, a thing which has not been known to occur before for twenty years.

We may expect a rich treat to-morrow evening from Theodore Tilton. Our exchanges tell us of the brilliant and fashionable audiences which have crowded to hear him whenever he has lectured. At some places the crowd has completely blocked up the street, and on his appearance upon the platform, he has been greeted with shouts of applause, ending with prolonged cheering. He will arrive in Portsmouth at half past five Wednesday evening, and put up at the Rockingham. F.

The folly of indiscriminate charity is shown by a former resident of this city, who for years lived from hand to mouth, and when a hundred dollars or more were subscribed for him by generous friends, spent thirty dollars for cologne to be presented to some young people whom he was to teach.

N. F. Mathes, Esq., has returned from a three weeks' trip to Mobile, Pensacola and New Orleans, and reports no overcoat weather South of Washington, the mocking bird in full bloom and the skies serene.

Commodore Stephen Decatur, U. S. N., died of bilious colic on Sunday afternoon, at his residence in Boston. He was born in New Jersey and was appointed to the service from New Hampshire. Of late years he has been blind, which has prevented active service.

The Direct Cable has been repaired.

Dr. Cherry may be consulted free of charge at the Rockingham House, Portsmouth, Thursday and Friday, January 13th and 14th.

MARINE CHRONICLE

MONDAY, Jan 10.

ARRIVED—Sch Island Belle, Wyndman, Philada.
SAILED—Sch Alleghanie, Bryant, Rockland.

How the Blood is Filtered.

When the blood contains the acrid elements which produce rheumatism, gout and venereal disorders, the kidneys ought, for it is their office, to filter from the blood, in its passage through them, these hurtful impurities. When they do not, they may be incited to a thorough performance of their duty, and the blood thoroughly depurated by that admirable corrective of organic inactivity, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only is torpidity of the kidneys overcome, through the agency of the Bitters, but digestion is facilitated, bilious tendencies counteracted, and the bowels stimulated to a due discharge of their function, which, in connection with that of the kidneys tends to free the system from the bodily refuse, whose retention is so prejudicial to health.

It is suicide in the third degree, if not worse, to suffer a cough and cold to culminate in consumption, when a single bottle of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, taken in time would effect a perfect and permanent cure.

Pike's Toothache Drops cure in one minute.

Children like the taste of Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. It cures their cold and prevents the cough.

For Throat Diseases and Affections of the Chest, "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are of value. For Coughs, Irritation of the Throat caused by cold, or unusual exertion of the vocal organs, in speaking in public, or singing, they produce beneficial results.

American Ladies.

America is justly proud of her beautiful ladies but how many mar their beauty and lose their health and youth, become prematurely old in appearance by neglecting to take proper care of their teeth. There can be no excuse for this, as SOZODONT, pronounced by all worthy a place between the sweetest lips, can now be had in all civilized countries.

TO BE GIVEN AWAY

GRAND CLOSING

—AT—

HENDERSON'S.

The parties who had agreed to purchase my stock of Dry Goods on the first of January, not being able to meet their engagements, the stock is still left in my hands, which seriously interferes with the business arrangements I had made.

I have therefore determined to give the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity a rousing benefit. To make quick work of it, I propose the following inducements to purchasers of Dry Goods:

A Present to every Customer

buying One Dollar's worth of goods.

A Better Present to every customer buying Two Dollars' worth.

A still Better One to every customer buying Five Dollars' worth.

An Elegant Present to every customer buying Ten Dollars' worth.

Every customer buying One Dollar's worth or more, is sure of a Valuable Present.

In addition to all this, one in every twenty-five packages containing a present, also contains a check entitling the lucky holder to the

Elegant Chamber Set

IN MY WINDOW

VALUED AT 55 DOLLARS.

ONE-HALF BARREL FLOUR,

LADIES' ROCKING CHAIR,

ONE BOX RAISINS,

ONE BARREL POTATOES,

ONE BARREL APPLES,

And lots of other merchandise to eat and to wear.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT AT THE HEAD OF THIS COLUMN IS AN ACTUAL FACT!

The amount of presents to be given away is equal to just one-half the amount of the value of the goods sold.

The Grandest Dry Goods sale ever heard of,—offering better inducements even than Lovering in his celebrated book sale.

We don't all want a book, but we all need Dry Goods, and in purchasing of me you get your goods as low as can be bought in Portsmouth with all the additional inducements thrown in.

☞ Everything will be conducted squarely and everything advertised will be carried out.

No person in the store knows the package containing the checks for the larger presents, and the only condition we exact from the persons receiving them is the privilege of publishing their names, simply to satisfy the public that the goods are given away as advertised.

How to Sleep Well.

If "blessed is the man who invented sleep," then blessed is the man who helps the wakeful to find it, especially if his way is simple. This is a very simple way to throw the watch off his guard. I have tried it always with success. The heavy sleeper will call it a whim, but I have found wakefulness full of such whims. Mesmerism teaches sensitives at least to lie with their heads to the north. That is simply whimsical to those who do not understand or believe in Reichenbach's philosophy. But I am persuaded by experience, without any hypothesis, that it is the way for me. It is the soothing way—it agrees, as I conceive, with the grain of the nerves, or the map of the sensibilities. Indeed, I would have every bedroom arranged with reference to this rule, believing it would tell on the temper of the family. But if you have a wakeful habit your enemy will find you out in any bed or routine, and for a wakeful habit you will sometimes find a magical effect in change—even whimsical change. Change your room, or move your bed, or turn head to foot. If you are lying on a high pillow fling it away and let your head down flat. If lying with your head low, raise it. If you have been trying to sleep without a light, strike one; if otherwise, put it out. Finally, quit the bed and take to the chair. The bed may treat you better after a little quarrel. Wakefulness may be easily traced to physical causes in many instances, but often it is of the nature of a spell; and when we say a "wakeful spell," the phrase is capable of a double sense. For one thing, I have convinced myself that sleep does not depend on quiet. I am not always trying to find a still place. I am sure the wakeful can get above petty disturbances. For another thing, I do not worry as I used to in view of not sleeping, or because I have got bad my seven or eight hours like other folks. I find that half that time refreshes me if I am thankful for it. It is the discontent which comes with sleeplessness that make us sick more than the loss of sleep. Then I find this "don't care" feeling a great provocative of sleep. You save your life by losing it in such a case. Sleep is wonderfully susceptible to coquetry. Tell it you can get along very well without it, and it isn't half so willing to part company with you as it seemed.

It Pays! It Pays!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer, or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

IT PAYS the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this to an extent beyond that of any other publication, in fact it is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions and new discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents embrace the latest and most reliable information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts, forming a complete repository of New Inventions and Discoveries; containing a weekly record not only of the progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Improvements in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics, and Science abroad.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the foremost of all industrial publications for the past Thirty Years, is the oldest, largest, cheapest, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions, Science and Industrial Progress, published in the World.

The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. Send for the Sample and house will save many times the cost of subscription.

Merchants, Farmers, Mechanics, Manufacturers, Inventors, Engineers, Architects, Chemists, Lovers of Science, and People of all Professions, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN useful to them; it should be in every place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College and School. A new volume commences January 1st, 1876.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several hundred engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. Terms, $4.20 a year by mail, including postage; half yearly, $2.10. Clubs. Special circulars giving Club rates sent free. Single copies mailed on receipt of 10 cents. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. In connection with the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, MUNN & CO. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. Have had thirty years' experience, and have made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Sketches examined and advice etc. A special notice is made in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or whole, persons attracted to the invention by this notice. Send for Pamphlet, containing full directions for obtaining Patents. A book containing valuable Patent Laws, Decisions of the U. S., and 142 Engravings of mechanical movements. Price 25 cents.

DR. QUAIN'S

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaints, Nervousness, Sexual Weakness, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package was so delighted with them himself or friends, and in short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden, Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 2, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, so bad at times, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so low that my friends almost despaired of my much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay most of the time for about three weeks. I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit from them, commenced by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, who have obtained great benefit from them. Inclosed one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat hearty now. Inclosed is testimonials one and they were worth their weight in gold, if not more, to me, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I really with severe Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to leave my bed, and I suffered intensely from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Cosmopolitan. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep nicely now, and have not had any Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will cure them. Inclosed please find $1.00, please send two packages. Yours respectfully, MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslindale, who are taking it, and are doing much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages. MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, on the greatest commemorative festival ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which indicate that the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its overhauling the net six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the agricultural and industrial finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the State schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. A time of trouble and revolution in industry there seems to be, and there is all witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as well deserving the claim to the continued regard of all old readers, and the access also of many new ones. Its intelligent citizens can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, unbiased by partisan necessities or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banner, whether in Congress or in Convent or caucuses or conventions; it must approve good and condemn bad in political measures of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men, whose the common sense and common trust; to secure hard money, administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and such a tariff revenue, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and lost by the Democrats in Pennsylvania, and as earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an honest Legislature in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people outnumbered, but it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command a greater approval.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon some of the worst practices of the old masters, and to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that considerable portions of the Democratic party in within two or three years gradually forced both parties to do some of the things they now, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost vigor with journalistic fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor thus so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1872 and 1875 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, and of "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the merits of its pages, and the most lavish expenditure to procure the fresh est intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and still, alas! the work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is now discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing to its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the bad trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

THE OTHER BUNKER HILL.

Yesterday while half a dozen men were sitting around a hot stove in a Randolph street saloon, one of them made some remark about Bunker Hill.

"What's that?" called a man who had for several minutes been silently contemplating one of his big feet.

"I was speaking of Bunker Hill, where the British were licked out of their boots by the Americans," exclaimed the first.

"Wasn't a British soldier there, and I'll bet five dollars on it!" said the man with the big feet.

"Wasn't, eh?"

"Not a one!"

"Do you think I'm a fool?" roared the first.

"I don't think nuthing; only it was the Dutch there instead of the British."

"You'll bet?"

"Yes'r."

A bet large enough to cover the drinks for the crowd was made, and one of the men ran home and got a history which contained a full account of the battle, as well as an illustration.

"Here it is," he said, opening the book. "British troops landed from frigates—Americans behind redoubt—British advance—here it is plain as day."

"Where does it say the battle of Bunker Hill was fought?" asked the stranger as he reached around for a piece of cheese.

"Why, near Boston, of course."

"Boston?"

"Yes."

"Well, that isn't reliable, then, or else they've got things mixed. I meant the battle of Bunker Hill in Texas, and this book says Boston. Seems to be two Bunker Hills!"

As arguments could not move him they carried him to the door, jammed his hat over his eyes and set him to walking.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 70 STATE ST., OPPOSITE RILEY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for us many of our patent applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part, leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

PILGRIM'S PROGRESS--1620--1875.

[By J. Hammond Trumbull.]

1620. Lands on Plymouth Rock, and sets up for himself.

1621. Keeps Thanksgiving—in no danger of over-eating.

1622. Builds a Meeting-house.

1623. Proclaims a Fast Day.

1628. Cuts down a May pole at Merry Mount, as a rebuke to vain recreations.

1635. Is crowded for accommodations, and stakes out a new farm at Connecticut.

1637. Makes war on the Antimonians and the Pequot Indians—and whips both.

1638. Starts a College, and 1640. Sets up a Printing Press.

1643. Goes into a Confederacy—the first Colonial Congress.

1648. Lays down the Cambridge Platform. Hangs a Witch.

1649. Sets his face against the unchristian custom of wearing long hair, "a thing uncivil and uncomely."

1651. Is rebuked for "intolerable excess and bravery of apparel," and is forbidden to wear gold and silver lace, or such gewgaws.

1661. Coins Pine Tree Shillings—and makes the business profitable.

1663. Prints a Bible for the Indians.

1680. Buys a "hang up" Clock, and occasionally carries a silver watch that helps him guess the time of day. About this period learns to use Forks at Table: a new fashion.

1692. Is scared by Witches again, at Salem; but gets the better of them.

1701. Founds another College, which, after a while, settles down at New Haven.

1704. Prints his first Newspaper, in Boston.

1705. Tastes Coffee, as a luxury, and at his own table.

1708. Constructs another Platform—this time at Saybrook.

1710. Begins to sip Tea—very sparingly. It does not come into family use till five and twenty years later.

1711. Puts a letter into his first Post Office.

1720. Eats a Potato—and takes one home to plant in his garden as a curiosity.

1721. Is Inoculated for the Small Pox—not without grave remonstrance from his conservative neighbors. Begins to Sing by note, on Sundays, thereby encountering much opposition and opening a ten years' quarrel.

1740. Manufactures tin ware, and starts the first Tin Peddler on his travels.

1742. Sees Faneuil Hall built. The cradle of Liberty is ready to be rocked.

1745. Builds an Organ; but does not yet permit it to be played in the Meeting House.

1750. Buys a bushel of Potatoes for winter's use—all his friends wondering what he will do with so many.

1755. Puts up a Franklin Stove in his best room, and tries one of the newly invented Lightning Rods.

1756. Starts The New Hampshire Gazette, the present oldest living paper in the United States.

1760. About this time begins to wear a collar to his shirt. When he can afford it, takes his wife to meeting in a Chaise, instead of on a pillion, as heretofore.

1765. Shows his dislike to stamped Paper, and joins the "Sons of Liberty."

1768. Tries his hand at Type Founding—not yet successful—in Connecticut.

1770. Buys a home-made Wooden Clock.

1773. Waters his Tea, in Boston harbor. Plants Liberty Trees wherever he finds good soil.

1774. Lights Boston streets with oil Lamps; a novelty, (though "Town Lights" had been plenty, some years before.)

1775. Shows Lord Percy how to march to "Yankee Doodle." Calls at Ticonderoga, to take lodgings for the season. Sends General Putnam (under the command of several Colonels) with a small party, to select a sight for Bunker Hill monument.

1776. Brother Jonathan—as he begins to be called in the family—declares himself Free and Independent.

1780. Buys an "Umbrillo," for Sundays; and whenever he shows it is laughed at for his effeminacy.

1791. Starts a Cotton Spinning factory.

1792. Has been raising Silk Worms, in Connecticut; and now gives his minister (not his wife) a home-made silk gown. Buys a Carpet for the middle of the parlor floor.

1793. Invents the Cotton Gin—and thereby triples the value of Southern plantations.

1795-1800. Wears Pantaloons occasionally, but not when in full dress. Begins to use Plates on the breakfast and tea table.

1802. Has the boys and girls vaccinated.

1806. Tries to burn a piece of Hard Coal from Philadelphia; a failure.

1807. Sees a boat go by Steam on the Hudson.

1815. Holds a little Convention at Hartford, but doesn't propose to dissolve the Union. Buys one of Terry's patent "Shelf Clocks" for $36, and regulates his watch by it.

1817. Sets up a Stove in the Meeting-house, and builds a fire in it on Sunday; an innovation which is stoutly resisted by many.

1818. Begins to run a Steamboat on Long Island Sound—and takes passage on it to New York, after making his will.

1819. Grown bolder, he crosses the Atlantic in a steamship.

1822. Lights Gas in Boston (but doesn't light Boston with gas till 1829). At last learns how to make Hard Coal burn, and sees a grate in his parlor. Buys a Steel Pen (one of Gillotts', sold at $33 per gross).

Has his every day shirts made without Ruffles.

1825. About this time, puts a Percussion Lock on his old musket.

1826. Buys his wife a pair of queer-shaped India Rubber overshoes. Puts on his first False Collar. Tries an "Experimental" railroad by horse power.

1828. Tastes his first Tomato—doubtingly. Is told that it is unfashionable to feed himself with his knife—and buys Silver Forks for great occasions.

1833. Rubs his first Friction Match—then called a "Lucifer," and afterward "Loco Foco." Tarows away the old Tinder-box, with its flint and steel.

1835. Invents the Revolver, and sets about supplying the world with it as a peace-maker. Tries a Gold Pen, but cannot find a good one yet—nor till 1844. Builds a real Railroad, and rides on it.

1837. Gets in a panic—and out again, after free use of "shin-plasters."

1838. Adopts the new fashion of putting his letters in Envelopes (a fashion which does not fairly prevail till seven years later.)

1840. Sits for his Daguerreotype, and gets a picture fearfully and wonderfully made. Begins to blow himself up with "Camphene" and "Burning Fluid," and continues the process for years, with changes of name of the active agent, down to and including "Non-explosive Kerosene."

1844. Sends his first message by the Electric Telegraph.

1847. Buys his wife a sewing machine—in the vain hope that somehow it will keep the buttons on his shirts. Begins to receive advices from the "Spirit World."

1855. Begins to bore and be bored by the Hoosac Tunnel.

1858. Celebrates the laying of the Ocean Cable, and sends a friendly message to John Bull. Next week begins to doubt whether the Cable has been laid at all.

1861. Goes South, to help compose a family quarrel. Takes to using paper money.

1861-65. Climbs the Hill Difficulty—relieved of his pack, after January 1, 1864; but loses Great Heart, April 14, 1865.

1865. Gets the Atlantic Cable in working order at last, in season to send word to his British cousins (who have been waiting for an invitation to his funeral) that he "lives yet."

1865-75. Is reconstructing and talking about Resumption. Sends his boys to the Museum to see an old-fashioned Silver Dollar.

1875. Goes to Bunker Hill to pay honor to the illustrious men who commanded General Putnam. Thinks he won't inflate—and helps strangle a Western rag baby. Gets ready to celebrate his second golden wedding by a grand family reunion next year in Philadelphia.

News and Notes.

A party of miners from Lisbon took a half-holiday last Saturday and spent the time in drinking and fighting at the house of David Ames in Lyman. During the melee Frank Williams stabbed William Marston and another miner, and Marston will probably die.

Here is an extract from the private jottings of a quiet looker-on in Washington, who is something of an amateur in politics. It was written on the 6th, "Another victory for Blaine to-day. Randall had an amnesty bill. Blaine gave notice of an amendment. Randall said he wouldn't let Blaine's amendment in. Blaine asked how he was going to get through his bill, which required two-thirds, without republican votes. Randall still said he wouldn't promise to let Blaine in. Blaine said: "Then you will only keep a great many people without amnesty; that's your business." [General laughter at Randall.] On the whole, the democrats don't show well. To-day, on Randall's motion to adjourn to Monday, to let the committees have time, Fernando Wood rose in a huff and said the committees had been idle long enough, that they ought to have brought in business before this. There was an undertone of suggestion that if he had been, and so forth, and so forth, and so forth, it would have been different. Thereupon a brief squabble among the democrats amid the grins of the republicans, and the motion passed."

By order of the Board of Directors of the Boston and Maine Railroad a general reduction in number and wages of employes will be made the 15th of this month. This reduction is to extend through all departments, and the amount reduced will be about ten per cent. of the amount now paid.

The Chicago Tribune thinks Jimmy Blanchard will be in the Whiskey Ring and have a front pew at church when he becomes a man.

Two Maine sea captains, Capt. White of Portland, and Capt. Griffin, of Searsport, have just struck a bonanza in the Havana lottery. The prize is $75,000, payable in Cuban currency, which is at about 50 per cent. discount.

Chief Engineer Bartleman, on duty as Inspector of Coal at Philadelphia, is to succeed Stewart at the Boston Navy Yard, the latter having been ordered to duty as President of the Board of Examining Engineers at New York.

The Springfield Republican says that Washburne's declination of a Presidential candidacy does not hurt him, and that there is more than one clever republican aspirant who might profitably sit at the feet of the unambitious old gentleman from Galena and learn how to do it. How would it like to place Charles Francis on one of those footstools?

Signor Blitz, the famous ventriloquist, of Philadelphia, has been suffering severely, this Winter, from asthmatic complaints, and will probably spend the remainder of the seasons in Florida or Colorado.

Wong Chin Foo lectured in Nashua on Sunday evening, and the zealous city clerk, Geo. H. Taggard, appeared at the ticket office and seized the cash box containing the tickets and money to the amount of $50, because the taker of tickets declined to pay the rent of the hall before the close of the lecture. After the lecture Wong paid the rent and redeemed the cash box, and now proposes to prosecute the city clerk for disturbing his lecture and stealing the box and contents.

Over 300 Turkish troops have been frozen to death near Donza.

There was a spirited debate in the House on the amnesty bill, Monday, and Mr. Blaine made an able speech opposing the pardon of Jeff Davis, charging him with the responsibility of starving Union prisoners at Andersonville.

THE PRESIDENTIAL CONTEST.

[Phila. Cor. N. Y. Tribune.]

There is just a possibility that with Gov. Tilden as their candidate the democrats might succeed. But they are not likely to nominate him. A democratic National convention is usually concentrated political stupidity. In 1864 the party nominated an unsuccessful General, when all the country wanted of military men was success. In 1868 it took a New York politician who could not carry his own State, and threw away its chance for carrying the West, where its greatest strength then lay. Now it is essential that they should hold the ground in the East which it won in 1874; but instead of selecting a popular Eastern candidate it will, in all probability, put up some Western man, and thus lose the fight before it is fairly begun. But, with Gov. Tilden as its candidate the democracy would scarcely have an even chance of carrying New York. When the issue is presented whether the country is to be handed over to a party that has shown neither intelligence, capacity, nor honesty, the excellent record of Mr. Tilden in the office of Governor will not have much weight.

According to this brief statement of republican expectations and arguments New York is believed to be about as certain to choose a republican electoral ticket as either Ohio or Pennsylania. The same conditions which control the Empire State are relied upon to decide the verdict of Connecticut and New Jersey. Reduced to figures the republican view of the situation is expressed as follows:

REPUBLICAN STATES.

Maine	7	Wisconsin	10
New Hampshire	5	Illinois	21
Vermont	5	Iowa	11
Connecticut	6	Minnesota	5
Massachusetts	13	Nebraska	3
Rhode Island	4	Kansas	5
New York	35	Colorado	3
New Jersey	9	Nevada	3
Pennsylvania	29	South Carolina	7
Ohio	22
Michigan	11	Total	216

The republicans believe that with a first-rate candidate on the issues now existing, they can carry all these States. As it requires 184 votes to elect, supposing Colorado to be admitted this winter, they have a liberal margin, but not enough to enable them to do without New York. Without that State they would still lack 5 votes.

DEMOCRATIC STATES.

Delaware	3	Kentucky	12
Maryland	8	Tennessee	12
Virginia	11	Missouri	15
West Virginia	5	Arkansas	6
North Carolina	10	Texas	8
Georgia	11
Alabama	10	Total	112

This differs from the democratic estimate in excluding Louisiana, Mississippi, and Florida, which the republicans do not abandon all hope of carrying.

DOUBTFUL STATES.

Indiana	15	Mississippi	8
California	6	Louisiana	8
Oregon	3
Florida	4	Total	39

"PUT UP THE COIN."

[Sacramento Record.]

A large crowd gathered yesterday on Fourth street, attracted by the moving through the streets of one of the old buildings from John Taylor's lot. The building was about fifty feet long, and was mounted on four wooden track wheels with a pair of wagon wheels in front, to which a team of six stout mules were hitched. After many tugs the old house started, the driver yelling, and the mud flying all over the sidewalk, scattering the crowd and bespattering the Goddess of Liberty on the dome of the Court House. After an hour's time they succeeded in dragging the building about one hundred and fifty feet. Within a few feet of the crossing from the Recorder's office to Evans' store they stuck fast, owing to a slight rise in the street made by the crossing. The driver shouted himself hoarse, the six big mules floundered about in the mud, but not an inch would they budge the old building. The crowd increased, and bets were made that they would never start it again. A teamster from the rod-weeds, with four mustangs, had stopped to watch the performance—a smooth-faced, athletic young fellow. He said nothing until, roused perhaps by a splash of mud, he walked to the front, wiping his face on his sleeve, and said—"I ain't got but three dollars, but I'll bet every cent of it that my four mustangs will start that rookery out of there." There was a derisive laugh from the crowd, and half a dozen takers. "Put up the money," said the teamster. "If I had more or knew where to borrow say, I'd see the last one of you." The bet was taken, Jerry Farmer held the stakes, the six mules were taken off and the four mustangs hitched on. Meanwhile the interest of the crowd increased, and bets were freely made with big odds against the teamster. When ready to start, the excitement was at a high pitch. The little mustangs bent to their work, but the house did not move. He started them again; no go. Nothing daunted, the teamster in answer to the crowd, who were chaffing him from all quarters, said:—"If Jim Shaw was here I'd get the money and bet $50 that I could start it. I ain't got 'em warmed yet." "I'll bet you $50 against one of your horses," said a well known livery man, "that you can't pull it five feet." "It's a whack," said the teamster; "put up the coin." The money was handed to Jerry Farmer, the stake-holder. Another tug; the little mustangs seemed to hump themselves, but it was no go. "I'll bet you another fifty against that mare's mate you can't do it," said the livery man, eagerly. "Done," said the teamster; "I'll bet the last hoof of 'em on it, and you may swing me to one of them oaks in the plaza if they can't do it." By this time the excitement was running high among the lookers on, and the bets were numerous. One offered to bet $100 he could not do it, and the teamster got a friend to take the bet for him. Those who had watched the teamster closely now noticed a change in his manner, a curious smile on his countenance. He walked up to each horse successively, tapped him on the rump with the butt end of his black snake, and said to each: "Stand up there now in your harness." For the first time he mounted the rear wheel, seized a single rein, turned his team off "haw," swung them back "gee," cracked his whip, gave a yell, and, as they straightened, the unwieldy load rose over the obstruction like an old hulk over a swell at sea, greeted by a burst of applause from the bystanders. The mustangs pulled for about twenty-five feet, and then he stopped them. "You see, boys," said the teamster, as he got down, "I'm with them all the time, and know just what they can do, and"—with a child-like smile—"just when to make 'em do it." As he dropped the stakes into his overalls pocket, he said: "I'd give $50 out of that are stake if Jim Shaw had been here to see that pull."

—A German journal, Der Landwirth, thus describes the manufacture of "dried potatoes" as conducted at Carsten's works in Lubeck: The potatoes are peeled with the hand, and cut into disks by a machine. These are put in a basket, and this in a boiler, where the potatoes are nearly but not quite boiled. The disks are next put on wire frames in a dry oven, where they are dried quite hard. It is important to preserve the color of the potatoes, and to prevent them turning gray, as they would by the above process alone; the material after slicing is treated with cold water, to which has been added 1 per cent. of sulphuric acid, or 1 to 2 per cent. of muriatic acid. Then it is washed in pure water, and the drying proceeds. The preparation obtained, which has lost none of its starch, is of a slightly citron-yellow tint, and transparent like gum. Boiled with water and a little salt, it is said to resume the natural color and fibrous structure of potatoes, and is not distinguishable in taste from newly boiled potatoes.

—"Pa, are you in favor of the Bible in the public schools?" asked a West side youngster at the breakfast table the other morning. "Why, of course I am," responded the father, pleased that such an important subject should engage the attention of his youthful offspring. "What makes you ask such a question, my son?" "O, nothing," replied young hopeful; "only I thought may be you wasn't, as you never had one at home."

—An engaged young gentleman got neatly out of a little scrape with his intended. She taxed him with having kissed two young ladies at some party at which she was not present. He owned it, but said that their united ages only made twenty-one. The simple-minded girl thought of ten and eleven, and so laughed off her pout. He did not explain that one was nineteen and the other two years of age.

—An Americanized citizen was called on as a witness in a case before one of the justices lately, and when the oath was administered he raised both hands and said: "I shall spoke noddings what ain't drew, if ever I hope to die so quick as a minute!"

To My Patients and the Public!

I propose to leave Portsmouth about February 1st, for an absence of several months. Will those contemplating or needing my services please give me an early call? Previous to my departure for Europe in 1874, so many of my patients neglected to call until the very last that I was compelled to seek the assistance of a stranger to help me out with my forced engagements. I cannot do so this year. The responsibility rests with my patients after this call.

Masonic Funeral.

The funeral services of the late Henry C. Walker took place at the Middle street church on Tuesday, and were of a peculiarly solemn and impressive character. The body of the deceased was taken from the house at quarter before twelve and escorted to the church and placed at the head of the middle aisle in front of the pulpit. The casket which contained the remains was literally loaded with flowers, besides floral tributes being placed in and about the pastors' desk. Some of these offerings were elegant, among them being a magnificent cross composed entirely of passion flowers, a broken circle solid with carnations, and a Maltese cross, in the centre of which were the initial letters I. N. R. I. formed of violets, these being furnished by the Sir Knights of De Witt Clinton Commandery, which the deceased was an honored member. Inside the casket was placed a cross made of rose-buds, violets, smilax, etc., while outside there were profuse trimmings of passion vines caught up with camelias, and made heavy with flowers.

The church was filled at an early hour, space having been reserved for the Knights Templar, the St. John's and St. Andrew's Lodges of Free Masons, general school Committee, and relatives and friends of the deceased. Rev. Mr. Alden conducted the opening exercises, the solemn burial service of the Knights Templar being rendered in the church instead of at the grave in consequence of the severity of the weather.

Mr. Alden's remarks were particularly appropriate and sympathetic, and the presence of so large a number of the Masonic fraternity and friends testified to the esteem in which Mr. Walker was held by those who knew him.

Jottings.

Theodore Tilton lectures this evening on "The Problem of Life" at the Temple, and there is a general desire to hear the gifted speaker. The sale of reserved seats continues at Preston's.

An interested friend contradicts the report that a recent recipient of charity spent a large portion of the fund subscribed for his benefit in purchasing presents for his pupils.

The republican Councillor convention for this district met at the U. S. Court room in this city on Tuesday. Col. William H. Sise, of Portsmouth, presided, and Henry Lancker, of Dover, was secretary. Messrs. William B. Blake, C. N. Nute and Isaiah Wilson were appointed a committee on credentials and after the transaction of other routine business Hon. Charles A. Foss of Barrington was unanimously renominated for Councillor.

Two teaspoonfuls of finely powdered charcoal, drank in a half a tumbler of water, will often give relief to the sick headache when caused, as in most cases it is, by a superabundance of acid on the stomach.

One of the best entertainments ever given in this city was presented by Messrs. Baker & Farron, at Music Hall, last evening. Of the many semi-dramatic and variety entertainments now traveling through the country, there are none more deserving of success and the liberal patronage of the public, than the above excellent artists and their associates. In the very interesting comedy of "Heinrich and Hettie," they have abundant opportunity to give their own specialties, such as sketches, dances and songs. When they sang "Terrence has joined the gang," it would seem as though the gods of the gallery couldn't get enough of it, as the artists were forced to sing it three times to satisfy them. The "Raw Recruits," and "Just because I'm Irish," also received unbounded applause. In fact the whole entertainment was first class in every particular, and the large audience went away in the best of humor. We hope Messrs. Baker & Farron may soon visit our city, for we know that they will be heartily welcomed. New Haven Register.

Orders were received on Monday to put the U. S. S. Marion into commission on Wednesday. Her destination is Norfolk.

Mrs. Ellery Channing Coolidge, known in the musical world by her maiden name, Addie S. Ryan, died at Boston on Monday, aged 35 years. She was a native of St. Johnsbury, Vt., and acquired an enviable reputation as a vocalist, her voice being a rich and pleasing contralto. She was a favorite in Portsmouth musical circles, having appeared here in concert at various times, her last appearance being with the Mendelssohn Quintet Club. She had been married two or three years at the time of her death.

The republican County convention will meet at Exeter to-morrow at 11 A. M. The senatorial convention will meet at the same place, the same day, at noon.

A very interesting series of meetings have been held of late at the Advent chapel on Hanover street. Strangers are always welcomed with true courtesy, and the members deprecate any doctrinal controversy which might produce unpleasant results. There can be no doubting the friendly welcomes given by these unassuming believers in the Second Advent.

Meeting of the Board of Trade this evening.

How the Blood is Filtered.

When the blood contains the acrid elements which produce rheumatism, gout and venereal disorders, the kidneys ought, for it is their office, to filter from the blood, in its passage through them, these hurtful impurities. When they do not, they may be incited to a through performance of their duty, and the blood thoroughly depurated by that admirable corrective of organic inactivity, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Not only is torpidity of the kidneys overcome, through the agency of the Bitters, but digestion is facilitated, bilious tendencies counteracted, and the bowels stimulated to a due discharge of their function, which, in connection with that of the kidneys tends to free the system from the bodily refuse, whose retention is so prejudicial to health.

It is suicide in the third degree, if not worse, to suffer a cough and cold to culminate in consumption, when a single bottle of HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR, taken in time would effecta perfect and permanent cure.

Children like the taste of Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. It cures their cold and prevents the cough.

For Throat Diseases and Affections of the Chest, "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are of value. For Coughs, Irritation of the Throat caused by cold, or unusual exertion of the vocal organs, in speaking in public, or singing, they produce beneficial results.

American Ladies.

America is justly proud of her beautiful ladies but how many mar their beauty and lose their health and youth, become prematurely old in appearance by neglecting to take proper care of their teeth. There can be no excuse for this, as SOZODONT, pronounced by all worthy a place between the sweetest lips, can now be had in all civilized countries.

TO BE GIVEN AWAY

GRAND CLOSING

—AT—

HENDERSON'S.

The parties who had agreed to purchase my stock of Dry Goods on the first of January, not being able to meet their engagements, the stock is still left in my hands, which seriously interferes with the business arrangements I had made.

I have therefore determined to give the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity a rousing benefit. To make quick work of it, I propose the following inducements to purchasers of Dry Goods:

A Present to every Customer

buying One Dollar's worth of goods.

A Better Present to every customer buying Two Dollars' worth.

A still Better One to every customer buying Five Dollars' worth.

An Elegant Present to every customer buying Ten Dollars' worth.

Every customer buying One Dollar's worth or more, is sure of a Valuable Present.

In addition to all this, one in every twenty-five packages containing a present, also contains a check entitling the lucky holder to the

Elegant Chamber Set

IN MY WINDOW

VALUED AT 55 DOLLARS.

ONE-HALF BARREL FLOUR,

LADIES' ROCKING CHAIR,

ONE BOX RAISINS,

ONE BARREL POTATOES,

ONE BARREL APPLES,

And lots of other merchandise to eat and to wear.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT AT THE HEAD OF THIS COLUMN IS AN ACTUAL FACT!

The amount of presents to be given away is equal to just one-half the amount of the value of the goods sold.

The Grandest Dry Goods sale ever heard of,—offering better inducements even than Lovering in his celebrated book sale.

We don't all want a book, but we all need Dry Goods, and in purchasing of me you get your goods as low as can be bought in Portsmouth with all the additional inducements thrown in.

☞ Everything will be conducted squarely and everything advertised will be carried out.

No person in the store knows the package containing the checks for the larger presents, and the only condition we exact from the persons receiving them is the privilege of publishing their names, simply to satisfy the public that the goods are given away as advertised.

It Pays! It Pays!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer, or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

IT PAYS the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is entertaining, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this to an extent beyond that of any other publication, in fact it is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions and new discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents embrace the latest and most reliable information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Engravings, of New Inventions, New Machines, Implements, New Processes, and Improved Implements of all kinds; Useful Notes, Receipts, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts, forming a complete repository of New Inventions and Discoveries, containing a weekly record not only of the progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Inventions in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics, and Science, at home and abroad.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the foremost of all industrial publications for the past Thirty Years. It is the cheapest, largest, cheapest, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions, Science and Industrial Progress, published in the World.

The annual receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. Auxiliary for the shop and house will save many times the cost of subscription.

Engineers, Architects, Mechanics, Inventors, Owners, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, and People of all Professions, will find the Scientific American useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College and School. A new volume commences January 1st, 1876.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several thousand engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. Terms, $3.20 a year by mail, including prepaid postage, or $1.60 for six months. Special circulars giving Club rates sent free. Single copies mailed on receipt of 10 cents. May be had of all Newsdealers.

PATENTS. In connection with the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Information about Patents and Patents, Models of New Inventions and Sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are sometimes sold in part or whole, interests extended to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, containing full directions for obtaining Patents. A bound volume containing the Patent Laws, Census of the U. S., and 142 Engravings, of mechanical movements. Sent for 10 cents.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaints, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was astonishing. Almost every one who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was a Burden Almost to Bear, Relieved by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia in their severest forms, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and life was so burdensome that it became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks, thinking I should die. I saw your advertisement in the Manchester Mirror, and received to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any benefit, however, I was benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report as well cured. One publisher has taken some good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have ordered more for them. I prefer to send one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me, a few days taking a few and those I care to say, send for a package for me." I have held many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I could not eat, couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have now gained everything back, and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; for my part I think they are worth ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.5o for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and limbs, often for five months I was obliged to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal of money, and received no benefit, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Boston Herald, and I thought the medicine was just what it needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken half of them I felt like a person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at my appearance, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and for a long time very poorly. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think the cure of these diseases is effected, and I will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for one box.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political contest peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is almost wholly in the hands of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Course throughout the next Congress will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fail to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the adjustment of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the energies of the Church to the State, and particularly to the State schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes that it will witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as entitling it to claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, unbiased by partisan necessities or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banners; but it will do its work in advance of caucuses or conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts of Democrats as well as of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in political its great object is to elect honest men, whose the country knows and can trust, to secure honest money, administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and such legislation, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pen sylvania, and as earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and measures, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon some of their worst practices, or else encounter a party to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that concessions and the efficient working for the ends within two or three years gradually forced both parties to do so, is some what hopeful, indeed we are inclined to think that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost order with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wranglings; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who desire to see such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the kind offices which have made it so joyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as the "leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It now with this position to defend, which it owes to its and the most lavish expenditure to procure the fresh and vigorous contributions, the best and most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the country, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

The Country Gentleman

POSTAGE FREE FOR 1876.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published WEEKLY on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; TWO COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the leader of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the leader of the Club.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN possesses an unequaled Corps of Correspondents, regular and occasional, among the best writers of all parts of the Country, and constantly reflects the practical conditions and prospects of Agriculture in every section of the United States and civilized world.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN gives in its Horticultural Department a complete encyclopedia of practical hints and suggestions, equal or superior in the aggregate to what is obtained in the monthly numbers of most magazines devoted to Horticulture.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN has probably done as much as any Publication to promote Agricultural Science and disseminate Improved Stock of every kind through the country; and commends to a greater degree than any other publication the confidence and support of breeders and purchasers.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN contains unusually full and trustworthy Market Reports, and devotes special attention to them and to the Prospects of the Crops, and throws light upon them, the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN embraces numerous minor departments of a practical character, such as the Dairy, the Poultry-Yard, the Apiary, the Vineyard, and so on, and has a department devoted to two for the Housewife and an interesting variety of Fireside Reading. It contains a well-filled Review of Current Events, and its advertising pages furnish a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing to its favor.

Is the ultima thula of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the humid trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a sup. rb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 12 steel plates, 12 colored patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to expend more money on embellishments, stories, &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write exclusively for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—A Pennsylvanian has taught a canary bird to sing "Home, Sweet Home," in this way: He placed the canary in a room where it could not hear the singing of other birds, suspended its cage from the ceiling so that it would see its reflection in a mirror, and beneath the glass placed a musical box that was regulated to play no other tune but "Home, Sweet Home." Hearing no other sounds but this, and believing the music proceeded from the bird it saw in the mirror, the young canary soon began to catch the notes, and finally got so that it sings the song perfectly.

—A farmer escorted his girl into a Vicksburg shoe store, recently, to have her provided with new understandings, and as he left her, in order to call at a store in another street, he said: "Now, Hannah, don't go and make a fool of yourself trying to crowd your big No. 7 feet in No. 5 shoes!" She blushed fiery red and gave him a terrible look, but he went on: "You know you did last Spring, and I believe that's the reason you had them biles on your legs!"

—"I wouldn't be such a Christian as you are, John," said his wife, as she stood in the doorway, dressed for church. "You could go with me very well if you wanted to." "How can I?" he half sobbed. "There's the wood to be split, and the coal to be shoveled over to the other side of the cellar, and no dishes washed for dinner yet." "Ah, I didn't think of that," she murmured, thoughtfully, and giving her new cloak a fresh hitch aft, sailed out alone.

—The London World gives the following description of the latest thing in coffins: "You are placed in a glass box, to the top of which is affixed a metal rod. As soon as the earth is filled in, a battery is connected with the rod and an electric shock shatters the coffin into a thousand pieces, thus allowing the earth to press upon the dear departed, and allowing him to return to dust even quicker than in one of Mr. Seymour Haden's wicker baskets."

—A poor discomfited boy in the first Ward is mourning to-day, because his pater familias would not take him for a ghost last night. He wrapped himself up in a sheet and entered the paternal presence very unexpectedly, at 10 1-2 P. M. The sensationless father, in his turn, wrapped him over the head with a poker, and now the boy mourns at the lack of sentiment that exists in the bosom of the father.—Madison Democrat.

—A gallant gentleman of the old school in a crowded waiting-room at a railway station gave his seat to a lady, who failed to make the proper acknowledgement. Standing awhile, he stooped over as if to listen, and said to her, "What did you say, madam?" "Nothing, sir," was the reply of the startled lady. "Oh!" said he, "excuse me; I thought you said, 'Thank you.'"

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 79 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Inventions recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

The Presidential Candidacy.

Ex-Speaker Blaine's tactics bring him more and more prominently before the country as a Presidential candidate in whom the republicans may have implicit confidence. His shrewd proposition for the settlement of the school question by a constitutional amendment; his demolition of Fernando Wood when that aristocratic representative of the democracy of the rebellion and of later years assumed the leadership in the House; and latterly the position he has taken in forcing the democracy into the defence of Jeff Davis—are all indications of the possession of rare power and ability. As the leader of the republicans of the House, it is his duty to expose every weak point in the armor of their adversaries, and the vigor with which he has pressed his advantages has a strengthening influence among the masses of his associates throughout the country, who are well pleased that a bold and daring leader is on the alert to arouse the organization which saved the Union to its duties and responsibilities, and to probe deeply into the intentions of those who have artfully concealed their schemes under an assumed garb of humility that had neither honesty of purpose nor appreciation of the present condition of things.

It is not astonishing that Mr. Blaine as the exponent of the thoughts of the people leaps at once into the front rank of candidates named for the republican Presidential nomination. Thus far he has made no mistake, and if he is to be the nominee it will be because there is a responsive echo in the hearts of his political associates that will lead them to select him as the best known representative of their opinions and wishes. It did seem for a time that the Centennial year was likely to develop nothing beyond namby-pambyism, and that politics were to drift into such an apparently languid condition as in the end breeds insecurity.

The republicans of New Hampshire thank Mr. Blaine for his energetic remonstrance against the extension of amnesty to Jefferson Davis. It is too little to expect of an intelligent commonwealth like New Hampshire that the relatives and friends of the brave boys who starved at Andersonville a dozen years ago shall countenance the extension of amnesty to the man of all others who cruelly and willingly allowed his fellow men to starve and would not endeavor to allay their sufferings one iota. The soft-souled journalists of the present day who talk of reviving old issues of the war have no nobler centennial offering to make to the noble heroes who died from hunger by the thousand, and by their prompt response to their country's call made that country's centennial a possibility, than the issue of a decree of pardon to the hoary-headed traitor, who could not atone for his wretched misdeeds should he die a thousand deaths of starvation. It is a subject that comes home to the heart of every man, and in his effort to exempt this lingering relic of barbarity from the offer of amnesty Mr. Blaine should have the support of every thoughtful and humane person in the land, and in his course should receive the plaudits of every citizen who regarded the country its darkest days as worth fighting for. By his action he has struck such a chord of sympathy as will be likely to make itself felt in the nominating convention.

The Amnesty Debate.

Mr. Blaine had another lively set-to with the democrats of the House on Tuesday, completely flooring Ben. Hill of Georgia, who made a speech charging that confederate prisoners were horribly treated in the Elmira, N. Y. prison. Mr. Platt, of the Elmira district, replied that the charges were false and had been proved so. Mr. Hill said that Jeff Davis was not responsible for the starvation of Union soldiers. He claimed humane treatment as the record of the Southern officials. Mr. Blaine asked if Mr. Hill was not a member of the confederate senate, and was answered in the affirmative. Mr. Blaine then read an extract from the proceedings of the confederate senate, which stated that Mr. Hill of Georgia had offered a resolution providing for the execution of any white man found in the confederacy, who could not show he was there for a lawful purpose. Mr. Hill, being caught in a trap, refused to acknowledge or deny the truth of the statement.

Mr. Hill's resolution as introduced in the rebel senate read: "That every person pretending to be a soldier or officer of the United States who shall be captured on the soil of the Confederate States after the 1st of January, 1863, shall be presumed to have entered the territory of the Confederate States with intent to incite insurrection and to abet murder, and that unless satisfactory proof be adduced to the contrary before the military court, before which he shall be tried, he shall suffer death."

The Boston Globe's Washington special says: Gen. Hill's speech has aroused strong feeling among republicans, and has practically decided the fate of Randall's bill, which can never pass the House, unless Blaine's amendment is accepted. The more conservative democrats regret the tone of Mr. Hill's speech, and think it is the mistake of the session. The assailable point, of course, is his defence of the Andersonville atrocities, and in this he seems to have acted without conference with his associates, who were as much surprised as were the members of the opposition. The republicans are sanguine, perhaps a little too much so. They regard the speech as excellent capital for them, and that it can be used to good advantage as a campaign document. * * * Blaine is congratulated on his course by many, and the popular impression is that he has made a substantial move forward in the Presidential race.

The Boston Herald's careful Washington correspondent telegraphs: The speech was pretty strong as a legal argument, but it was full of matter which will convince the rural voter that he had better stick to the republican party a while longer. It was a sectional speech and not a statesmanlike one, such as might have been expected from Lamar, had he not unfortunately, for the democrats, been absent. In a word, it was just the speech that a good many of the republicans have been hoping to draw out from the democratic side. Mr. Hill personified the South and secession with a capital "S" all the way through his remarks. Neither his manner nor his matter indicated humility or regret for the past; rather, it was a full justification of all that had gone before, so far as the South was concerned, and an arraignment of the anti-slavery sentiment of the country. It bristled with denunciation of the sentiment in the North which sustained and made the war successful, which is the same as saying that it bristled with blunders. It was not a speech to which the Northern democrats could listen with satisfaction or ease. Such kind of talk kept up here will mean the emptying of fifty seats on the democratic side next November. It is difficult to have any patience with a man who talks for an hour to prove that the terrors of Andersonville prison were less than those of the Northern prisons, in which rebel soldiers were confined. Indeed, the remarks of Mr. Hill rose to rank impudence at the end of his speech, when he talked about forgiving the republicans for their sins, and told the House that the South had brought the Constitution back into the Union, and signified that the South was going to conduct the Government in the future. Blaine and the republicans who indorse him are happy to-night, as happy as if they had drawn the first prize in the Havana lottery. As Hill went on with his wild talk about the Elmira prison, the members on the other side could be seen fairly chuckling with delight, and they are congratulating each other this evening on the increased prospect of carrying the elections. The hope is quite general among these patriots that the ex-Confederates will go on in the House with their mistaken effort to justify themselves and their conduct during the war. * * * Perhaps the best statement that could be made of the result of the debate this afternoon would be to say that the republican managers in New Hampshire and Connecticut will be several thousand dollars the richer on account of it on the day after the elections next spring. It will cost so much less to carry these States.

The Providence Journal's dispatch says: The Northern democrats are much disappointed at Hill's speech and now regret exceedingly that the amnesty debate was precipitated. They were inclined to boast that Mr. Blaine had been used up, but after the laughter over Cox's fun had died away, they began to discover very serious features in the situation. The speech of Mr. Hill was depended upon to extricate them from the difficulties, and there is great and general disappointment among them over his failure. He attempted to prove that there were no outrages at Andersonville, and he quoted the confederate laws in regard to the treatment of prisoners and the order for the establishment of this prison. His description made it a sort of a Garden of Eden, shut off from the rough outside by a stockade of logs, and within which were a pleasant stream and the same food and comforts that confederate soldiers had. The effort to fix the responsibility upon the Union authorities was a miserable failure, as well as the attempt to show that Elmira and Rock Island and Fort Delaware were as bad as Andersonville. The close of his speech was in the old style of Southern threats. The South had come back and to stay. She took the Constitution out with her, and had now returned to defend the Constitution against Northern fanatics.

News and Notes.

The democratic leader of the National House of Representatives, Mr. Morrison, chairman of the ways and means committee, has appointed as clerk of the committee Dr. Hambleton, of Georgia, a bitter and unrepentant rebel who openly rejoiced at the assassination of President Lincoln and soon thereafter named his son John Wilkes Booth Hambleton. The appointment was made at the request of Speaker Kerr. Democrats who fought in the Union army and who now seek for official positions, are told to stand aside, so that men of the type of Dr. Hambleton may enter and receive their reward for their treason.

The New Hampshire republicans have a right to be proud of their convention and its deliberations, of their platform, and of their candidates, and with a vigorous pushing of the campaign their victory in March is assured.—Lowell Courier.

In 1864 the democrats put a war candidate on a peace platform. In 1868 they put a hard-money nominee on a soft-money platform. In 1872 they put a high-tariff man on a free-trade platform. They lost all the way through. May and December is equally "no go" in politics and love. This time we propose to put a hard-money nominee on a hard-money platform to carry New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, New Hampshire, California and Oregon, which, with the Southern vote, elects, and to come out of the struggle with a character not debauched, but with a policy equal to the requirements of the whole country.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Nashua republicans have organized for the campaign, with Charles W. Holt, Esq., as president of their club.

We see no reason why so much fuss should be made about Jefferson Davis; but the country has made up its mind not to forgive him yet. Mr. Blaine knows it, and as a matter of political strategy he has clearly got the better of his opponents. It is a fashion he seems to have acquired.—New York Tribune.

In every tussle with the democratic leaders, how that Mr. Blaine does somehow manage to get the underhold!—Springfield Republican.

Messrs. Sherman and Sterling, counsel for Henry Ward Beecher, in the suit against him by F. D. Moulton, for malicious prosecution, have served on the plaintiff's counsel a demurrer to the complaint raising the point of law that the entry of a nolle prosequi is not sufficient determination of a prosecution to found an action for malicious prosecution. The case is set down for hearing on the fourth Wednesday of February.

It is asserted that the friends of Senator Thurman have organized within a few days and propose to push his candidacy for the democratic nomination for President, and have made overtures to certain democratic Congressmen who have been regarded as friendly to the interests of Senator Bayard.

The Southern members are greatly aroused over the course the amnesty debate has taken, and many of them assert openly and boldly that they will vote against the centennial appropriation, because of the course pursued by Mr. Blaine. The republicans who favor the appropriation charge Mr. Randall with being responsible for the defeat of the appropriation, if it is defeated. He was appealed to not to press action on the amnesty measure until the Centennial bill had been acted upon, but this he positively refused to do, believing that his duty to his party was paramount to the passage of the Centennial appropriation.

"Van" writes that it seems to be the plan of the House democrats, to pass a delusive bill looking to a far-off resumption, and then impede every practical measure of the Administration to get ready for resumption in 1879, and it is said that the democratic inflationists and resumptionists can strike hands on such a compromise measure.

Congressman Hewitt's scrupulous sense of honor in declining to serve on a committee which would have to consider questions of pecuniary interest to himself, calls forth this flattering comment from the Springfield Republican: "Such delicacy of feeling in a Congressman is all the more refreshing for its novelty. The people haven't been used to it. Indeed, they have become so accustomed to seeing their representatives nailing up their professional shingles on the walls of the Capitol, setting up their mills or laying their railroad track on the floor, and converting the committee rooms into private counting-rooms or law offices, and they have almost come to acquiesce in it as a matter of course—the normal and regular thing. The fastidiousness of this New York Congressman, who refuses to be placed in a position where his private interest may even seem to clash with his public duty, will give them a sensation akin to surprise. But they will like it, and like him for it; there is no doubt about that.

A republican member of the ways and means committee estimates that the cost of the investigations into the several departments proposed by Mr. Morrison, will cost not less than $50,000.

Western robbers have always been distinguished for boldness, but the exploits of a band at Osborn, Missouri, on Thursday night last, far exceeds anything in the burglary line ever heard of. The burglars first broke into a drug store, stole all the chloroform in the establishment, and then drugged the whole town! There being no one to interfere with their operations, the robbers gutted all the hotels, stores and attractive looking private residences, and decamped with a large amount of booty.

Wolleboro is rejoicing over a great temperance revival. A reform club, numbering 416 members holds weekly meetings. At South Wolfeboro there is a club with about 100 members. Not a single violation of the pledge has been reported since the movement began, eleven weeks ago.

Mr. Blaine opposes an amnesty for Jefferson Davis upon the ground—not that he was President of the Southern Confederacy, nor for the reason that he was, or was supposed to be, the controlling spirit of the rebellion, nor because he did or attempted to do more for the encouragement of secession than others—but for the simple and all-sufficient reason that he was and is responsible for the horrors of Andersonville. Upon this point Mr. Blaine was full and unanswerable. Whatever the House may think, the people of the North, wholly disinclined to punish anybody, will still insist that for his wanton, unnecessary, hideous and protracted cruelty, by and through Wirz and Winder at Andersonville, Jefferson Davis should be prohibited from becoming an American citizen, in the full and honorable sense. And this not because he was a rebel, but because he was a traitor to our common humanity. Mr. Cox, of New York, made a characteristic speech, and the debate was adjourned with the House until Tuesday. Mr. Blaine is wholly right. The country has no desire to keep up any habitual recollection of Southern treason. We are to be one country, and the sooner we are really so, as well as politically so, the better the North will like it; but the sturdy common sense, as well as the latent and inextinguishable patriotism of the North, cannot ignore the fact that treason is not fealty to government. The appearance of seventy, or thereabouts, of ex-rebels in the House of Representatives does not particularly disturb any one; but for themselves, the people require to be permitted to say now and then as a matter of abstract truth, that there is a difference between right and wrong. Were we to pause for remark upon the hilarity with which the speech of Mr. Cox in defence of the barbarities of Andersonville was received, we might be tempted to be uncomplimentary to the taste, the discretion and the sympathies of the democratic majority. Suffice it to say that a very poor joke gave the ex-rebels more joy than all the abuses of Union prisoners ever gave them pain.—Providence Journal.

M. T. BETTON & CO., No. 16 Congress street, Main & Winchester's Block

To My Patients and the Public!

I propose to leave Portsmouth about February 1st, for an absence of several months. Will those contemplating or needing my services please give me an early call? Previous to my departure for Europe in 1874, so many of my patients neglected to call until the very last that I was compelled to seek the assistance of a stranger to help me out with my forced engagements. I cannot do so this year. The responsibility rests with my patients after this call.

Old Bibles.

Ed. Chronicle; And still we find them, old, older, oldest. Mrs. John W. Foster has a Bible which was printed in London, in the year 1592. The types are old English, black and quite difficult to read, and the book has the same hymns and tunes at the last end as Mr. Fernald's. The original binding is yet quite good, being of calf-skin, and has two brass clasps, like a photograph album; but they are stiff, having no hinge to throw them back out of the way.

Mr. George Howard Brewster has an old Testament, which was presented to him by his father, Dr. George Gaines Brewster, which was printed by Christopher Parker in London in 1503. [This was only eleven years after the discovery of America by Columbus.] This Testament is bound in calf with sheet-iron strips the length of the cover, and triangular sheet-iron corners with quite large rivets; these added to the size of the book makes it very heavy.

Mrs. A. R. H. Fernald has a book of 388 pages, entitled, "A Table of the Sermons," printed in London, in 1562, and the last is "A Thanksgiving for the Suppression of the Last Rebellion." (I doubt if this means our late unpleasantness.)

This, you will see, is tracing specimens of printing back to its infancy, for the first Bible was printed in Mentz in the year 1450. Printing was introduced into England in 1474, and the first book was printed in Westminster, ("The Game of Chess") and only 55 years previous to the printing of the Brewster Testament. Printing was first introduced into America in 1536, by the Viceroy Mendoza, who printed "Escala espiritual de San Juan Climoco" in Mexico.

We doubt if any other city on the continent can produce equally old books with Portsmouth.

REVILO.

Kittery Point.

The fifth lecture in the course at the Congregational church, was given on Monday evening by Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett. It was as might be expected, a very able effort, and was listened to very attentively. He made some excellent remarks concerning the Kittery library. The next lecture will be delivered on Monday evening, the 17th inst. by Rev. Carlos Martyn. Subject—"Marriage." Mr. Martyn's lecture will finish the present course.

Another course of lectures will be opened the second Monday in February. Some of the lecturers already secured for that course are Rev. Messrs. Aldrich of Rye, DeNormandie of Portsmouth and Emerson of Biddeford. Also Miss McKenzie of Boston.

The Knights Templars of this country will participate, in an organized manner, in the celebration of the first centenary of our existence as a nation. There will be a grand assembly of the members in Philadelphia, commencing on the 20th of May, A. D. 876, A. O. 758. On that day the Grand Conclave will be opened for business at the Masonic Temple, the session to last two days. A grand parade of the order, in which it is supposed there will be over 15,000 knights in line, will take place on June 6, at eight A. M. In the afternoon the newly-elected Grand Master will be installed in the Academy of Music, followed in the evening by a grand promenade concert and reception. The seven Philadelphia commanderies have asked and have obtained the right to entertain all visiting knights. With a liberality that knows no stint they have made such arrangements that each knight visitor will find that he is a welcome guest. Each Philadelphia commandery will have its own headquarters, and to each will be allotted its proportion of arriving guests, to whom it is expected to extend the hospitalities of the occasion. The entire proceedings will attract unusual attention, and have a special significance from the fact that they will be the opening festivities of the Centennial Exhibition.

—Mr. Lincoln used to tell in his inimitable way a story of a Winchester (Va.) converted Confederate who was so overjoyed at receiving his pardon that he exclaimed: "Thank you, Mr. President, thank you! Now I'm pardoned, I s'pose I'm as good a Union man as any of you—emphatically one of you again. But didn't Stonewall Jackson give us —— in the valley?"

Pranks of a Disordered Liver.

A disordered liver plays and pranks with the digestive organs, the bowels, the kidneys and the blood, and inflicts an infinite variety of unpleasant symptoms upon its unfortunate possessor, among which may be mentioned yellowness of the skin and whites of the eyes, furred tongue, nausea, headache, vertigo, pain in the head, side and stomach, drowsiness by day and unrest by night, difficult evacuation and even irritation of the bladder and urethra. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters discipline the rebellious organ, and obviate bilious manifestations more rapidly and certainly than anything else, and are far more agreeable and infinitely wholesomer than the violent evacuants with which the billious often persecute their unfortunate bowels and stomach, under the mistaken impression that they are regulating their livers.

GRAND CLOSING

—AT—

HENDERSON'S.

The parties who had agreed to purchase my stock of Dry Goods on the first of January, not being able to meet their engagements, the stock is still left in my hands, which seriously interferes with the business arrangements I had made.

I have therefore determined to give the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity a rousing benefit. To make quick work of it, I propose the following inducements to purchasers of Dry Goods:

A Present to every Customer

buying One Dollar's worth of goods.

A Better Present to every customer buying Two Dollars' worth.

A still Better One to every customer buying Five Dollars' worth.

An Elegant Present to every customer buying Ten Dollars' worth.

Every customer buying One Dollar's worth or more, is sure of a Valuable Present.

In addition to all this, one in every twenty-five packages containing a present, also contains a check entitling the lucky holder to the

Elegant Chamber Set

IN MY WINDOW

VALUED AT 55 DOLLARS.

ONE-HALF BARREL FLOUR,

LADIES' ROCKING CHAIR,

ONE BOX RAISINS,

ONE BARREL POTATOES,

ONE BARREL APPLES,

And lots of other merchandise to eat and to wear.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT AT THE HEAD OF THIS COLUMN IS AN ACTUAL FACT!

The amount of presents to be given away is equal to just one-half the amount of the value of the goods sold.

The Grandest Dry Goods sale ever heard of,—offering better inducements even than Lovering in his celebrated book sale.

We don't all want a book, but we all need Dry Goods, and in purchasing of me you get your goods as low as can be bought in Portsmouth with all the additional inducements thrown in.

☞ Everything will be conducted squarely and everything advertised will be carried out.

No person in the store knows the package containing the checks for the larger presents, and the only condition we exact from the persons receiving them is the privilege of publishing their names, simply to satisfy the public that the goods are given away as advertised.

PULMOCINE.

Daily Chronicle.

Dr. Pierce.

[From the Toledo Blade.]

"Success is never achieved without merit. A man may make a poor article and sell it once, and there being 40,000,000 people in the United States, the sale to each one would be enough to make a decent fortune. But an article that builds the field year after year, and the sales of which increase regularly and rapidly must have absolute merit.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., occupies our entire eighth page to day with his various articles. We admit it, because we know the Doctor, and know of his success. We know him to be a regularly educated physician, whose diploma hangs on the wall of his office, and we know that he has associated with him several of the most eminent practitioners in the country. We know that parties consult him, by mail and in person, from all States in the Union every day, and that they are fairly and honestly dealt with.

This grand result has been accomplished by two agencies—good, reliable articles articles which, once introduced, work easily their own way—and splendid business management. They have succeeded because they ought to have succeeded.

If you would patronize Medicines scientifically prepared by a skilled Physician and Chemist, use Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines. Golden Medical Discovery is nutritious, tonic, alterative, and blood-cleansing, and an unequaled Cough Remedy: Pleasant Purgative Pellets, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, constitute an agreeable laxative. Physicians prescribe Favorite Prescription, a remedy for debilitated females; Extract of Smart-Weed, a magical remedy for Pain, Bowel Complaints, and an unequaled Liniment for both human and horse-flesh; while his Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is known the world over as the greatest specific for Catarrh and "Cold in the Head" ever put before the public. They are sold by druggists.

20 years a Sufferer.—Cured by the Golden Medical Discovery.

DR. R. V. PIERCE:

Dear Sir,—Twenty years ago I was ship wrecked on the Atlantic Ocean, and the cold and exposure caused a large abscess to form on each leg, which kept continually discharging. I was attended by doctors in Liverpool, Havre, New Orleans, New York, and at the hospital on Staten Island (where the doctors wanted to take one leg off). Finally, after spending hundreds of dollars, I was persuaded to try your "Golden Medical Discovery," and now, in less than three months after taking the first bottle, I am thankful to say I am completely cured, and for the first time in ten years can put my left heel to the ground. I am at home nearly every evening and shall be glad to satisfy any person of the truth of this information. I am, sir, yours respectfully,

It Pays! It Pays!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer, or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

IT PAYS the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for intellectual progress, one that encourages discussion among the members.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this in an extent beyond that of any other publication, in fact it is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Mechanics, Mechanics, Inventions and new discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information relating to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World. Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Receipts, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen, Manufacturers, Employers, in all the various trades, a record of the Progress of New Inventions and Discoveries; containing a weekly record not only of the progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Inventions in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics, and Science generally.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the favorite of all industrial journals for the past Thirty Years. It is the oldest, largest, cheapest, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions, Science and Industrial Progress, published in the World.

The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. And for the shop and house will save many times the cost of subscription.

Merchants, Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, and People of all Professions, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College and school. A new volume commences January 1st, 1876.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several hundred engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. Terms, $3.20 a year by mail, including postage. Discount to Clubs. Specimen and circulars giving Club rates sent free. Single copies mailed on receipt of 10 cents. May be had of all Newsdealers.

PATENTS. MUNN & CO., Publishers of the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than Fifty thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Specimens of Manufactures are carefully examined and advice free. A special notice is made in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of all Patents thus obtained through the Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Any person making a new invention may generally be advised to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, containing full directions for obtaining Patents. A Hand Book about the Patent Laws, Census of the U. S., and 140 Engravings of mechanical movements. Also, Hints on the Preparation of Models, and Advice concerning Patents. Address MUNN & CO., 37 Park Row, New York. Branch Office, Corner F & 7th Streets, Washington, D. C.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. Indeed the reader of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it dispenses.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and gossip, are all invigorating to the mind. —Chicago Evening Journal.

PULMONICE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians in the form of Pulmonary Cordial. He could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

In the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the luxury trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cure of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quick medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of so-called properties "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1871. Sales increased so rapidly, and their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon received one for their friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them, some of good fame and even standing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 2, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time was unable to work. I have for three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was then discouraged, and only took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Daily Mirror, and decided to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procure my packages of Mr. Fred. Ireland, and have heard no complaints. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir—I received one package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to my family, I gave a package for no. 1 and told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought it couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills as a dose for anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this phase find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEWIS.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered from Liver Complaint, Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months at a time to do anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this phase find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. Yours respectfully,

MRS. E. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly purified. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.50 for two packages.

MRS. E. T. LANE.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time in the eight years of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration, from top to bottom. The course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall in place or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to be a year in which there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the State schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes that it will redeem the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued support of all who believe in the prosperity of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an intelligent newspaper which he can rely on not for an impartial record of events, unbiased by partisan sectarian ties or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to be the old fervor should republican principles of which it was the champion and foundation-stone be in conflict, and will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of any party, or approve of any party in doing what it finds good in the acts and professions of other parties, and in particular it can never be an impartial record of events, unbiased by partisan sectarian ties or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to be the old fervor should republican principles of which it was the champion and foundation-stone be in conflict, and will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of any party, or approve of any party in doing what it finds good in the acts and professions of other parties, and in particular it can never be an impartial record of events, unbiased by partisan sectarian ties or personal hates or ambitions. In politics its great object will be to find honest men whom the country knows and can trust, to secure honest money, Administrative reform, and economy in public affairs as the foundation of equal and just private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it hopes to see the Ship of State, freed from the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and so directed by the Democrats in the Congress and Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes, that it may safely be and its people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so nearly right in its efforts to reform through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

The great political volley of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has made the best party fanatics and themselves forced to abandon some of the worst practices of the old caucus system and put forward better men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have taught the leaders of the great parties to hold up the basis of principles up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to be for this end a with the understanding that we will never commend it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor and impartiality in its news, but will keep its columns free from personal wranglings; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from its rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE asks only a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1872 and 1873 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its daily circulation has greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the consistent support men and the most liberal expenditure to procure the fresh intelligence, the most complete reports, the most vigorous editorial articles and the best of the work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors are numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—When Angelina hasn't anything else to do, she goes up to her bedroom, and a vague unrest and a sense of trouble fill her breast, and she says to herself: "Now, I think I'd sleep more comfortably with the head of the bed turned there and the sewing machine here." Then she mentally calculates that the whatnot would look better in this corner and the rocking-chair more this way, and girds up her loins for the work of reconstruction. About ten o'clock Edwin gets home. They have no gas at Rogers park, and Angelina complains that the smell of the kerosene when the lamp is turned down gives her the headache, and the bedroom blinds are drawn so as to keep out the moon, so that altogether it is about as black as a wolf's mouth. The unsuspecting Edwin enters the room and shapes his course as usual, but runs on to the sewing-machine, which has drifted from its moorings, stubbing his toe and jamming the sharp corner into himself. He makes some disconnected remarks not wholly pious and patient, and luffs up to find the bedroom candle and matchsafe, which are on the washstand—used to be there, at least. They are there still, but the washstand now bears seven points on his lee bow, its place being occupied by the whatnot. Groping blindly about it, a fearful rattle and crash inform him that he has upset Angelina's workbasket containing about three dozen spools of thread. "Angelina," says the miserable man in despair, turning toward where the bed ought to be, "where the heaven are you? Where in the name of the Archangel Gabriel am I?" "Oh, Edwin," responds the partner of his joys and sorrows from the direction of his left shoulder, "here I am." Edwin hereupon wheels about and starts about in the direction of the voice, but steps on a rolling spool of thread and is hurled with the force of a catapult against the edge of the open door, which he strikes so forcibly that his nose is almost driven out through the back of his head. Then his wife remarks in a tone of mingled sorrow and indignation, "Oh, Edwin, I thought you had promised me never to go to a saloon again?" Thoroughly saturated, the desperate man makes for the bed, but the rocking-chair, one of the old school, with a high back like a tortoise-shell comb, and long, sharp rockers, has been lying in wait for him all the while, and now grapples with him furiously. * * * The combat, though sanguinary, is short, and in six minutes Edwin has risen like a phœnix from the ruins of that rocking-chair, got into bed, and next morning he contemplates his nose in the glass, and audibly wonders why a woman can't leave things alone.—Chicago Tribune.

—A young lady writes to the Woman's Journal to say that the pull-back rigging is not the proper place for a woman to carry her revolver, as valuable time may be lost in drawing it. The writers adds: "I always carry mine in my pocket. My revolver is of medium size, carries a No. 22 cartridge, and the cylinder has seven chambers. In case of emergency I can easily slip my hand into my pocket and, if I choose, raise the hammer as soon as I grasp it, or while drawing it from my pocket. In this way no time is lost."

—Mr. Cox, in his capital articles on Congressional humors in Harper's Magazine, hunts the best things which have been said while he has been a Representative, his modesty preventing his repeating his own bon mots. One of these was when the header-off when the roll was called were Messrs. Oakes Ames of Massachusetts, and Archer, of Maryland. The yeas and nays were called on a railroad land grab bill, and Archer, in his indignant haste to vote no, first responded to the name of Ames, and then to his own. This duplicate "No!" was greeted with a shout of laughter, and as it subsided, Cox sprang to his feet—struck a stage attitude—and exclaimed in a mournful tone: "Insatiate Archer! would not one suffice?"—"Perley" in Boston Journal.

—There is such a thing as too much as well as too little caution, and the chances for losing a fortune while sailing under the colors of either are perhaps about even. An instance, in which excessive caution came near robbing a man of all his spare coin, was brought to our notice, to-day. In the Crown Point mine works a quiet, unassuming man, who, by his most intimate acquaintances, has never been heard to talk of his stocks or money, and who, up to a few days ago, was supposed to be in almost destitute circumstances. Yesterday, or the day before, an incident occurred which showed that he was not the pauper he was supposed to be. At that time, John McLeod, after going home from his day's work in the mine, shortly returned, and calling the foreman to one side, disclosed to him the fact that by a mistake he had taken some other man's bucket out of the mine, and that the bucket instead of containing a specimen of crystal and quartz, which he had placed in his own bucket, held $800 in coin and $300 in mining stocks. McLeod had scarcely finished his story before another man, pale, haggard, and out of breath, rushed up to the foreman, and in accents wild asked: "Did you see him? Where is he? Where did he go?" After calming the excited individual so that he could talk coherently, it was discovered that he was owner of the bucket which McLeod had just brought to the surface. The owner thereof was shown his treasure, and with a wild cry he gathered it to his bosom and went on his way rejoicing. It appears that ever since the great fire in Virginia the man had been in the habit of taking the money with him to his work, being afraid to leave it in his lodging house or trust it in the banks of a banker. Had McLeod not been honest that man would now be mourning the loss of his $1,100.—Gold Hill (Nev.) News.

—Diggs saw a note lying on the ground, but he knew it was a counterfeit and walked on without picking it up. He told Smithers the story, when the latter said: "Do you know, Diggs, you have committed a very great offence?" "Why, what have I done?" "You have passed a counterfeit bill, knowing it to be such," said Smithers without a smile, and fled.

—You have never really seen a picture of despair and utter misery, and sore distress and amazement, unless you have seen a man, standing in the presence of the wife of his bosom and of the other members of his family, and reaching into his pocket to hand her a letter that he had got out of the post-office for her, bring out of the recess of that inside pocket a crumpled, creased envelope, once white but now looking as though it had associated with cigars for many a long day, the very identical letter which she had written to her mother or dear, dear friend six weeks ago and given to her perfidious husband to mail; the very letter he had sworn a thousand times he had mailed, and even told a little joke that the postmaster got off about it, in order to prove that he had handed it in in the unhappy husband's guilty hand, and his wife's eyes start from their spheres as she gazes upon the well-remembered although cigar-stained address. She does not get up and kick over the piano stool, and drown the trembling caitiff in a torrent of talk. She only looks at the letter and then at the man, and then says: "Well!" And that man would rather be scolded at for a straight month, than have that "well" dropped on him. It crushes him like a pile-driver.

Like the defunct Confederacy, the democratic party has several times come within sight of the White House, but as often failed in its capture. It is now entrenched in the House of Representatives, and has put ex-rebel officers in command of its important offices, but we confidently predict that the Centennial campaign will close with the utter rout of the democratic party, and the repossession by the republican party of every important position formerly held by them. The government was saved by the sacrifices of its loyal sons, and its friends have not yet concluded to surrender it to those who hitherto favored its destruction. If democracy has gained certain advantages over the republican party the gain was due, not to an increase of strength on their part, but to the apathy of republicans who deemed their party sufficiently strong not to require from them that personal attention which they had formerly given to political affairs. This error has brought in its results a lesson that will not soon be forgotten. The last election indicated the awakening of the loyal masses. The Presidential election will indicate that they are not only awake, but on their feet to hold and defend the government which belongs to them by right of services rendered which its existence was in jeopardy.—Republic.

—Yesterday afternoon, a small boy informed a policeman that there was a row, in a certain house on Beaubien street, and the officer went up there. Hearing a racket as he stood before the door, he opened it without hesitation. A man and his wife and a big girl were having a three-handed fight, but they let up as he looked in.

"What's the row?" asked the officer, as he noted their bloody noses and scratched faces.

"Row?" they all shouted in chorus.

"Well, it looks like a row," answered the officer.

"You go long!" continued the woman, trying hard to smile. "This is a new parlor game, and me an' Jane are playing agin John. We had him in a corner when you came in, and three more good lifts would have counted him out!"

The officer went away and left them to finish the game and John together.—Detroit Free Press.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1876.

FOR GOVERNOR,

Person C. Cheney,

of Manchester.

FOR RAILROAD COMMISSIONER,

WILLIAM A. PEIRCE,

of Portsmouth.

The Amnesty Debate.

On Wednesday the 12th, Gen. Garfield replied to Mr. Hill. He referred to Mr. Cox as joking at a funeral. He (Garfield) did not hold Jeff Davis as more guilty than any other rebel, and as to Mr. Hill's denial of the Andersonville charges, he quoted a communication from the Secretary of War in 1864, calling attention to the enormity of the crimes committed on Union prisoners at Andersonville. A joint committee of both Houses of Congress was then appointed, which committee Mr. Cox had characterized as a humbug committee and Mr. Hill as a partisan committee. Yet there were four democrats on the committee and the committee was unanimous in making its report, every member's views coinciding.

That report declared that it was clear from the evidence that it was the deliberate purpose of the authorities of the rebel government so to reduce those soldiers, by privation of food and clothing, that they might be unfit to re-enter the ranks. A large number of these prisoners had come from Belle Isle and Libby prisons, where they had been under the very eyes of the chief head of the Confederate government.

Referring to the order for the establishment of Andersonville prison, as quoted by the gentleman from Georgia, he asked how was the order executed and to whose hands was it committed? It was committed to the hands of Gen. Winder, a man of whom the Richmond Examiner said the day he took his departure for Andersonville, "Thank God, Richmond is at last rid of old Winder. God have mercy on those to whom he has been sent."

Mr. Garfield then quoted some of the testimony given on the Wirz trial as to the condition of the stockade, the dead line, etc., and remarked upon it that in the midst of a pine country a place had been selected which had a miasmatic marsh in its midst, and that a small stream of water having been found troops had been stationed on it above the stockade so it was defiled by all the excrements of the camp before it reached the stockade. Besides that, in the very excess of cruelty, and as if to negative every clause of the order, men had been detailed to cut down every tree in the enclosure, and left not a tree, shrub or leaf to show where a garden or a forest had been. He then referred to the report made by Col. Chandler, who had been detailed to inspect the Andersonville prison, and which Adj't.-Gen. Cooper submitted to the Secretary of war with the remark that the condition of that prison was a reproach to the Confederacy, so that the knowledge of the horrors had thus been brought home to the political family of Jefferson Davis. But the answer to Col. Chandler's report was the issuing of an order a few days afterward promoting Gen. Winder to be Commissary-General of all prisons and prisoners throughout the Confederacy; and when the commanding General of the army subsequently removed Mr. Winder, Mr. Davis revoked the order of the removal and endorsed on it that it was entirely uncalled for. The British army had lost in ten of the great battles of the Napoleonic war, including Waterloo, not quite 13,000 men; but this Major-Gen. Winder, within his awful pit of death, from April, 1864, to April, 1865, pitched into the awful trench the dead bodies of his prisoners to the number of 12,644. As to Mr. Hill's comparison of the atrocities of Elmira, and Andersonville, he challenged any democratic member from the neighborhood of Elmira, Camp Douglas or Fort Delaware to rise and say that any inhumanity had been practised there. No democrat doing so, he denounced the assertion as fearfully and fully untrue.

Mr. Platt, of New York, read a telegram, received by him from B. F. Tracey, late commander of the military post of Elmira, stating that facts justified him (Platt) in his denial of inhumanity or neglect in the treatment of prisoners at Elmira.

Mr. Walker, of New York, rose on the democratic side of the House, stating that he lived within seventeen miles of Elmira, and endorsed the statements in the telegram. [Applause on the republican side.]

Mr. Hill said his authority for making the statement had been the New York World.

Mr. Garfield said the place in which the Confederate prisoners who had died at Elmira were buried had been enclosed and cared for by the Administration which had been characterized by the gentleman from Georgia as malignant, ferocious, Constitution-hating and South-hating.

Mr. Hill remarked that at the last time of decorating graves in the South, Southern people united with Northern soldiers and decorated in harmonious accord the graves of the fallen Federal and fallen Confederates. And it was because of that glorious feeling that he protested against the revival of the history of such horrors. [Applause.]

Mr. Garfield—So do I; who brought it here? [Chorus from the democratic side, "Blaine, Blaine, Blaine."]

Mr. Garfield said he wished that the same fraternal feeling could allow the forty maimed Union soldiers who had recently lost their places about the House to be reinstated. He proceeded to discuss the question of the exchange of prisoners, to relate its history, and to detail the causes for the interruption of the exchange. He showed that the central point of the difficulty was in the determination of the Confederate government and people to exclude from the common rules of war the officers and men of negro regiments; while, on the other hand, the Government of the Union had committed itself to declare that the negro was a man and not a chattel; and that, being a man, he had a right to help fight for the Union; and that, being a soldier, the Government was bound to see that he was treated like a soldier. He also quoted a passage from a communication from Major Ould, Confederate agent for exchanges, to Gen. Winder, to the effect that the arrangement for exchange worked largely in their favor, as they got rid of the most miserable wretches and received back some of the best material he ever saw. The object of the outrageous treatment of prisoners at Andersonville had therefore been to make Union soldiers so that when exchanged they would be valueless. It seemed incontrovertible that the record adduced on that point was true, and that Jefferson Davis had been the conscious author of that terrible work at Andersonville. The American people still hold him unfit to be admitted among the legislators of the nation.

News and Notes.

Lapage, the suspected murderer of Josie Langmaid has been found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hung on the 19th of January, 1847. The jury were out an hour and three-quarters. Thus has concluded the second act in this terrible drama, and the next will doubtless be the execution of the law upon this fiend in human form.

Cupid is no respecter of persons in Maine, as is shown by the marriage in Farmington, of Camp-Meeting John Allen, aged 83, to Mrs. Sarah A. W. Fellows, aged 65.

The whiskey trials have commenced at Chicago. The Government officials claim to have everything in readiness for a successful prosecution. The distillers seem to have lost all hope and courage, and are confessing as fast as the Government lets them.

George Watts sued Z. K. Pangborn, of the Jersey City Journal, for $100,000 damages for libel. The jury awarded $55.

There is a little talk in Connecticut of running Mr. P. T. Barnum as the republican candidate for Governor.

Advices from New Orleans indicate that the democrats in Louisiana, under the leadership of such men as Marr, McEnery and Breens, are endeavoring to commit the conservatives to ill-advised, rash action, such as would possibly result in another attempt to overthrow the Kellogg government, and thus bring about again Federal interference.

The Illinois independents (inflationists) have called their State convention to assemble at Decatur, February 16.

Rumors of a desperate conflict between Senator Thurman and Governor Hendricks, for the control of the Ohio delegation to the National democratic convention, are given to the public by a correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer. The plan is to have the State convention called to meet after the National convention, and to select the delegates by conventions in the Congressional districts. Thurman is said to favor this arrangement, because he will not thus be hampered by a soft money plank which a State Convention would adopt. Hendricks favors it also, and hopes by keeping up the soft money agitation to divide the party and secure at least a majority of the delegation. The correspondent thinks if the delegation were to be chosen now, it would be equally divided between Hendricks and Thurman.

The republican press seems to be nearly unanimous in demanding that the National convention be held as early as May.

"Six spectators," according to their own story, went to Washington a month ago, and have diligently enquired among members of Congress and the throng of camp-followers at the capital, concerning the probable result of the balloting in the republican national convention next Summer. For weeks these six outsiders went about all day button-holeing unhappy politicians, and every evening they met at their boarding-house and compared notes. The result of the investigation is published in the Boston Journal. The commissioners find, to their great surprise, that Mr. Blaine will receive the united vote of New England on the third ballot; that Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota will be unanimously for Blaine; that Mr. Elihu Washburne will hand Illinois over to Mr. Blaine; that no man can unite the delegates of California, Oregon, Nevada and Colorado, except Mr. Blaine; and that the Southern delegations will "break" for the coming man very early in the contest; which means that they too will support Mr. Blaine.

The Congressional committee on elections is now considering Judge Abbott's claim to the seat held by Rufus S. Frost from the 4th Massachusetts district.

Mrs. Timothy M. Allyn, of Hartford, who has been blind for seven years, has had an operation which partially restores her sight. One of the first things that astonished her was to see how old her friends had grown; the next was the queer headdress fashions of the women.

Donn Piatt and Congressman Banning are among the heirs of the late Timothy Kirby of Cincinnati, who has left property valued at between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

The movement in favor of the taxation of church property is rapidly gathering great strength. A petition now circulating in Springfield, Mass., in favor of the repeal of the present law, which exempts this property from taxation, has already received the signatures of gentlemen representing over two and a half millions of dollars.

The republicans of the second senatorial district have unanimously renominated Gen. Natt Head.

Within five years 70,000 Chinamen may vote in California. Ten thousand may vote in San Francisco and wield one-third of the electoral power. That is, they may, if they choose, name, five years hence, the Mayor of San Francisco and Governor of California. This statement is made in all earnestness, and the San Francisco Bulletin contemplates the prospect with dismay.

The Senate has passed a resolution declaring that Senator Thomas W. Ferry is its president pro tem.

It appears from the correspondence between President Tappan of the Gallatin National Bank and United States Treasurer New, that a fresh decision of the Supreme Court will be necessary to settle the propriety of taxation on legal tender notes held by banks as a reserve.

The Indianapolis Journal hopes to see republicans in Congress give a hearty support to the movement for the abolition of the Marine Corps.

The new iron Spanish steamer Algeria went on the rocks off Cabras, near the entrance to Fort St. Johns, Porto Rico, and became a total wreck, on the morning of December 25th. A boat was immediately launched, but it was soon wrecked in the breakers and all in it, six persons, perished. The cabin servant also was lost. All the others were saved. The Algeria had about 204 passengers, of whom fifty were ladies and children, and there were sixty-five men belonging to the ship.

J. B. Eustis was elected United States Senator in a joint session of the Louisiana legislature, on the 12th. The republican members refused to vote, there being no vacancy.

The whole democratic body of the House seemed to resent this terrific but truthful portraiture of the leader of rebellion as a direct affront upon themselves, and the country now has an unmistakable indication of the character of that party in the unanimity with which it came to his rescue.—Albany Journal.

Gen. Charles W. Roberts, the democratic candidate for Governor of Maine last year, has published a letter decling a renomination. Hon. William P. Haines of Biddeford will probably be nominated without opposition.

The vote of Minnesota has been officially canvassed. For Governor, Pillsbury, rep., had 46,175; Buell, dem., 35,378, and Humiston, temp., 1,669. Pillsbury's majority over Buell was 10,803; over all, 9,138. Gilfillan, for Chief Justice, had a majority of 12,387, and Pfaender, for Treasurer, 4,835 over Scheffer, and 1,189 over all.

The counsel for Joseph Loader has begun preparations to commence a suit against Henry Ward Beecher, in which a claim for damages for malicious prosecution will be instituted. The papers are being prepared and the amount of damages to be demanded will be $20,000.

There are said to be $500,000 in Eastern Railroad bonds owned in the city of Salem.

The salary of the Admiral of the U. S. Navy is $13,000 per annum, under all conditions; Vice-Admirals receive $9000 while at sea, $8000 on shore duty, and $6000 on leave or waiting orders; Rear-Admirals receive $6000, $5000 or $4000, under the above conditions; Commodores, $5000, $4000 or $3000; Captains, $4500, $3000 or $2800; Lieutenant-Commanders, $2800, $2300 or $2000; Lieutenants, $2400, $2000 or $1600. The sum of $200 per annum is added to the salaries of Lieutenant-Commanders and Lieutenants after a service of five years from date of commission.

Gov. Noyes has left Ohio to stump New Hampshire for the republicans. It is hoped that Gov. Hayes of Ohio and Gov. Hartranft of Pennsylvania will follow.

Dynamite Thomassen, after all, was a native-born German. This is well authenticated, and the Chicago Times says it is useless to try to curse and blacken his memory further by circulating the report that he was born in St. Louis.

The Globe's Concord special says of the concluding day of La Page's trial: All day La Page has sat in court in the midst of the crowd which is literally thirsting for his blood. The air about him is dense with the hate which goes out from hearts in which the awful crime with which he is charged has frozen pity. His counsel have worked for him in a helpless and hopeless way. The prosecution believes him guilty and has worked with a tireless zeal and wonderful skill to secure a verdict against him.

The republicans of Lincoln County, Ky., have nominated Mr. Bristow as a reform republican candidate for the Presidency.

Ben Hill says that the South forgives the North for what it did to it during the war. This is refreshing. The North with about as much grace can thank the South for the $3,000,000,000 national debt, the 100,000 pensioners, the 200,000 widows and orphans and our 500,000 slain.

The Newburyport Herald thinks if the stock and bondholders of the Eastern railroad would form a new company on a basis of seven and a half millions, and manage it prudently, it would be the best railroad corporation in New England.

—Several gentlemen who are stopping at the National Hotel went to Groton, on Saturday for the purpose of going up the monument, and visiting the various localities of historic interest. During their pleasant rambles they found a full-grown grasshopper, waltzing gayly about and enjoying the benignant sunlight of a beautiful Winter. They captured and confined him in an envelope. Arriving at the hotel, and being released from his yellow dungeon, he stepped gayly forth and ordered a bunch of celery for his supper. Being strangers hereabouts, several of the gentlemen were somewhat surprised when the gay and rollicking old grasshopper shouldered his hind leg, as if it were a crutch, and broke out singing "The Sword of Bunker Hill." For a good time and jolly company, give us a January grasshopper.—Norwich Bulletin.

—For a straightforward plea to the question of "Guilty, or not guilty" commend us to that Missouri chap, on trial for murder: "If your Honor please, I am guilty. I killed the man because he took my gal from me. She was about the only thing I had; an' I didn't want to live after she went, an' I didn't want him to live neither. An' I should be much oblige to your Honor, if you would hang me as soon as possible."

—"Who's Herbert Spencer, Pop?" asked an inquiring Brooklyn boy of his father the other morning.

"He's a famous English philosopher, my son."

"And what's a philosopher?" continued the lad, with the business air of a person who could keep right on asking questions until doomsday.

"A philosopher" returned the father gravely, "is a man who never marries."—Brooklyn Argus.

—At a Portland Sabbath school, last Sunday, one of the teachers of a juvenile class was explaining the necessity and duty of prayer. She finally asked one little girl if she knew what was meant by prayer. The child replied that she did not. The teacher, to illustrate, asked the little girl, "What did your father say this morning, just before he ate his breakfast?" The child innocently replied, "He said, 'confound it, this egg is rotten.'"

—Recently an officer of St. Albans, Vt., having two insane persons to convey to an asylum for the insane at Brattleboro', called one of the lunatics aside and asked his aid in keeping watch of his companion during the journey, and then did the same with the other. The two lunatics sat side by side, silently watching each other through the whole journey, and they have continually kept guard over each other in the asylum ever since.

Senatorial Convention.

The republicans of this district held their convention for the nomination of a candidate for Senator, at Exeter, on Thursday. Emmons B. Philbrick, Esq., of Rye, was chosen President, and Charles Marseilles, of Exeter, Secretary. Mr. Philbrick made an earnest and effective speech on taking the chair. The committee on credentials having reported, Mr. Philbrick stated that he was not a candidate for the nomination, and the convention proceeded to ballot for a candidate for Senator. Thomas Leavitt, Esq., of Exeter, had 36 votes, and William Sanborn of Seabrook, 10, and Mr. Leavitt was nominated. He accepted the honor in a very neat speech.

Board of Trade.

At the regular meeting, on Wednesday evening, the 12 th, Joseph P. Morse, Esq., presented the following resolution:

Whereas, The coming Fourth of July is the one-hundredth birth-day of our Nation, and it would be proper for the patriotism and thankfulness of the people to find expression by a public celebration; and

Whereas, It has been suggested that the people through the country celebrate the day by counties. Therefore,

Resolved, that the Portsmouth Board of Trade appoint a committee of three to invite the chairmen of the Selectmen of the several towns in this county and the Mayor of this city to meet the committee at no distant day to confer together, and if thought best by them to take means to have an intellectual and historical celebration of the glorious day.

Dr. S. C. Whittier, and Messrs. H. W. Briant, Henry Peyser, W. Russell Foster and C. Morris Tredick were elected members.

Jottings.

At the County Convention on the eleventh ballot, Col. Sewall D. Tilton of Raymond was nominated, receiving 63 out of 93 votes. Geo. W. Weston, Register, and George E. Lane, Treasurer, were re-nominated by acclamation.

Chief Engineer Ira C. Seymour is president of the Firemen's Relief Association, which has $1262.65 on deposit.

At the democratic county convention the same candidates of those of last year were renominated, Josiah S. James a storekeeper of Raymond being the nominee for County Commissioner, and Gershom F. Melcher of this city for Treasurer.

We regret to learn that A. F. Craig, Esq., the efficient Secretary of the S. P. C. A. has resigned. The position is not easily filled.

The Portsmouth members of the democratic State committee are Howe Call, Henry F. Wendell and James F. Jenness.

Congressman Jones has presented the petition to Congress of Gilman Marston and others for an appropriation for the improvement of Squamscot river. Also one for a breakwater at Newcastle.

James T. Fields, Esq., has sent a letter of acceptance to the officers and members of the Portsmouth Artillery Company, saying: "I thank you for the honor conferred on me. When I followed the old "field"-pieces about in the days of my boyhood I little dreamed of the distinction to be tendered me in 1876 by the officers and soldiers of that excellent company. I salute you all in military brotherhood, and remain, semper paratus, and cordially yours."

Theodore Tilton's lecture on "The Problem of Life" was one of the most brilliant efforts ever made in this city. The large audience in attendance were delighted, and the surprise at its close was general when it was found that nearly two hours had been occupied in the delivery. The interest was great and the silence of the audience was an unconscious tribute to the power of the speaker. Whatever may be the opinion as to Mr. Tilton's reputation, there can be but one just conclusion as to his oratory. It is scholarly and graceful. Every word is fitly chosen and none are superfluous. He appeals directly to the intelligence and noblest attributes of his hearers, although there is an air of self-sufficiency in manner that seems insuparable from him. He is a very good guldeboard in many cases, and should be able to point his morals by taking his own advice, the world would hold one man of superb attainments. Mr. Tilton has the happy faculty of intermingling the rollest illustrations with the most interesting arguments. A vein of cynicism ran throughout the lecture, and kept the audience ever in expectation of the distant allusions that were made to the speaker's own and experience. These allusions were applauded by a portion of the audience. Mr. Tilton was especially happy at the close, saying that women hold men to the same code of morality that men require of women before consenting to marriage. The lecturer did not smile during the evening.

At a parish meeting of St. John's church held last evening, it was voted that the wardens and vestry be requested to extend an invitation to Rev. Charles A. Holbrook, of Brighton, Mass., to become their rector.

The fair fame which the Messrs. Baker & Farron, the talented young specialty artists, won during their first engagement in this city, a year and a half ago, seems now to be taking them through a most prosperous season. They are appearing every evening before large and highly delighted audiences, and winning golden opinions. These gentlemen are blessed with youth, good looks, a quick, versatile talent, and have the rare faculty of amusing all kinds of people. Their performances are neat, graceful, piquant; they do not tire by overacting; they do not disgust by coarseness. In the sensational play of "Heinrich and Nettie" they go through a pleasing round of songs, dances, pretty actions and sayings, and fairly bubble over with merry, harmless gayety. Baker appears as a jolly German, fresh and irresistible, and Farron as a trim, natty German ballet girl, as sweet as a rose. In two scenes the last named gives a splendid piece of acting in the character of an Irishman, which, of itself, would stamp him as a thoroughly fine comedian. We assure our readers that these entertainments are brimful of amusement, and act as a good corrective of the feeling produced by the doleful, dreary times.—Providence Press.

—It is rumored that Dr. Noah Porter of Yale College thinks of attending the Beecher-Moulton church council, but it is not yet known whether Captain Cook will grant permission. The matter is under consideration.—Providence Press.

—Gentlemen contemplating matrimony will please remember that the 29th of February would save a great deal in the way of anniversaries.

—Ought to be allowed to sit down—A merchant of forty years' standing.—Com. Adv.

—The Barnstable Patriot thinks Jimmy Blanchard would make a good lawyer.

—President Eliot says there are as many poor boys as rich boys at Harvard.

TO BE GIVEN AWAY

— AT —

HENDERSON'S.

The parties who had agreed to purchase my stock of Dry Goods on the first of January, not being able to meet their engagements, the stock is still left in my hands, which seriously interferes with the business arrangements I had made.

I have therefore determined to give the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity a rousing benefit. To make quick work of it, I propose the following inducements to purchasers of Dry Goods:

A Present to every Customer

buying One Dollar's worth of goods.

A Better Present to every customer buying Two Dollars' worth.

A still Better One to every customer buying Five Dollars' worth.

An Elegant Present to every customer buying Ten Dollars' worth.

Every customer buying One Dollar's worth or more, is sure of a Valuable Present.

In addition to all this, one in every twenty-five packages containing a present, also contains a check entitling the lucky holder to the

Elegant Chamber Set

IN MY WINDOW

VALUED AT 55 DOLLARS.

ONE-HALF BARREL FLOUR,

LADIES' ROCKING CHAIR,

ONE BOX RAISINS,

ONE BARREL POTATOES,

ONE BARREL APPLES,

And lots of other merchandise to eat and to wear.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT AT THE HEAD OF THIS COLUMN IS AN ACTUAL FACT!

The amount of presents to be given away is equal to just one-half the amount of the value of the goods sold.

The Grandest Dry Goods sale ever heard of,—offering better inducements even than Lovering in his celebrated book sale.

We don't all want a book, but we all need Dry Goods, and in purchasing of me you get your goods as low as can be bought in Portsmouth with all the additional inducements thrown in.

☞ Everything will be conducted squarely and everything advertised will be carried out.

No person in the store knows the package containing the checks for the larger presents, and the only condition we exact from the persons receiving them is the privilege of publishing their names, simply to satisfy the public that the goods are given away as advertised.

—They were standing in front of her gate. His right arm was occupied in holding her up, while his shoulder furnished a resting place for her little head. And they were watching the bright and glorious moon. It influenced the young man to such a degree that he said: "With what refulgence does bright Luna shed her rays upon all inanimate creation, weaving weird, fantastic shadows among the leafless trees, and spreading a silver glory over all! Do you observe the magnificent effect, Mamie?" "Yes, indeed, Henry," she returned; "and did you see that Jen Clemens at the dance! She had on last Winter's dress, made over; and she's worn that blue waist ever since I can remember. I never saw such a looking thing." Henry gasped.

—An interesting incident in the life of the late Dr. Howe is told by the Boston Herald: "After the war he taught the Greeks in the arts of peace, like a true Yankee as he was, and the first cart ever made in modern Greece was built under his direction. Twenty years afterward, when he rode alone into Greece on horseback, he was seen and recognized by a peasant woman, who spread the intelligence of his arrival. He was immediately surrounded and borne upon the shoulders of the people into the neighboring city, upon the site where he had founded a village. At this time the Greeks were in the enjoyment of a fresh triumph over their ancient oppressors, and in the right mood to welcome their former ally and friend. This incident in the life of Dr. Howe was derived from a Greek newspaper of the time, which some friend in that country forwarded to Charles Sumner."

—Walter Burlingame, a younger son of the late Minister Burlingame, was reported wounded by the dynamite explosion at Bremerhaven, and afterward his name appeared on the list of killed. Both reports were entirely erroneous, although it is true that he did receive severe injuries by an accident occurring about the same time. He intended to sail on the Mosel. Shortly before the explosion, however, he was making an excursion to Detmold, when the horses he was driving took fright at a passing train, and threw the carriage down an embankment. He was taken to Bremen as soon as possible for treatment. Meantime the dynamite explosion had occurred, and those collecting the names finding his name on the passenger list of the Mosel, and finding him also wounded, naturally placed him in the list of the dynamite victims. He is now out of danger, although his complete recovery may yet require some months. His mother and sister sailed in the Celtic on Saturday to join him.

—Many a man who would roll up his eyes in terror at the idea of stealing a nickel, will swoop down on a silk umbrella worth $10 and march off with his lips moving peacefully as if in prayer.

Harper's Bazar.

ILLUSTRATED.

Notices of the Press.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the practical matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a strength and a popularity the Revolte enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, the stories and essays, its poetry and sprightly, are all invigorating to the mind. —Chicago Evening Journal.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the spring of 1874. Not a box was on sale of the first package, their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon entered more for themselves and friends, and in almost every instance testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time not able to work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and in last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, for I had tried many things, and had lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I feel benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report no self cure. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever taken. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I provide one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $10 for six packages.

SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Dr. Quain's Pills, and they are more worth to me than ten dollars for me. I have given away a few and liked I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I should starve with hunger. Have tried so-call everything, but nothing did good. For about only three pills have I can eat anything. In one of the testimonials some time ago I have given my weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more boxes for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor, and at several times lost much of a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Boston Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I commenced in April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as other men. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and I want to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockingham, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. Lend $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the War. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of the Rebellion will be in under the control of the Democratic party, and it is probable that by have the secret of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the last six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the adjustment of the national finances the year may check the credits of every nation. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that a reunion of the Church to the State, and particularly to the State schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In foreign affairs, the year may be industry there are hopeful signs that it will witness the long desired revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as evidence that its work for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as this to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial view of events, unbiased by partisan sympathies or personal ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will ally itself with the old forces that organized the Republican party, and was its champion all through the American conflict, and it will adopt whatever those principles are victorious under the old banner. It will be found never in servitude to caucuses or conventions; it must approve the Platform of the Republican party and professions of either party, and apologize for its wrongdoing; it neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men, and to secure honest laws and honest administration; in commerce its aim is to secure the best interests of the country; in business it seeks to encourage industry and reward it; in religion it aims to be a champion of the Truth against Error, and to be a champion of the Truth against Error, and to be a champion of the Truth against Error, and

A DARKEY'S DOUBLE.

[Virginia City Enterprise.]

The bootblack at the corner stand on C street was looking for a customer. He was as black as the ace of spades, and as he carelessly dusted off his stand with the stump of a corn brush he occasionally paused and rolled his eyes hungrily up and down the street.

Presently a tall, raw-boned, middle-aged man, with a considerable length of goatee and not a little breadth of hat rim, stopped and glanced at the stand with some show of interest.

"Have a shine, boss?" said the owner of the stand, giving his chair a parting slap with his brush. "Shine 'em up in half a minit, sah. You'll jist have time to glance over de morning papers."

Without deigning an answer the lank chap climbed into the seat before him.

"Whar yer a-rollin them pants to?" was the first remark after the proprietor of the stand began to operate.

"All right now, boss. We mustn't muss em, you see. It's all feasible now, sah."

"Wal, proceed to business."

"I'a a-movin', boss; I'a a-movin fast, sah!"

"Wall, see that you keep a-movin'."

"De people of de Souf," said the bootblack, cocking a cunning eye upon his customer, "de people of de Sout [another look of the eye] most allus gives us pore cullied boys any little feasible jobs deys got."

"You think I'm from the South?"

"I's from de Souf myself, sah."

"Likely."

"I's from de Souf, sah—from ole Kaintuck, sah."

"Indeed?"

"Sartin, boss. I's from Lex'nton, Kaintuck, sah," scraping away with an old case-knife at the mud on the soles of his customer's boots.

"I'm from Kentucky myself, and from Lexin'ton," said the man, beginning to look interested. "So you're from Lexin'ton, eh?"

"Jes so, boss. Practically I was born dar sah."

"Like you, I was born thar."

"Nice old town, boss."

"Very."

"I golly, boss, ef I didn't think from de fust dat I saw in you de rale old Kaintucky gentlemen. You've got a good deal of de cut of some o'dem law and med'cine students dat used to be about de ole Transylvany 'Varsity; but you's aged a little, boss—aged a le-ttle grain more dan was de boys in dem days."

"I've often seen the old university."

"It was a fine ole town, too. De main street was more dan a mild long; dar war beautiful trees 'long de streets, and de orphan 'sylum, and de barggin factorys, de wire works, and de—"

"The lunatic asylum."

"Yes, boss, shore 'nuff, dar was de lunatic 'sylum."

"And the river."

"An' de ribber; I golly, dat fust big bend in Town Fork of de Elkhorn, up 'bove de city—practically, dat was a mighty feasible proposition for catfish."

"Amazin'."

"I say, boss, practically, you never happened to know a cullud boy named Columbus Parsons, as lived out on the road to'ards whar ole Harry Clay was borned—out to'ards Ashland—did yer sah?"

"I knowed a colored boy named Columbus Parsons that rode ole Woodpecker Ploughboy down at the Blue Grass course and won the puss."

"De Lord love us! Was you dar? De great hokey! Practically, I am dat same Columbus Parsons what rode old Woodpecker and won de puss 'down dar at Blue Grass!"

"The Columbus Parsons I knowed used to be a great fiddler; played for all the balls and parties for miles around."

"Dat was me, sah. I was de boy. Now you's a beginnin' to know me!"

"The Columbus Parsons I used to know was a great singer—was lightnin' at all the nigger camp meetin's."

"Dat was me, boss. I'm identically and practically dat same Columbus Parsons! You's got de most feasible mem'ry dat I ever saw, sah."

"The Columbus Parsons I knowed went to Frankfort and ran on the river as steward of the Bell Wagner."

"Yah, yah; you knows me—you knows me, boss! You knows me like a brudder, sah! In dem days didn't I put on de apparel? Wasn't I attired? Practically, sah, you's got de most feasible mem'ry I ever saw!"

"Th eColumbus Parsons that I knowed, the Columbus Parsons that rode ole Woodpecker, the Columbus Parsons that used to sing at camp meetin's, the Columbus Parsons that was steward on the Bell Wagner, that Columbus Parsons bu'sted open the trunk of a passenger, stole a thousand dollars, and was sent to the State Prison at Frankfort for five years."

"Practically, boss, you's got a powerful feasible memory, but dare was another Columbus Parsons down dare 'bout Lexin'ton and Frankfort, 'cross de chain bridge—dat was a hoss-rider, a fiddler, a singer, and a steam-boater, an' he was a low-flung, harum-scarem, no-account feller; I guess he mout a bin de Columbus Parsons what you knowed, sah."

"You think so?"

"Sartin, sure, boss; but don't say nuffin 'bout de feller heah, sah. You see, practically, it mout injure my good name, sah."

THE HOOSIERS OF POSEY COUNTY.

Edwin Eggleston, the novelist, contributes the following:

In the southwest corner of Indiana, between the Ohio and Wabash, is Posey county. Nearly ten years since I taught a Winter school in the centre of Posey. I remember it used to be said that just north of where I taught, people run down their children with dogs once a month to put clean clothes on them; and in the maps we used to draw at school we laid Posey off in four divisions, marked thus in childish comedy: "Civilized tribes," "Yahoos," "Mungeroons," "Unexplored regions." I had sixty-five scholars on my list, and my private record shows eighty-five "corporeal punishments inflicted;" and the bulk of that fell on three boys. "Lickin' and larnin'—lickin' and larnin'," was the alliterative philosophy of Centre township, in Posey county.

In this part of Indiana and Illinois the original Hoosier flourished. Flat Creek, Hoop-pole, Dog Hollow and Lick Skillet are all here. No stage caricature ever represented the Hoosier to one who knows him; he is sui generis, gaunt of person, pale yellow of hair, loose of joint, long drawn out and shaky, with inimitable voice, and a foot which is destruction to cut-worms. I know the Hoosier well, for I was born with him, partially brought up with him; I narrowly escaped being one of him. His language is a derivative and compound dialect, consisting of equal parts of literally translated Pennsylvania Dutch idioms, Carolina and Kentucky niggerisms, and a good stocky English. Webster has no vowel sounds which will fully represent the Hoosier dialect. Its grammar may be partially illustrated by the conjugation of the word "to do." As thus:

Present tense—Regular as in English.

Imperfect—I done it, you done it, he done it.

Plural—We'uns done it, you'uns done it, they'uns done it, etc.

Perfect—I gone done it, etc.

Plural—We'uns gone done it, etc.

Pluperfect—I bin gone done it, etc.

Plural—We'uns been gone done it, etc.

First future—I gwine to do it, you gwine to do it, etc.

Plural—We'uns gwine to do it, etc.

Second future—I gwine to gone done it, etc.

Plural—We'uns gwine to gone done it, you'uns gwine, etc.

The Hoosier enjoyed corn shuckings, circuses and "spellin' matches;" his greatest dread was the "fever'n ager." In my boyhood this terrible scourge was both epidemic and endemic, both chronic and sporadic. In some neighborhoods it came only at the "turn of the season"—along in August—when the vegetation begins to part with its juices to the air; in other places it was to be expected at any season of the year, any hour of the day. These last were specifically known as the "ager naborhoods," newcomers were solemnly warned not to get in such, and every village cherished traditions of some other village not far remote where the "town bell rung every two hours for folks to take their quinine."

Now one may live for years in almost any part of Indiana before seeing a case of ague. But it comes back sometimes in rather a startling way, and this appears to have been one of the years for it. I met young people of my acquaintance who had never seen a case of it before their own, it had so nearly vanished; but I recognized it in a minute as the same old, mean, sneaking, freezing disease. Cognate with the "ager" was the "milk sick," that strange, unaccountable affection which seized upon milk-kine, and through their milk, butter and flesh, upon men.

That, too, seems to me nearly extinct. Indeed, I never hear it mentioned now; but it was the cause of many painful, lingering deaths, and still more shattered constitutions, twenty-five years ago. A thousand times I have heard farmers discuss the various theories, as to whether it was in the water or the air or the vegetation, or all three, and for aught I know the question is unsettled yet. The Hoosier, too, is almost extinct: and since the school law of 1856 went into operation, a young generation of educated people has come upon the stage.

—Mr. A. Bronson Alcott read a paper in Boston, recently, on "Personal Purity," in which he said he could conceive of a life that would lead down to that of the ape. Intemperance, and its attendant evils, and vice in various forms, lead downward to a condition little if any better than that of the ape. Thus could be seen the effect of vice on the countenance. Impure literature was sapping the life of young men. In olden times mothers made a practice of reading books before they were put into the hands of their children. It was not safe to allow the young to read all that was put in the newspapers—there were portions to be omitted. It was necessary to the attainment of personal purity to practice restraint, which was religion. Parents in requiring obedience of their children should do so by example and kindness. Oftentimes the parent needed punishment as much as the child.

A good story at the expense of Representative Lamar is going around Congressional circles. When he was returning home at the close of the session of Congress in 1860, a newsboy on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad insisted that he should purchase a book. Annoyed by his pertinacity, and anxious to be rid of him,

Mr. Lamar said to him, with a wave of his hand, "Oh! pshaw! don't bother me so; I wrote the book." Quick as thought the little fellow answered, "Ah! now I know. That's what makes it so hard to sell!"

Good Enough!

The Amnesty Bill Defeated.

The debate closed on Thursday, Mr. Blaine replying with vigor to the speech of Mr. Hill, of Georgia, who he declared had been flinging the shadow of the confederacy a long way over the dial of the National House of Representatives. He quoted an extract from Mr. Hill's speech, to which the latter objected that Mr. Blaine was omitting the connection. Mr. Blaine replied that he was speaking of it as it appeared in the Washington Chronicle and in the Associated Press report. He continued:

"I do not pretend to be bound by the version of it which may appear hereafter in the Congressional Record, because I observe that the gentleman from New York (Cox) spoke one speech and published another. I suppose the gentleman from Georgia will do the same. I admit he has a difficult role to play to keep himself in line with the New York democrats, and to keep himself in proper position for democratic candidate for Senator from Georgia, and it is very a difficult thing to reconcile the two. [Laughter on the republican side.] The Barnburner democrats in 1853 found it very hard to adhere to their anti-slavery principles in New York and still to support the Pierce Administration, and Mr. Greeley, with his inimitable humor which was characteristic of him, said that they had a hard row to straddle, and that they were like the militia generals on parade-day in Broadway, who found it an almost impossible task to follow the music and keep clear of the omnibuses [boisterous laughter all over the House], and that is the case with the gentleman from Georgia."

The democratic leaders repeatedly interrupted Mr. Blaine, Cox losing his temper and vociferating that Mr. Blaine was a hyena. Mr. Blaine took no notice of him, but kept up a running fire of repartee with the others. He said:

"Mr. Hill asks us to join with him in paying the last full measure of honor which the American Congress can pay to an arch-enemy and arch-fiend of the Union. Suppose Jefferson Davis is not pardoned, is not amnestied (ironically.) Oh, we cannot have the Centennial year without that. No man on this side of this house has ever intimated that Jefferson Davis should be refused a pardon on account of a political crime. It is because of a personal crime, and if you ask that there be a harmonious and universal rejoicing over every forgiven man, take out of prison all your criminals, take out the men sentenced for piracy and murder, and proclaim the jubilee indeed."

A member on the democratic side—Let us include the whisky convicts too.

Mr. Blaine—That reminds me of one thing which I might have forgotten. The gentleman from Georgia said that the logic which was presented the other day with reference to Jefferson Davis made General Grant responsible for McDonald and Joyce. The gentleman may have thought that was wit, but I cannot see it.

Mr. Hill—I know you cannot.

Mr. Blaine—It was not as witty as the gentleman from New York is. It was more grim. If Jefferson Davis, the moment that the crimes of Andersonville were brought to his attention, had arraigned the perpetrators of them at once, and issued an order that no guilty man should escape, then there would be some little consistency in the gentleman's position. [Applause on the republican side and in the galleries.] It was ill-conceived and in very bad taste for the gentleman from Georgia to introduce Gen. Grant's name in this connection, very bad taste indeed; but I mention, on the authority of Gen. Grant, whom the gentleman from Georgia impugned in connection with the exchange of prisoners, that one trouble in relation to the exchange of prisoners was that the Davis government observed no honor in the matter. Gen. Grant states that the brigade of Carter Stevenson, who was dislodged at Chattanooga, was made up of paroled prisoners taken at Vicksburg, and that Stevenson himself was one of them; and he states that the parole prisoners who were paroled and discharged one day were found next day in the front of his line; but in stating this Gen. Grant was careful in saying of Lee, the two Johnsons, Pemberton and the great Confederate Generals, that they had been honor itself, but with the Davis executive government there was no honor whatever. As to the number of prisoners who died on each side, I have been told by an army surgeon that there was a large number of deaths among the rebel prisoners; but during the last part of the war they came into our hands exhausted, ill-fed, ill-clad and diseased, and that they died of disease they brought. One of the eminent surgeons said to me that the question was not what was the condition of the prisoners when they came to us, but what it was when they were returned. Our men were taken in full health and strength; they came back wasted and worn skeletons. The rebel prisoners were taken emaciated, and Gen. Grant says that at the time such superhuman efforts were made on the Confederate side for exchange, there were 90,000 prisoners in our hands who would have re-entered the rebel army fat, in good health and ready for fighting. That sheds a good deal of light on what the gentleman from Georgia said.

Mr. Blaine then read a letter from Robert Ould, Confederate Agent of Exchanges, to Col. Meyers, directing him that if exigence required the use of trains for transportation of corn, to pay no regards to the Yankee prisoners, as it was better to let them starve than for their soldiers to suffer. Mr. Blaine then referred to the military order of Gen. Winder to open a fire of grape upon the Union prisoners at Andersonville if the Union troops came within seven miles, which order Mr. Hill intimated was a forgery. As to the use of bloodhounds for hunting our prisoners, Mr. Hill admitted that there were dogs used, but denied that they were bloodhounds.

Mr. Blaine ended by saying: "In view of all these facts, I have only to say that if the American Congress, by a two-thirds vote, shall pronounce Jefferson Davis worthy to be restored to the full rights of an American citizen I can only vote against it and hang my head in silence."

Mr. Banks, of Massachusetts, offered an amendment inserting an oath to be taken by all persons laboring under disabilities before amnesty should be granted. Mr. Blaine objected and Mr. Banks made a speech in favor of general amnesty. He was followed by Messrs. Tarbox, Morey and Randall. The bill was referred to the judiciary committee and Mr. Blaine moved a reconsideration, so that the bill cannot be reported back except under the regular call of committees.

To the surprise of the House on Friday, Proctor Knott, chairman of the judiciary committee, reported the amnesty bill, moved the previous question and refused to allow Mr. McCreary to make a statement in behalf of the republican minority. Mr. Blaine stated that he would be satisfied if he could be allowed to read a letter which he held in his hand. A general cry of objection was made by the democratic members, the previous question was seconded and on the main question the yeas and nays were demanded by the republicans. The House rejected the bill with Banks' amendment, 182 yeas to 97 nays, not two-thirds voting in the negative.

News and Notes.

Western men are jubilant at the selection of Cincinnati as the place in which the republican National convention will be held. Bristow's friends say that this selection ensures his nomination, while Morton's friends say that it means success for their man. The Blaine men have a growing confidence that the Ex-Speaker is the coming man. The convention will meet June 14th. There were a number of ballots before a choice of location was made, the last one being as follows: Cincinnati 32, Chicago 18, Philadelphia 13.

The Portland Advertiser says Jeff Davis should have been hanged in 1865. Give us a grip of thine honest hand, neighbor!

In the warmth of his enthusiasm, the compositor whose pleasure it was to "set" the item announcing the sentence of LaPage, made it read Jan. 19, 1847. This excess of zeal is excusable as the aggravating delay that New Hampshire law imposes prevents the Pembroke fiend from suffering for his crime until 1877.

The second trial of Thomas W. Piper for the murder of Mabel H. Young will commence on Monday, the 31st inst.

The spectacle of an ex-member of the rebel Congress, the sponsor for the barbarous black flag resolution offered in the rebel Senate, now declaiming from his seat in the United States House of Representatives, in favor of pardoning Jefferson Davis, and impudently pretending that the prisoners at Elmira were as badly off as those at Andersonville, is probably the most damaging exhibition to the democratic party that their worst enemy could wish to see. If Mr. Randall, or Mr. Morrison, or anybody else on the democratic side, has any control over their hot headed Southern brethren, they had better choke them off at once. Already this trivial debate has cost that party thousands of votes, and furnished material for scores of republican stump speeches next Fall. The democrats of the House are making a sorry mess of it, and their mismanagement, if it continues, will leave plain sailing for their opponents in the Presidential election. We say this in no spirit of partisanship, but because it is true. They have been out-generalled at every point.—Worcester Gazette.

The Courier-Journal properly ranks Mr. Fruits and Mrs. Fruits, of Indiana, among the first Fruits of the earth, the one being 113 and the other 111 years old.

The Senate committee on privileges and elections have decided that there is no evidence against the legality of the election of Senator Spencer of Alabama that merits consideration.

The New York Musical Monitor says that the next President will be the man whose party hires the most brass bands during the coming eight months.

The nomination of Hon. Daniel Marcy as their candidate for Governor indicates the sympathy of the democrats of New Hampshire with the utterances of the representative Georgia democrat, on the floor of Congress, and will be hailed by the constituents of that gentleman as an endorsement of their sentiments by their political brethren of the Granite State. It will be another strong cord linking together the Northern and Southern members of the great political organization that seeks to regain control of the country. And it was for this purpose that men like Mr. Daniell of Franklin, were thrust aside, and a man whose war record no Southern man can object to was made the party standard-bearer in the opening contest of the year. Whatever it may be in New Hampshire, for the latitude of Georgia it is the most popular nomination that could have been made.—Boston Traveller.

Nice weather in Alabama: Violets, butter-cups, crocuses, japonicas, strawberries and plum trees are in full bloom, and swarms of "little busy bees" improve the shining hours.

A movement has been inaugurated for a revival of the old whig party, not to run an independent ticket in the coming Presidential contest, but to afford a nucleus around which the old whigs of the South can rally.

Ship Harvest Queen of New York was run down by steamer Adriatic off Queenstown, Dec. 30th, and all on board were lost.

"Don't revive the horrors of Andersonville," plaintively beseech the democrats. Well, don't revive the fiends who caused them, then.—Lowell Courier.

Murderers don't stand much of a show with New Hampshire juries nowadays. Post.

THE BALD-HEADED BABY.

[M. Quad in N. Y. Graphic.]

She had him carefully wrapped up as she entered the street car, but after getting seated she removed the shawl, and the bald-headed baby was given a shake, a twist, a wrench, a flop, and came right end up, with his big blue eyes wide open.

Some of the people in the car merely glanced at the bald head—looked just long enough to be able to swear, if called upon, that it was a baby instead of a goat. Others smiled pityingly as they thought of his bald head breasting the cold blasts of a hard winter, and wondered if woe and poverty and sorrow had prevented a growth of hair on his pate.

Presently an old man left his place near the front end of the car, and bending over the child he asked of the mother:

"My dear woman, do you want to do me a great favor?"

"Why—why, sir—" she stammered in confusion.

"I have not long to live, for I am old and feeble," he continued, "but before I die I desire to lay my hand on that baby's head!"

She made no objection, and he placed his hand on the shining pate, moved it this way and that, and asked:

"Madam, have you given this child a cognomen yet?"

"Yes, sir; we've named him," she replied.

"And, madam, allow me to hope that it is a name befitting the intellectual appearance of the child."

"We call him Bascomb," she replied in a whisper.

"Bascomb! Capital! You don't know what a load you have taken from my heart! I feared you had, like many other people, named him after some big man or woman, or racing horse, or something. You are sensible, you are, and if I was a brass band I'd come around and serenade you this very evening!"

She was very red in the face from embarrassment, but he saw only the baby, whose bald head kept trying to dodge out from under his hand.

"Yes, I'm truly glad," he presently continued, "that you didn't name him George Washington. Washington was a deceiver, sure's your born, though lots of Americans hate to own it. Did you ever hear, madam, that General Washington once stole a cider-mill?"

"N—no," she stammered.

"You didn't? Why, it wasn't two weeks before his death that he stole a cider mill from a nice old Baptist minister, and if he hadn't died when he did he would have been jailed and made to pay smart money. If you had named the child after Washington I could never have met him without feeling my heart ache over your lack of judgment."

Little bald-head shrank up to his mother, and she turned and looked out of the window. The old man, however, continued:

"And I'm so glad you didn't name him after Daniel Webster. Mr. Webster was a good public speaker, and he knew considerable about business, but he wasn't the man he was cracked up to be. Why, madam, that same Daniel Webster was caught with a ham on his shoulder one dark night, just when he was the most popularist, and he had to pay $200 to settle it. He was a big man, and it was all hushed up, while you and I, madam, would have been jerked to jail in a wink, because we are only common folks. It makes me shiver when I think of how you might have named this baby Daniel Webster and blasted his bald head for life!"

She looked up at the bell-rope and around the car, but there was no escape.

"And you might have named him Patrick Henry," softly continued the old man, as he rubbed the baby's head again. "Named him after a man who'd hook fish off'n an orphan boy's fish-line. I know what I'm talking about, madam. Patrick Henry had quite good learning, and he wore good clothes, and you couldn't get a counterfeit bill on him, but he had his balky tricks, after all. Would you believe, madam, that he would walk seven miles on a dark night to hook seed-wheat?"

The bald-headed baby had got tired of the thing, and now began to cry. The old man nudged him in the ribs, and said:

"Bascomb, be a good boy! When you grow up, my boy, beware of polygamy, Brigham, and the many evil influences to be met with around a corner grocery."

And he raised his eyes to the mother and added:

"Well, I don't know as I can give you any hints as to how you had best bring him up. If you should ever get sick of him I'd take him in a minute, for there's something about his head which has touched a tender spot and made me love him."

She was yet four blocks from home, but she pulled the bell.

"And I'm glad you didn't name him General Jackson," said the old man as he patted the bald head for a last time. "General Jackson whipped the British at New Orleans, to be sure, but what about his passing a counterfeit ten-cent piece on General Lafayette? If you had named this baby General Jackson I should have wept—going, eh? Good-by, my son, and don't never walk on the railroad track, and don't try to sit down on a picket fence!"

To My Patients and the Public!

I propose to leave Portsmouth about February 1st, for an absence of several months. Will those contemplating or needing my services please give me an early call? Previous to my departure for Europe in 1874, so many of my patients neglected to call until the very last that I was compelled to seek the assistance of a stranger to help me out with my forced engagements. I cannot do so this year. The responsibility rests with my patients after this call.

Jottings.

Theodore Tilton pronounces the Temple to be one of the best halls for acoustic properties that he ever lectured in.

The second meeting of the Temperance Reform Club was held Thursday evening. The hall was filled, and great enthusiasm prevailed, as several "hard cases" signed the pledge. The President, Mr. John S. Treat, presided, and addresses were made by the Chaplain, Rev. John A. Goss, and Messrs. Ham, Loyne, Stringer, Connor, Drew, Gardiner, Eaton, Dr. Stevens, Archibald, Locke, Larrabee, Wallace and Fernald of Charleston, Mass. Ten signed the pledge. The Club will hold another meeting at Mechanics' Hall, Sunday evening at 7 1-2 o'clock. The public are invited.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Walker, who died in Boston on the 12th, was the first lady teacher at the High School.

The Rochester (N. Y.) Union says of the company which will appear at the Temple this evening: Baker and Farron, though they are both among the youngest members of the profession who have attained notoriety as "star" actors, were at the same time among the first to start out in the "dialect" business, a branch of the drama which has been a rich source of income to many besides them. Since their first appearance, a few years ago, they have remained constant to their specialty of vocation, and, always traveling together, have divided between them in this city and other places the applause of many a crowded house and the more acceptable proof of popularity in the shape of national currency. Last evening, the Opera House was well filled in every part to witness the performance of "Heinrich and Hettie," and the loud-handed approbation of the spectators were continually expressed through all the changes of double song and dance, national delineations, burlesque military drill, etc. The play seemed to preserve the attention of the audience, who appeared as much interested in one part as in another, though the applause was of course mainly bestowed upon the principals, and the repetitions demanded were those of their episodical specialties.

Rev. Carlos Martyn will preach at the Bow Mission, Sunday evening, at six o'clock.

We understand that Rev. Charles A. Holbrook of Brighton, Mass., has accepted the invitation extended to him by St. John's Episcopal Church to become their rector, and will commence his official duties to-morrow.

Rev. S. S. Hebbard will treat of "Lunatics" at his lecture to-morrow evening.

Rev. Mr. DeNormandie will preach on Sunday at the vesper service upon "Sectarianism."

Republican County Convention.

The Rockingham County convention met at the town hall, in Exeter, Thursday, and was called to order by Geo. C. Gordon of Salem, of the State committee.

Col. Sewall D. Tilton of Raymond was chosen President with Moses A. Perkins of Epping for Secretary.

Daniel L. Randall of Portsmouth, H. H. Titcomb of East Kingston, D. B. Dickey, of Auburn, True M. Gould, of Raymond, and H. C. Smith, of Londonderry, were appointed committee on credentials.

A. J. Hoyt, of Exeter, John H. Cheever, of Portsmouth, and E. P. Hoyt, of Atkinson, were appointed committee on resolutions.

Geo. W. Weston, of Windham, was renominated by acclamation for Register of Deeds.

Geo. E. Lane, of Exeter, was re-nominated by acclamation for County Treasurer.

The convention then proceeded to ballot for a candidate for County Commissioner, and eleven ballots were had before a choice was made, the first being informal.

and Col. Sewall D. Tilton was nominated.

On motion of Mr. D. Frank Fellows, the nomination was made unanimous.

The resolutions of the State convention were adopted and the convention adjourned.

Col. Sewall D. Tilton, of Raymond, the nominee for Commissioner, is a farmer belonging in Raymond. He was a soldier during the rebellion and rose to the rank of Captain while in the service. He was appointed by Gov. Harriman as a member of his staff with the rank of Colonel, for meritorious service on the field of battle. His democratic opponent, Josiah S. James, of Raymond, is a storekeeper.

— AT —

HENDERSON'S.

The parties who had agreed to purchase my stock of Dry Goods on the first of January, not being able to meet their engagements, the stock is still left in my hands, which seriously interferes with the business arrangements I had made.

I have therefore determined to give the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity a rousing benefit. To make quick work of it, I propose the following inducements to purchasers of Dry Goods:

A Present to every Customer

buying One Dollar's worth of goods.

A Better Present to every customer buying Two Dollars' worth.

A still Better One to every customer buying Five Dollars' worth.

An Elegant Present to every customer buying Ten Dollars' worth.

Every customer buying One Dollar's worth or more, is sure of a Valuable Present.

In addition to all this, one in every twenty-five packages containing a present, also contains a check entitling the lucky holder to the

Elegant Chamber Set

IN MY WINDOW

VALUED AT 55 DOLLARS.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT AT THE HEAD OF THIS COLUMN IS AN ACTUAL FACT!

The amount of presents to be given away is equal to just one-half the amount of the value of the goods sold.

The Grandest Dry Goods sale ever heard of,—offering better inducements even than Lovering in his celebrated book sale.

We don't all want a book, but we all need Dry Goods, and in purchasing of me you get your goods as low as can be bought in Portsmouth with all the additional inducements thrown in.

☞ Everything will be conducted squarely and everything advertised will be carried out.

No person in the store knows the package containing the checks for the larger presents, and the only condition we exact from the persons receiving them is the privilege of publishing their names, simply to satisfy the public that the goods are given away as advertised.

PULMOCINE.

Daily Chronicle.

—"Pears to me you've got a putty slim fire, Mirandy," said a spindling youth the other night, as he sat in front of the fireplace by the side of a buxom young lady, who had no earthly use for him. "Yes," she said, as she wickedly looked at the floor behind him; "it's about all you and the fire can do between you to get up a respectable shadow."

—There are 11,333 blind men and 8977 blind women in the United States.

Dr. Pierce.

[From the Toledo Blade.]

"Success is never achieved without merit. A man may make a poor article and sell it once, and there being 40,000,000 people in the United States, the sale to each one would be enough to make a decent fortune. But an article that holds the field year after year, and the sales of which increase regularly and rapidly must have absolute merit.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., occupies our entire eighth page to day with his various articles. We admit it, because we know the Doctor, and know of his articles. We know him to be a regularly educated physician, whose diploma hangs on the wall of his office, and we know that he has associated with him several of the most eminent practitioners in the country. We know that parties consult him, by mail and in person, from all States in the Union every day, and that they are fairly and honestly dealt with.

This grand result has been accomplished by two agencies—good, reliable articles or articles which, once introduced, work easily their own way—and splendid business management. They have succeeded because they ought to have succeeded."

If you would patronize Medicines scientifically prepared by a skilled Physician and Chemist, use Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines. Golden Medical Discovery is nutritious, tonic, alterative, and blood-cleansing, and as unequaled Cough Remedy; Pleasant Purgative Pellets, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, constitute an agreeable and reliable physic; Favorite Prescription, a remedy for debilitated females; Extract of Smart-Weed, a magical remedy for Pain, Bowel Complaint, and an unequaled Liniment for both human and horse-flesh; while his Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is known the world over as the greatest specific for Catarrh and "Cold in the Head" ever given to the public. They are sold by druggists.

20 years a Sufferer.—Cured by the Golden Medical Discovery.

DR. R. V. PIERCE:

Dear Sir,—Twenty years ago I was ship wrecked on the Atlantic Ocean, and the cold and exposure caused a large abscess to form on each leg, which kept continually discharging. I was attended by doctors in Liverpool, Havre, New Orleans, New York and at the hospital on Staten Island (where the doctors wanted to take one leg off). Finally, after spending hundreds of dollars, I was persuaded to try your "Golden Medical Discovery," and now, in less than three months after taking the first bottle, I am thankful to say I am completely cured, and for the first time in twenty years can put my left heel to the ground. I am at home nearly every evening and shall be glad to satisfy any person of the truth of this information. I am, sir, yours respectfully,

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse." CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure them the broadest and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

JOSEPH ROGERS COLT SBURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

JOHN TAGGART."

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package became a regular users for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, I have suffered so much, and for so large part of the time have been so work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that I could not walk across the room, pretty much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I first purchased by the dozen, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package was sufficient to cure me, and I have not needed your tonic. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured your pills for my wife, and they have done her good. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I had given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send me a package for me." I was told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most every thing, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills a day, and feel like a new man. I get testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them, if I can't find more. Please send $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism; also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable to stand up or walk up and down stairs without from the power. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must spend the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. My sleep was sound from the first night. Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes will be cured by using them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia Gone Forever---Cured Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roxbrough, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national life with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration of Grant during its close. In the course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and made the slave to be full citizens or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church and the State, and particularly in the State people, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are, so far, only hopeful witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all thoughtful and earnest discussion of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, which has shown no only for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan misrepresentation, but a fearless advocate of what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and an unsparing exposer of either. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men whom the country knows and can trust; to secure hard money, Administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as will permit the government to protect citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. In the Democratic party it will oppose the forces for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and in currently advocating the best interest of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and cut lowering the tolls on canals. It found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its agricultural course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One remark of its policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been and both numerous and powerful, to force of abandon some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to prevent some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have this year two or three times as much practical weight, participate to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with its best energy, and will always commend itself to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wrangling, will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provoke from inferior contemporaries, and as editorious will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE asks that a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1872 and 1873 the position assigned it by a score or two of foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watchfulness and the most intelligent endeavor to procure the ablest intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and well and fair editorial work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors are many many of the most eminent men in the country.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians who pronounced it the best Pulmonary Cordial he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the busy trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, and inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all inflamed Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "taking in patients for 10 years in America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that of a celebrated one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

The Lowest Premium is $2.10.

Each Fraction must draw this sum.

All Fractions will be good with $15.00 to purchase a whole $20.00 Bond.

This is a chance for a fortune, and no chance for loss.

A $20 Bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn one of the following premiums.

$21, 850, $100, $200, $300, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $35,000, $100,000.

The Bonds issued by the Industrial Exhibition Co., are a copy of the European Government Loans.

The Bonds are a safe investment.

PEOPLE OF SMALL MEANS

Can find no better or safer investment No chance of loss. A fortune may be acquired

On December 6th - - - - On January, 3rd.

PURCHASE NOW.

How to Purchase.

In person, or by certified Check, or Express, or Postal Order, or Draft, or enclose greenbacks in a registered letter, to, and made payable to the Industrial Exhibition Co.

The funds raised by sale of these Bonds, will be applied to the erection of a Crystal Palace, which every American will be proud of.

Recollect, the Industrial Exhibition is a legitimate enterprise, chartered by the State of New York.

Its Directors are the best citizens of New York.

It has had one drawing since July, 1874, and paid out in principal and interest, $750,000.

Any one obtaining a premium, the company pledges itself not to let the public.

This enterprise is simply a new form of bond; in no sense is it to be recognized as a lottery.

Be sure and purchase at once.

$5 will buy a Fraction for December 6th, 1875.
$5 " " Quarter Bond for Jan. 3rd, 1876.
$10 " " Half Bond " "
$20 " " Whole Bond " "

All Bonds are exchangeable into city lots in the suburbs of New York City.

Each Bondholder is regarded as an honorary member of the Industrial Exhibition Co., and is welcomed as the Patron of an Art Gallery, No. 1 East 14th Street, Agents Wanted.

All communications and remittances to be made to the Industrial Exhibition Co., 15 East 17th Street, between 5th Ave., and Broadway, New York City.

For the purpose of giving the Bondholders of the Industrial Exhibition Co., full and complete information as to the progress of the Company, and a complete list of the drawings, an Illustrated Journal will be published, viz:

The Industrial Exhibition Illustrated,

Subscription One Dollar per Year.

Any one sending a club of 15 subscribers, with $15, will be given a Premium of one Fraction or 1 Bond, club of 25 subscribers, 1 Bond; club of 50 subscribers a whole Bond. Address,

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's Centennial gift. ☜

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables it proportionately to secure more and better contributors, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are equally of great beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

TERMS (Always in Advance) $2.00 A YEAR.

1976.

AMERICANS A CENTURY HENCE INDULGE IN A REMINISCENCE.

QUESTION:

Now, papa tell me truly, did the people use to travel
In steamboats and in railroad cars, on water and on land?
And did they wallow in the seas and drag along the gravel,
Like fishes in the river or like lizards on the sand?
Confined to a dead level they must have had a bother
To keep from breaking down and running into one another.

ANSWER:

They did, my daughter; oft I've heard my father tell about 'em.
And how they used to jump the track and run each other down;
But with our levitant balloon we've learned to do without 'em
For now we fly around the sky in an etherion,
Like "Queen Celeste," in which we float along the azure now,
Five hundred feet from stern to stern, and paddles at the bow.

But, Mary, dear, some other things are quite as full of wonder;
They used to have a clumsy rig they called a "telegraph"—
A slow communication between places far asunder—
Its poles and wire and chemicals I'm sure would make you laugh.
They hadn't harnessed up the will, nor guessed that power was in it
To hail a distant friend and get an answer in a minute.

There's telescopes—why look at ours—see what we are arriving at!
We see our neighbors now at Mars and Mercury and Venus,
We swap some signals with them and find out what they're driving at;
Our microscopes reveal the ways of all the monad genus,
And show us how spontaneously the flea is generated,
And how the bugs and butterflies from nothing are created.

My child, lean out the flying ship; far downward lariboard looking
You see the bankrupt blackened shafts whence Lackawanna coal
Was spread throughout the land, to light and warm and do the cooking;
That was before we learned to bore a thousand-fathom hole—
In every town a hot-air shaft right through the shell of granite Draws light and heat from out the inner furnace of the planet.

What progress we have made! Our biologists have found
The "missing link" of Darwin in the talking ape of Muneseey;
And now we know a murderer is mentally unsound
Instead of choking him to death we doctor him for lunacy.
Our philanthropic scientists have proved in many treatises
That crime is a disease as much as mumps or measles is.

At the time people used to kill the sheep and hogs and cattle,
And boil and fry them on the fire and eat them just like savages;
But now we have our patent rotary food-condenser, that'll
Give every mouth enough to eat and banish hunger's ravages.
Pour in a pint of nitrogen and mix in the accoutrements
Carbon and salts in appetising form of human nutriment.

But let us not be proud. If man, aspiring to the stars,
By his own will succeeds in overcoming gravitation;
If Brown, who visited the moon, succeeds in finding Mars,
And plants among the asteroids a Yankee signal station,
Our commonplace inventions will seem tame enough, and many'll
Think us behind the times as we the folks of the Centennial.

—W. A. Croffut, in Graphic.

Republican National Convention.

The next Union Republican National Convention for the nomination of candidates for President and Vice President of the United States will be held in the city of Cincinnati on Wednesday, June 14, 1876, at 12 o'clock, noon, and will consist of delegates from each State equal to the number of its Senators and Representatives in Congress and of two delegates from each organized Territory and the District of Columbia.

In calling the conventions for the election of delegates, the committees of the the several States are recommended to invite all republican electors and all other voters, without regard to political difference or previous party affiliation, who are opposed to reviving sectional issues, and desire to promote friendly feeling and permanent harmony throughout the country by maintaining and enforcing all the constitutional rights of every citizen, including the full and free exercise of the right of suffrage, without intimidation and without fraud, and who are in favor of continued prosecution and punishment of all official dishonesty and economical administration of the Government; who are in favor of honest, faithful and capable officers; who are in favor of making such reforms in the Government as experience may from time to time suggest; who are opposed to impairing the credit of the nation by depreciating any of its obligations, and in favor of sustaining in every way the national faith and financial honor; who hold that the common school system is the nursery of American liberty and should be maintained absolutely free from sectarian control; who believe that for the promotion of these ends the direction of the Government should continue to be confided to those who adhere to the principles of 1776, support them as incorporated in the Constitution and laws, and who are in favor of recognizing and strengthening the fundamental principle of National unity in this Centennial anniversary of the birth of the Republic.

E. D. MORGAN,
Chairman Republican National Com.
WM. E. CHANDLER, Secretary.

The address is signed by George E. Spencer of Alabama; Powell Clayton, Arkansas; George C. Gorham, California; Marshall Jewell, Connecticut; S. M. Harrington, Delaware; D. B. EDUCATION AT THE CENTENNIAL.

We have received from the superintendent of public instruction, Mr. J. W. Simonds, circulars giving directions for preparing materials for representing the condition of education in New Hampshire at the International Exhibition at Philadelphia. This matter will embrace photographic views of representative school buildings in different sections of the State, the work of scholars that can be shown by pen and pencil, school registers and records, town and State school reports, history and work of academies and select schools, and a history of the progress and condition of education in the State. The most important part seems to be to secure a fair, honest, representative exhibit of pupils' work. This covers schools of all grades and classes, public and private. The best specimens of regular work are what is wanted, put in some presentable form. The circulars give full directions to the different grades of school. The pupils' work is designed to illustrate both the methods of teaching and the standard of scholarship.

These circulars divide the work into different classes and so distribute it as to require but little from each town and each school. These contributions must be delivered at Concord, free of expense, yet no person or institution will be severely taxed. The difficult classes of work will be bound in volumes or placed in portfolios, packed in cases prepared for the purpose and forwarded to Philadelphia.

As the day for opening this great exhibition approaches the interest in it increases. The work in other States is going briskly forward. New Hampshire, noted for the intelligence of her people and good schools, cannot be remiss. Towns, individuals and schools invited to contribute in the department of education cannot excuse themselves from the trifling expenditure of money and time necessary for preparation.

STARTLING METEOROLOGICAL THEORY.

[Cin. Times.]

Notwithstanding the services in the different churches of the city, and the attraction of other amusements, a full house assembled in the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, to hear the first lecture of the season, which was delivered by Rev. L. B. Woolfolk, of Lexington, Ky. The lecturer showed perfect familiarity with his subject, and held the undivided attention of the audience for over an hour, and at the close was greeted with prolonged applause.

He began by stating that during two years' residence in the Rocky Mountains, the cradle of storms, he had beheld the phenomena of nature unveiled to observation as they are nowhere else. His generalizations, based upon these observations, has led him to the conclusion that the weather is subject to the control of man, in respect of wet and dry, heat and cold, storm and calm. In the present lecture he would restrict himself to the proposition that, by cannonades, man can so control the temperature as to maintain a genial Summer warmth during the entire Winter.

The temperature, he said, was dependent upon the winds, the south wind bringing with it the temperature of the tropics, and the north wind bearing with it arctic cold. If man can keep the south wind upon the surface, the weather would be always genial.

In the temperate zone the south wind is always on the surface of the earth except during storms. The storms of the temperate zone all arise out of the conflict of the tropical and polar currents, which become embanked against each other. This embankment and mutual compression and struggle of the two currents can only end by the polar current cutting a track through the tropical current through which to pour its mass south toward the tropics. All our Winter storms are irruptions of the polar current. The mass of the polar current is much less than that of the southerly winds, and it never cuts but one track at once, and, at all points away from the storm track the tropical current is flowing northwise on the surface of the earth, bearing with it the genial temperature of the southern latitudes. If, therefore, man can, by cannonades, keep open the track of the polar curvent at one place, a genial climate will be maintained in all other areas of the temperate zone.

The lecturer then proceeded to show how the track of the polar current is opened by either of three natural causes—by mechanical pressure, by electricity and by growing vegetation—and described a number of interesting phenomena observed by himself in illustration. But he proceeded to show that a cannonade was the most efficient of all agencies for breaking a vortex through which the polar current will pour its mass. This was the only agency that could prevent the two air currents from ever becoming embanked. He then cited many facts to show that the cannon firing of Winter battles has always broken a track for the polar current over the area of conflict and that, simultaneously, the south wind was flowing northward at all other points.

He proposed to keep up a cannonade upon one of the Aleutian Islands, so as to keep the storm track of the polar current constantly open in the Pacific ocean. By this means the two currents would never become embanked, and the tropical current all round the earth would set up a steady flow toward the open storm track. This modification of the direction of the south winds would greatly benefit the northern hemisphere. The deserts of Asia and North America would have regular and seasonable rains; vegetation would continue throughout the Winter, and the warm winds, blowing up the Atlantic into and across the Arctic Ocean, would drive before them the warm water of the Southern seas to mitigate the cold of the frigid regions.

The subject was well illustrated by diagrams, by the aid of which the ideas of the lecturer were made perfectly clear to the audience. The earnestness and argument of the speaker produced a deep impression upon his hearers, and at the close of the lecture the entire audience rose to its feet, in testimony of its conviction of the practicability of the theory.

Justice cannot be done to the lecture in this brief abstract. It is to be hoped that the subject will be thoroughly investigated by scientists, and the practicability of controling the weather by cannonades be tested by experiment.

The Amnesty Debate.

On Friday, after the defeat of the amnesty bill, Mr. Blaine moved a reconsideration and held the floor for an hour, the amazed democratic members failing to equal him in parliamentary maneuvreing. The letter he proposed reading was in regard to the removal of disabilities from Ex-Gov. Holden of North Carolina, and he said:

"Come here, gentlemen, yourselves, with clean hands, and not as persecutors. [Applause on the republican side.] You come persecuting men who never rebelled against the Government of the United States. You come here disabling men who fought grandly for the United States. You come here with the intent to drive from the executive chair of Mississippi Adelbert Ames, and to disable him in this Centennial year; and you come here refusing to remove the disabilities of W. W. Holden. These two friends of the Union—one a Union man in North Carolina, and the other as gallant a Union soldier as ever tied a sash around his body—are to be disfranchised, disabled men, and Jefferson Davis is to be let free to enjoy the Centennial at Philadelphia. [Laughter on the republican side.]

Mr. Blaine went on to say that if the gentlemen declined his proposition and wanted no further debate, he would give the gentleman from Pennsylvania, (Randall) an opportunity to bring up the Centennial bill, which has been postponed an entire week by this amnesty bill occupying the attention of the House.

Mr. Randall failing to indicate any intention of doing so, Mr. Blaine suddenly withdrew his motion to reconsider, amid triumphant laughter on the republican side and apparent astonishment on the democratic side;

The New York Tribune's special says that Mr. Blaine's speech of Thursday was not an argument, but an exhibition. He stood in his place like a gladiator in the midst of an arena, taunting and worrying his enemies until he provoked them to strike back in self-defense, and then sprang upon them with savage fury and tore them to pieces. The greatest sufferer was Mr. Hill of Georgia, though with his long, keen blade the ex-Speaker more than once pricked Mr. Cox to the very quick when he accused him of making one speech in the House and printing another in the Record, or when he quoted Mr. Cox as a war democrat during the great struggle, to confound Mr. Cox in his late speech on amnesty. At times he had the entire delegation from the South so excited that they were ready to rise en masse to reply to him, or hurl back his aggravating imputations upon them. Mr. Hill has been unfortunate not only in his speech, but in many other speeches which he has made in his own State and elsewhere since the war, and Mr. Blaine, with wonderful research, had made a large collection of these, as they have been printed in the newspapers and pamphlets, and brought them in to illustrate the speech to which he was replying. He said that the gentlemen from Georgia was as voluminous as the Spanish chroniclers, and he drew forth one after another short extract from his public utterances, which, taken alone, conveyed very damaging impressions, which were emphasized and increased by the manner in which they were introduced. Mr. Hill, who sat in front of Mr. Blaine, took most of it good-naturedly, though it was plain to see that he often felt that he was being placed in a false light before the House and country. But whenever he undertook to explain—something not easy to do under the most favorable circumstances—he only subjected himself to renewed attack with redoubled fury. * * * The ex-Speaker has probably destroyed whatever prospects Mr. Hill ever had of being the leader on his side of the House, and has succeeded in placing the democratic party in what its leaders say is a false position before the country. Perhaps this was his object.

News and Notes.

The Manchester Dispatch has been going after Deering of the Prohibition Herald with a sharp stick, and a correspondent in Pittsfield writes that his conduct in that town was such that "the Free Will Baptist Church turned him out from his pastoral charge, calling a council of ministers to try him for his unchristian conduct. After a hearing of two days and a half he was found guilty of unchristian conduct, required to make a confession to the church, and promise to do certain things in the future, or be expelled from the church. The church having no confidence in him requested him to put the agreement in writing." When the Dispatch gets through with the religious record of Deering it will find interesting matter connected with his departure from the army. Hunt it up, Mr. Dispatch.

Among the ships launched at Newburyport, recently, is the "Brown Brothers," built expressly for bringing Oregon timber to Eastern ports, for shipbuilding purposes,—for masts, spars, etc. This may be regarded as a decided innovation in shipbuilding, to say the least; and it would seem as though the forests of New England were well nigh exhausted of the proper timber for building ships. The "Brown Brothers, is 1000 tons, and she defies competition and challenges inspection. The carpenter's bill on her are $83,000, and the total cost of the ship will reach fully $110,000. She will leave Boston as soon as she has taken in her coal and freight. A peculiarity of the "Brown Brothers" is a house over her wheel; the first ever put on a ship, and possibly it will be the last. She is also supplied with a 12-horse hoisting engine, that will come handy in the business for which it is intended. She also has lower port holes that are four feet square, for the purpose of assisting in loading the ship with timber. The idea of going to the forests of Oregon for timber for use in building ships on the Massachusetts coast, is a novelty, to say the least, and seems very much like "carrying coals to Newcastle." Newburyport, more than any other shipbuilding point on our coast, has heretofore relied upon New Hampshire for its hard woods, but it would appear that those are nearly exhausted. The shipbuilding business promises to be quite active this year.

A prominent republican of California, in writing of Presidential candidates, says: "We should nominate a civilian this time and give the army a rest.

Noah Johnson of Hollis recently cut on his farm a rock maple tree, that made five cords and six cord feet of wood; the tree was twelve feet in circumference; a nice milling was cut from one of the branches that grew out from the main trunk fifteen feet from the ground. The tree is supposed to be 100 years old; it had a good heart and was apparently good for another century.

All the engineers of factories, etc., at Springfield, O., have been arrested for violating the city ordinances by blowing steam-whistles. In return they promise to secure the arrest of the sextons for ringing the church bells.

The annual message of Gov. Bedle of New Jersey recommends that a law be passed depriving every person convicted of bribery of any kind of the right of suffrage, unless pardoned, and that to be in addition to other penalties prescribed. In reference to the defalcation of the late Treasurer of the State, Joseph Scoy, Jr., he says the amount is $44,116, and he reports the income from labor of convicts in the State Prison to have been during the past year $78,048.

The CAP season has set in among the democratic newspapers of this State.

At the convention of the republicans of the Sixth Senatorial District, held at Alton on Thursday, Mr. Isaac W. Springfield, the candidate of last year, refused to allow his name to be used in the coming campaign, in consequence of which the convention adjourned to Jan. 27 at the same place.

By abolishing the office of General of the Army, cutting down the navy and disposing of a few other luxuries, it is thought that enough may be saved to mark the Centennial year by giving Jeff Davis a pension of $100,000. So thinks the Chicago Tribune.

Mr. James Leonard of Belmont, in an open letter to Gov. Cheney, published in the Laconia Democrat, severely stigmatizes the tramp law passed last June. Mr. Leonard's strictures, we are inclined to believe, are just. The law emanated in the brain of that great statesman, Albert R. Hatch, of Portsmouth. He gave notice of the act in the House, introduced it, reported it from the committee, and gave it his personal supervision until he saw it enrolled on the statute book.—Lake Village Times.

It cost $10,000 to try La Page, and a new trial is asked for on the ground that evidence was admitted that should have been excluded, viz: the testimony of Miss Rousse, a Canadian French girl who was outraged by La Page in Canada and left for dead.

The A B C Pathfinder, for February, is as near perfect as a guide can be. It contains, in addition to the already carefully compiled and corrected official time tables of all the roads in New England, an alphabetical list of every railroad station in New England, showing: 1. If it is a telegraph station. 2. If it is a money-order office. 3. The population by the latest census. 4. The name of the road on which it is situated. 5. The route by which it can be reached. 6. The distance in miles from Boston by nearest route. 7. The average running time from Boston. 8. Expresses to and from the place. 9. Time of the mails closing at Boston. 10. Time of departure from Boston, and return of all trains which connect directly with Boston. Rand, Avery & Co., publishers, Boston.

Mrs. Daniel W Harriman, of Lancaster, who is now 74 years of age, reckoned up her work for the past year this way: Helped make sugar in the Spring, did the work for a family of three, spun 287 skeins of yarn and double-and-twisted and spooled, warped and wove 271 yards of cloth.

Jonathan Palmer, of Kensington, has in his possession a tankard that was made in the reign of King William and Mary. This tankard has engraved on it the likeness of William and Mary, also the English rose and Scotch thistle, and the lion and the unicorn. It was brought to this country by the mother of ex-Governor Belcher, of Massachusetts, and has been handed down in a direct lineage to its present owner.

Ex-Senator Doolittle of Wisconsin, in a recent speech at a democratic gathering, soberly announced that "General Sherman will be the next republican candidate for President, General Grant will succeed Sherman as General of the Army, and the democrats must organize against this military domination."

The Congregational Council, called for the purpose of deciding the question as to the right of Plymouth to drop from the list of membership the name of Mrs. Moulton, has been upset. In arranging the list for the council the names of Dr. Storrs and Dr. Buddington were included. After they had announced that they would probably accept the invitation, the committee of Plymouth Church entered a protest against their serving, on the ground that they were partial and had enmity against the church. When some of the other churches heard that Dr. Storrs' and Dr. Buddidgton's churches would be left out they also declined to serve, and the council was therefore upset. Mrs. Moulton was apprised of the fact of the withdrawal of the churches and the disarrangement of the list, and her counsel, Mr. Van Cott, sent a long letter to the Plymouth Church committee refusing to treat with them any further in relation to the mutual council, and sharply reprehending the course they had pursued in rejecting the churches selected. He thought the action of the church would be considered by all just men a deliberate attempt to avoid investigation. Letters of Drs. Storrs and Buddington were enclosed with Van Cott's communication to the committee.

The Atlantic, Russell and Orchard Beach houses at Old Orchard Beach were burned Saturday morning. Loss $20,000.

Five negro thieves lost their lives in a remarkable way on Roanoke Island, N. C., recently. Clarence Meekins was awakened from sleep by a noise on his premises, and found that some persons were attempting to rob his smoke house. He immediately secured his gun and advanced cautiously toward the smoke house. There he discovered a man sitting on a pry with which he had raised one end of the building. Meekins fired, and the thief fell back mortally wounded, the building also coming down again to its former position. On examination Mr. Meekins found that by the building falling back four negroes, who had crept under the place, had been crushed to death.

Good! The Apaches have shot an Indian agent. "Let no guilty man escape."—Detroit News.

The following announcement in a newspaper published in Ireland is quoted as an indication that there will be a great falling off in the democratic vote this year: "Great numbers of Irishmen are returning home at present from the United States. Times are very bad in America just now; large numbers of people are out of employment, and many are beginning to find that Ireland is not so bad as it was, in a commercial sense."

And now he turns up in Epping, and although but eleven Summers have passed over his head, he brings down the scale at 165 pounds.

The Nation supports Mr. Blaine's amendment. Speaking of Wirtz's established guilt, it says: "It would be simple stultification to amnesty his military superior, who looked upon his conduct with indifference or approval."

The Boston Journal says that nothing but another war can so unsettle affairs now as to prevent a wonderful revival of business the present year.

It is said that at the meeting of the republican National committee a stronger feeling in behalf of Bristow as a Presidential candidate was manifested than had been expected.

The replies of all the European powers to the American note on Cuban matters have been received by the President, and he will furnish the Senate Foreign Committee a full statement of the negotiations on his part concerning the Spanish question. Subsequently he will send his special message to Congress on Cuban affairs.

John Y. Foster, who wrote the Blaine letter, has been made Clerk of the New Jersey Assembly.

The New York Herald's Washington correspondent, speaking of the amnesty debate, says the general opinion among the democrats is that they have been led into a trap and wantonly sacrificed.

The New Haven Union, independent, thinks the democrats of New Hampshire have thrown away their opportunity of wresting the State from the republicans.

John Dailey, a Marlbury section hand on the Boston and Maine railroad, was found Saturday morning near Durham depot with one foot cut off and his other foot and both hands frozen stiff. He was probably lying on the track when Stuart's train came along and ran over him. He made no outcry and lay unconscious all night.

—The golden rule—"Do unto others as ye would that they should do unto you"—is divine; but in some form it appears in all the great religions of the world. Buddha, who lived two thousand years before Christ, has it thus: "No man should put on his neighbor's head what would hurt his own;" and Confucius, five hundred and fifty years before Christ, said: "No man should do to others what he would not have his neighbor do to him."

—The Indianapolis Herald says: "The man who designed our State seal is dead. In the language of the Dutch poet, 'It is well.' Any man who would try to make people believe a full grown buffalo bull would deliberately rush up to a granger who was chopping down a tree at sunrise ought to die."

—"Yes, I know it. I made a mistake and gave him too much medicine," frankly said a Berkshire (Mass.) doctor last week when he was told that his patient was dead.

—Missouri has leased its penitentiary for the cost of management and maintenance and $112.50 a year. Small as the amount is it is on the right side of the book.

—The man you don't want to meet—The man who, with a look of urgent business when you are in a hurry, takes you by the button-hole to tell you a bad joke.

Needless Suffering.

Many persons of weakly constitution, with dyspeptic and bilious tendencies, suffer lifelong bodily distress unnecessarily. Their existences are commonly shorter than those of healthier mortals, but while they last, it is usually the case that they are continually dosing themselves, or being dosed to no purpose. Could they be induced to use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for a while, strength regained, digestion restored, and the disappearance of bilious symptoms, would speedily acquaint them with the difference between a remedy which deals with causes, and those which affect symptoms merely. Not only are the Bitters a searching specific for complaints affecting the stomach, liver or intestinal canal, but they are, in consequence of their invigorative and bracing influence upon the entire physique an admirable means of protecting the system against the atmospheric influences which beget malarial disease.

Jottings.

Hon. Warren Brown of Hampton Falls, one of the best farmers and agricultural riters in New England, is expected to open he discussion of the farmers' meeting in Portsmouth Grange Hall on Wednesday evening, Jan. 19th. All are invited to attend.

The world has got on so fast, and there is so much genius, that not one man in a housand now folds a newspaper when he is one with it, and he is considered no statesman who doesn't leave it spread out ten or fteen feet from the place where he picked it up. The less right a man has to a paper, the more he is expected to misplace and ample it, or to lay it on the edge of something from which it may fall to the floor.

Somebody thinks Jimmy Blanchard would make a good lawyer. A Portsmouth stockholder thinks Jimmy would make an excellent director of the Eastern Railroad.

Two elegant oil paintings are to be had $ 81 each, at J. B. Burleigh's picture and raming emporium. The large marine ainting of Piscataqua river is pronounced he finest specimen of the art ever executed n Portsmouth; and the frame is very rich nd heavy. See the advertisement, and the ainting.

Choice cabinet photographs of the elegant floral designs at the late Henry C. Walker's funeral have been made in four fferent views by Davis Brothers.

One of the most curious and valuable relics which these centennial days are bringing to light here,—and Portsmouth does seem peculiarly rich in antiquities—none that we have yet seen exceeds in historic interest, a ponderous iron chest in the possession of John J. Pickering, Esq. This "iron relic of the iron days" was once the property of King George, and was placed in charge of Col. Nathaniel Meserve of this town, who when in England in 1765, at the time of the passage of the stamp act, was appointed agent under the King's crown, for distributing the stamps in New Hampshire, using this safe chest for holding the same in security. The chest is a massive piece of workmanship and ingenuity, "bolted and barred" so effectually that it would be impossible for thieves to break in and steal. The lock—which, by the way, covers the entire lid,—is one of such intricate combinations as would be worthy of the more modern days, and looking as if it might puzzle even the most skillful modern lock picker. The strong and threatening opposition of Portsmouth to the stamp act finally so alarmed Mr. Meserve that he resigned—hence, like Othello, the old chest's occupation was gone, and ever since it has been a staunch reminder of "the days that tried men's souls." It is indeed a relic of great worth.—Journal.

Our candidate for Railroad Commissioner is of the true blue stamp, having his property confiscated during the war because he still held loyal to the United States. He needs no better recommendation for New Hampshire republicans. Men of ability, character and principle with loyal hearts are the men we want in office, and the men we propose to put in office.—Lebanon Free Press.

Hon. Daniel Marcy was born November 1809. At twelve years of age he became a sailor, and at twenty was master of a ship. In 1853 and 1854 he was a member of the New Hampshire legislature, and in 1856 and 1857 he was a member of the State Senate. He subsequently engaged in the mercantile and ship building business. In 1863 he was elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress over Eastman, republican, by a majority of eighty votes. While in Congress he served on the committee on Revolutionary pensions and on expenditures in the Navy Department. He was defeated in 1865 for re-election by Marston, republican, by a majority of 2,716.

The new brick house of correction at the County Farm is nearly completed and the stone foundation for the new insane asylum is being laid. A substantial wall has been built this winter, opposite the almshouse, from the barn westerly to the corner of the field, and other improvements made which will bear the public "investigation" as well as the affairs of the county generally and that of the recent sinecure committee.

Three hundred and ten (310) inmates at the Brentwood County Farm, more than a hundred of them being convicts. The salary of Superintendent Pollard is $1000, as keeper of the almshouse, insane asylum and house of correction. The salary of the democratic Superintendent of the Portsmouth almshouse, etc., is $500, with only about forty persons in charge; and he has asked for more pay, at that! The great increase of county paupers is mainly on account of the change in the pauper law, changing town settlements down to 1860. The county expense must of course increase, but the pauper costs in the towns ought to decrease in the same proportion, and probably will in most towns except Portsmouth, where our large and costly city farm is still kept up, as much doubtless for the sake of the democratic "reform" politicians, as for the very few other poor folks who still depend upon the institution.

Eastern Railroad.

An adjourned meeting of the creditors of the Eastern Railroad Company was held Saturday, at Boston to take action on the plan proposed at the meeting a week ago.

Gen. B. F. Butler was called upon and stated that he was one of the unfortunate creditors of the road to a somewhat serious but not very large amount. He then stated his position as one of the retained counsel of the road.

He stated that it was somewhat remarkable that among so large a number of creditors none had attempted to get a preference. None of its bonded or note creditors had brought any suits. At first he opposed the payment of the December interest, but it was finally deemed desirable that it should be done. Further than this the directors had only paid the usual operating expenses. It appeared clear that nothing should be done to give precedence to any creditor. There were two modes; one was bankruptcy, that would secure alike, but generally secured them nothing. The road in this case must be managed by the bankrupt court until all the debts were paid; its contracts would be broken and finally the property would have to be disposed of at a forced sale.

He referred to the case of the Boston, Hartford and Erie railroad as an illustration of the results that would follow the putting of the road into bankruptcy. He then stated the reasons which had governed them in preparing to go before the Legislature to secure a mortgage with the sanction of the State to secure every liability. He then stated in general the terms of the mortgage. The liabilities of the road in round numbers were fifteen millions, and the interest on this at six per cent, would be greater than they could hope from the earnings of the road at present. It was concluded that the mortgage should pay three and a-half per cent. until the outstanding and unproductive property of the road could be sold to good advantage; then the rate of interest should be gradually raised until at the end of six years it was supposed it would be able to pay six per cent.

He was in favor of having the first three years the interest at three per cent., and then if there was any surplus it could go into a sinking fund for the benefit of all the creditors. This would give the creditors greater assurance that the plan would be put through. A low rate of interest and good security he considered an axiom in finance. The only doubt he had was whether the interest for the first three years at three and a-half per cent. was not too high. The Legislature would, however, fix this rate of interest, and as the bondholders could only offer the scheme he did not consider the rate of interest a matter of so much importance. He advised the creditors of the road to press this proposition upon the Legislature. The stockholders would have all there was left after the debt was paid, and when that time came the stock would be valuable and pay the interest. He believed that bankruptcy would wipe out one-half of the assets of the road.

So far as he had any influence he pledged himself against any man's getting one dollar more than any other man, and to prevent any sacrifice of the interest of the road.

Hon. Charles Allen, William B. Bacon, and Willard P. Phillips were chosen Trustees, and the plan proposed at a former meeting was adopted.

The Senatorial Nomination.

The Centennial year seems bringing with it from all directions indications of reconciliation. From the days of Washington there has been a feeling of jealousy between Portsmouth and Exeter people that has developed itself frequently in conventions, the first known cause for it being the decision of Washington to visit Portsmouth and his failure to go to Exeter. Last March, when the result in the Senatorial district at the close of the polls hung trembling in the balance and Portsmouth republicans had gathered to hear the news, a dispatch to Senator Hall stating that Exeter had saved the district by returning him a heavier majority than was usual, went straight to the hearts of every joyous republican in the assemblage. One earnest and thoughtful republican suggested that Portsmouth should this year send a delegation to the Senatorial convention that would unanimously favor such candidate as Exeter should suggest to succeed Dr. Hall, who had received two elections. This sentiment was heartily received, and by the course of the Portsmouth delegation the nomination of the candidate proposed by the republicans of Exeter has been carried with great unanimity.

There were other excellent candidates in the field, Messrs. Emmons B. Philbrick, of Rye, and William Sanborn, of Seabrook. The former, although supported by nearly half of the number of delegates, unselfishly withdrew his name before the balloting commenced, and the friends of Mr. Sanborn made haste to make unanimous the nomination made by the majority. The republicans of the district have future honors to bestow upon these deserving gentlemen, and their sacrifice will not be without its reward.

Thomas Leavitt, Esq., the nominee, is an able member of the present House, a faithful and untiring representative, and will serve with honor in the higher branch of the legislature to which he will be called in March. His literary attainments, his impartial performance of the duties of all positions which he has held, his unflinching integrity and the sturdiness with which he has mingled in the thickest of the fight in times past when readiness in debate or with the editorial pen has been a political necesity, make him a representative candidate of the party which has ruled Rockingham county since 1855. Possessed of easy manners, being a pleasing speaker and having a personal magnetism that tells in a contest where personal popularity is a great desideratum, Mr. Leavitt will make such inroads into the democratic ranks that this cannot be classed as among the possibly doubtful districts of the State. The election will be an endorsement of the action of the convention.

GRAND CLOSING

—— AT ——

HENDERSON'S.

The parties who had agreed to purchase my stock of Dry Goods on the first of January, not being able to meet their engagements, the stock is still left in my hands, which seriously interferes with the business arrangements I had made.

I have therefore determined to give the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity a rousing benefit. To make quick work of it, I propose the following inducements to purchasers of Dry Goods:

A Present to every Customer

buying One Dollar's worth of goods.

A Better Present to every customer buying Two Dollars' worth.

A still Better One to every customer buying Five Dollars' worth.

An Elegant Present to every customer buying Ten Dollars' worth.

Every customer buying One Dollar's worth or more, is sure of a Valuable Present.

In addition to all this, one in every twenty-five packages containing a present, also contains a check entitling the lucky holder to the

Elegant Chamber Set

IN MY WINDOW

VALUED AT 55 DOLLARS.

ONE-HALF BARREL FLOUR,

LADIES' ROCKING CHAIR,

ONE BOX RAISINS,

ONE BARREL POTATOES,

ONE BARREL APPLES,

And lots of other merchandise to eat and to wear.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT AT THE HEAD OF THIS COLUMN IS AN ACTUAL FACT!

The amount of presents to be given away is equal to just one-half the amount of the value of the goods sold.

The Grandest Dry Goods sale ever heard of,—offering better inducements even than Lovering in his celebrated book sale.

We don't all want a book, but we all need Dry Goods, and in purchasing of me you get your goods as low as can be bought in Portsmouth with all the additional inducements thrown in.

☞ Everything will be conducted squarely and everything advertised will be carried out.

No person in the store knows the package containing the checks for the larger presents, and the only condition we exact from the persons receiving them is the privilege of publishing their names, simply to satisfy the public that the goods are given away as advertised.

A NEW SETTLER.

The Détroit Free Press has the following in its police report: "Say, you, I want to go home!" exclaimed Aaron Wallace as he came through the door.

"Mr. Wallace, we are always wanting. The man who wrote 'Man wants but little here below,' didn't live a great while, because they sent him to a lunatic asylum."

"But I must be off on the early train," persisted the prisoner.

"What train?"

"For Klumbus."

"There are many and thoughts connected with your case," said His Honor, as he leaned back and tossed a chestnut from one hand to the other.

"That train will go, Judge, and leave me here!"

"I think it will. Many trains will come and go without regard to you. You came here a stranger, thinking to settle in Detroit—in the only city in the world where a grocer will give you a box of soap if you hint to him that he puts sand in his sugar. You lied to people, had a fight in the street car, got drunk, and the way you became a settler was to settle down in the mud."

"I'll give a million dollars to get out of this!" exclaimed the prisoner.

"I don't doubt it, Mr. Wallace; but the die is cast—the mould is prepared—the silver cord is loosened, and you go up for thirty days."

"Oh! Whack! You don't mean it, do you?"

"Mr. Wallace, I can not tell a lie."

"I've got to go home—I must go—I will go."

"Be calm, Mr. Wallace; you are a red-faced man with an unusually large jugular, and excitement might bring on a stroke of apoplexy."

"I'll—hold on—dumit—stop pinching!" shouted the prisoner, as Bijah drew him into the foggy atmosphere of the waiting room.

—England's experiment of managing a post-office telegraph has proved a financial failure. Had the preliminary calculations been realized the present net revenue would have been $3,000,000, but the fifth year of the experiment shows that the receipts were only $183,625—a vast falling off.

It Pays! It Pays!
WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer, or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

IT PAYS the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and provokes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this to an extent beyond that of any other publication, in fact it is the only weekly paper published in the United States devoted to instructive arts, Mechanics, Inventions and new discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Mechanical, Chemical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, Improvements, New Processes, and Recent Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers; Instructions and Employers, in all the various arts, forming a complete repository of New Inventions and Discoveries; constitutes a work which is invaluable to the progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Improvements in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics, and Science Abroad.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the foremost of all industrial publications for the past Thirty Years, is the boldest, largest, most cheap, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions, Science and Industrial Progress published in the World.

The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. And for Mechanics, Shop and home will save many times the cost of subscription.

Merchants, Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, and People of all Professions, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN useful to them. It should find a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College and School. A new volume commences January 1st, 1876.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several hundred engravings. Specimen copies sent free. Volumes are preserved for binding and reference. Terms, $3.20 a year by mail, including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars giving Club rates sent free. Single copies mailed on receipt of 10 cents. Maybe had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. IN CONNECTION WITH THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Old Machines are kept and advice free. A special notice is made in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or whole, to persons attracted to the public notice by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, containing full directions for obtaining Patents. DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased took another package to send to his friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE,—Dear Sir: For twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For the last three years pain have been growing worse, and in-t Fall I was so bad that I could not walk across the room, I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and I wrote to tr. them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking the package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package, and it helped them so much that they send for more. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir: I send you one package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to my friends say they feel like a new man. I told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it longer. Have tried almost everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills. Some of my friends say I look ten years younger. Some say they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. I enclose this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. Yours truly, BENJ. LEONARD, Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months at a time to take up my usual avocations from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congressional, I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent for you for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well, and was able to do a day's work. Neuralgia pain; can sleep as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will set me up. My sister suffered from the inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I hangs still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages. Yours respectfully, MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. My Neuralgia, Kidney and Liver Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. Trials, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a half-dozen in Rockingham, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages. MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries; and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall choose a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the Global war, Democrat, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration which have long been a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the conduct of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many reforms to be put in the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to make a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and especially to the State school, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes that the worst of the long depression may be passed.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, unblistered by partisan lies or by personal malice or ambition.

THE TRIBUNE will as ardently as ever hold fast to the old Republican principles of which it was the champion and founder, and for the success of which it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of measures or men, whatever it may approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for its wrongdoing when it errs. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to enlist the honest men, whom the country knows and can trust, to secure hard in hey. Administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it declared for the Bill, rallying the Union men, the splendid hard-money triumph won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as decidedly against the Bill, rallying the friends of Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Central Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the party sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been that both parties have received forcefully from time to time some of the worst precepts of the old caucus system and have forwarded the cause of the party and promote some of the reforms they preach. It may justly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have time to time or more or less practically forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the method which has already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will use no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their family, THE TRIBUNE asks only a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned it long by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watchfulness and the most laborious care, by providing the freshest intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors in numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

In the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, etc., USE Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CHEAPEST AND BEST!

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a sup rb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift.

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the great Exhibition in Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments (stories, &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its

are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, THREE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be found in Peterson's Ladies' Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

SKETCH OF LA PAGE.

The Concord Monitor publishes all that is known of the history of Joseph LaPage previous to his appearance in Suncook last March. We copy the material portions of the account:

Joseph Paget, alias LaPage, was born in St. Melonie Dallbout, District of Joliette, P. Q., a place about 56 miles northwest of Montreal. He claims to be 39 years old, while his wife states his age to be 42 years. His father, Jean Baptiste Paget, was a respectable farmer, and is still living in Canada. When about 20 years of age he married Aulalie Rousse, of St. Ambroise Kildare, District of Joliette, who was two or three years older than himself, by whom he had five children—three boys and two girls. The oldest boy, about twenty years of age, resides in St. Albans, Vt., and the other children with their mother in Suncook. In five or six years after his marriage, he removed to Chartsey, in the same district. Up to this time he had the reputation of being good in his family, but while living there he fell into bad habits and associated with the lowest and vilest of company, ill treated and shamefully aused his wife. In four or five years he removed to St. Beatrice, where he lived three or four years. It was at this last named place that he outraged his wife's sister, Julienne Rousse, and left her in a pasture for dead, in June, 1871. He was arrested for this crime, but knocked the officer down and made his escape, hiding in the woods, and couldn't be found. He made his way to the States, and in three weeks after went back to Canada again, but finding it unsafe to remain came to the States again, where he remained until September 29, 1871, when he went to Canada and got his family, and removed them to St. Albans.

In the month of May, 1872, he went back to St. Beatrice, and was suspected of setting fire to the barn of a man who had been active in causing his arrest, by which 11 cattle, 11 sheep, and all the contents of the barn were destroyed.

At this same visit to Canada, he assaulted Marie Louise Etue, then unmarried, at St. Millane, one-fifth of a mile from the house, as she was driving cows to pasture, because, as he said, her brother wanted him arrested for the outrage upon Julienne Rousse. He said to her: "Take care you don't cry," and caught her by the hand, and struck her with a stick half the size of her arm, five or six blows on her head and hand, breaking the right hand, and causing other injuries from which she did not recover for a month. She ran away from him and fell down several times before she reached the top of a hill near the house. This assault was seen by persons at a distance, upon whom he kept his eyes while making the assault. Finding that their attention was attracted, he ran away and went to a retired place called Barczy Mill, a short distance away in the woods, where he called at the house of the miller and wanted to get something to eat. He was provided with a meal by the daughter of the miller, a girl fourteen years of age. After eating he offered to pay for the meal, and feeling in his pocket, said he had lost his wallet, and asked the girl to go and help him find it. She started out of the house to assist him in finding his wallet, but when he wanted her to take a path into the woods, in which he said he came, she refused to go. He then caught her by the hand and attempted to force her in the woods, when she said: "Let me go! My father is coming with a big dog." Whereupon he ran into the woods. This was Aug. 10, 1872, and he then returned to St. Albans. While living in St. Beatrice, it is know that he treated his wife like a brute, at one time harnessing her into some shafts and compelling her to draw hay, and at another, holding the pole of a loaded team down a hill, thus compelled to do the work of dumb beasts.

In this connection it may be interesting to visitors to Montreal to know that the blind fiddler, Paget, who is so often to be seen in the market at Montreal, is a cousin of Joseph LaPage.

LIFE IN ST. ALBANS.

We now come to his life in St. Albans, which has an interest from the tragic ending of the life of the young school teacher, Marietta Ball, July 24, 1874. As we have seen, he went to St. Albans, with his family, in the fall of 1871, and lived in a locality known as the French settlement, which is over the hill on the street leading past Gov. Smith's elegant residence, 1 1-2 miles, or thereabouts, from St. Albans village. He lived in a house near the school-house, worked some at farming and chopping, and roamed about in the woods a great deal.

On Friday afternoon, July 24, 1874, Miss Ball left her school to go to the residence of her cousin, Mrs. Page, 1 1-2 mile distant, passing a house occupied by a Mr. Collins on the road, about half way to Mr. Page's house. She parted with the school children at this house, and started on her way, but was never seen alive, except by her murderer, after that time, which was about four o'clock in the afternoon. It was about dusk Saturday evening before it was known that she was missing, and search was soon made for her. Late in the evening her body was found in the woods, seventeen rods from a low bridge which crossed the road, laid out as if for burial. Coroner Farnsworth was summoned, an inquest was held, and it was found that her skull had been fractured with a stone, which caused her death, and that she had been ravished. Search was made through that night and the following day for traces of the murderer, but no footstep was found. Miss Ball's tracks were found first in a heap of sand in the brook-bed, which was then dry, on the lower side of the bridge, and she was traced to where her body was found by blood as well as tracks. About eight rods from the bridge were indications of a violent struggle, and she must have contended for her life with terrible energy. Further on, her watch, chain and pencil were found. Further search revealed imprints of bloody hands on bushes, a stone smeared with blood with which she was killed, and a mask made of a piece of old carpet, fastened with withes. A clump of alders by the side of the road, and commanding it in both directions, showed that it had been used as a hiding place for some person who had whittled considerably. A trail in the woods was also discovered, that led from near the scene of the murder to the French settlement. A detective from Boston was employed, and after two weeks' search every circumstance pointed to the perpetrator of the crime as some one who came from that settlement. A thorough examination was made of every person living in that settlement, or in the neighborhood, and their statements taken.

Among others examined was Joseph La Page, who then and there bore the name of Paize. Circumstances pointed very strongly to him as the murderer. He had enquired of school children where Miss Ball went Friday nights, as he noticed she did not come to her boarding place, which was very near his own house; and his face was also covered with scratches at the time he was examined, which he claimed resulted from poison. Witnesses came forward who testified that they saw him getting in hay Friday afternoon at four o'clock, and that they were berrying with him when he got poisoned. He was thereupon discharged, but watch was kept upon his movements until last March, when he suddenly disappeared from St. Albans with his family, and nothing was known of his whereabouts until after the Pembroke murder, when Coroner Farnsworth learned from some of the residents of the French settlement that La Page went to Pembroke, and wrote to the selectmen of that town, as appeared in the trial of La Page, and came to Concord and identified La Page in jail.

Upon Mr. Farnsworth's return to St. Albans he renewed his investigations of La Page's whereabouts on the day of Miss Ball's murder, and soon found that the testimony upon which La Page had been discharged was all false; that the parties did not see him haying at all, but only heard him say he was; that they didn't see him that day; that they were not berrying with him when he claimed to be poisoned; and furthermore that a prescription given him for the poison marks on his face, as he claimed, was after the murder of Miss Ball. It is also known that he wore a pair of moccasins that day, which accounts for the non-appearance of any tracks, and that he was an expert in tying things with withes. There is not a shadow of a doubt in the mind of Coroner Farnsworth, or any of the people engaged in the investigation of that murder, that Joseph La Page is the murderer of Miss Ball, and every circumstance points to him and to no one else as the villain.

—Another gigantic inhabitant of the deep is the sea-elephant. The German scientists attached to the Prussian Transit of Venus expedition to Kerguelen's land took occasion to investigate the structure and habits of this little-known seal, and brought back to the Berlin museum prepared skins and skeletons of male and female sea-elephants, both adult and young. The male, which though adult is not a very large specimen, measures fourteen feet and a half in length, and the appendage on the head is a dilatation of the nostrils, very like that of the northern blubber-nosed seal, and having no resemblance to the proboscis with which the animal is usually adorned in the plates found in natural history works.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and all papers and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Mr. Blaine's Triumph.

Says the Boston Journal: Whatever difference of opinions may prevail in regard to the general effect of the amnesty debate, or even with respect to the wisdom of Mr. Blaine's original amendment, there can be no dissent from the verdict that as a parliamentarian he has completely mastered and dumbfoundered the whole democratic side of the House. The most skillful of their leaders are but children in his hands. This has been seen from the first, when he broke through all their plans by bringing the subject to discussion, and it was conspicuously manifested in the close of the debate on Friday, when he unexpectedly recovered the leadership on the floor, till he had accomplished his objects, when he suddenly dismissed the whole matter from the jurisdiction of the House, leaving the democratic managers as utterly dashed and bewildered as a lot of gamesters when the gas is turned out by the police. The use, too, which he made of his brief mastery was singularly effective. He showed that those who are coming before the country with their confident demands for universal amnesty, are actually disfranchising and deposing men whose chief offence is that they have been friends of the Union. He gave, also, a distinct opportunity to any democrat in the House to secure the amnesty of some ex-Confederates, by leaving Jeff Davis—whom they all pretend to care nothing about—just where he is for the present; and then he offered to yield the floor that any democrat might bring up the Centennial bill—but the whole democratic ranks were as dumb as oysters to both propositions!

Such achievements as these are considerably more than mere parliamentary flourishes—they go to the root of a subject of vast significance to the people of this country. Mr. Blaine has thrown a flood of light across a "chasm" which it was for the interest of the democratic managers North and South to keep out of view, and he will receive credit accordingly. Yes, it will be said, but he has hurt himself as a candidate for the Presidency. It would be safe to say that this language, nine times out of ten, comes only from Mr. Blaine's opponents. It is a question of mere astuteness, the man who has no difficulty in outwitting the democratic majority of the House at every turn, may, surely, be left to take care of his own affairs, as the republican party will take care of its affairs in due season. We may remark, however, that some men are much more easily killed than others. Those who live on their dignity and their careful avoidance of the rough struggles of life, are peculiarly tender. Mr. Blaine is not of that kind; he is as tough as he is active, and he recovers as vigorously as he strikes. There had better be no worry about him, so long as he serves the cause of truth, fair dealing and genuine patriotism.

The Boston Globe, while disagreeing with Mr. Blaine's position says: If Mr. Blaine, in forcing the debate throughout nearly all of last week on the amnesty bill, and precipitating a discussion of the buried issues of the war, did not display the highest kind of statesmanship, he at least showed himself the champion debater of the House and a brilliant master of parliamentary tactics. As the leader of the minority he completely foiled his antagonists, substantially gained his own purposes, and utterly defeated theirs. His purpose was not so much to carry through his own amnesty bill as to prevent the passage of Mr. Randall's without an opportunity for debate. Evidently he wanted to have his say on the character and record of Jefferson Davis, and he had it. He wanted to prevent the democrats from gaining all the credit for magnanimity in passing a general amnesty act without going on record as defending or palliating the acts of those to benefit by it, and he succeeded. While, on account of the numerical advantage of his opponents, he could not even get a vote on his own proposition, he was able to retaliate by utterly defeating theirs. A glance at this remarkable debate, now that it is over, will bring out more clearly than could be done during its progress, the skill of Mr. Blaine as a parliamentary leader. * * * Of the debate we have expressed our opinion, but it cannot be denied that so far as the tactics of the occasion were concerned Mr. Blaine was the victor. And he gained the purpose which he had, of expressing his own sentiments and producing the effect that he desired, and also of provoking the other side to express themselves. He showed himself more than a match for the astuteness of Mr. Randall, the cunning of Mr. Cox and the thrusts and innuendoes of the whole opposition. Nothing disconcerted him, nothing drove him from his purpose. The snarling sarcasm and muttered impertinences of the buffoon of the House, Sam Cox, were like the lively demonstrations of a terrier about a self-possessed bull dog.

The Boston Sunday Herald's dispatch says: Talk of the gladiators! Was there ever a man who buckled on a shield and wielded a sword with such confidence and power as he has displayed on the floor of the House this week? There is something about him—I think it is his royal energy and force—which makes him seem like a very giant in debate, and the men who are pitted against him seem like pigmies. Other members speak in their seats, or if the occasion be an unusual one, extend their "seizin" over a pair of desks and kick the chairs out of their way. But Blaine takes the whole aisle for his stamping-ground, and woe to the page or anybody else who ventures to pass through it while he is on his feet. Butler used to have a way of filling the eyes of the House by coming out into the area in front of the Speaker's desk and whirling around occasionally to fling his fists at those who sat behind him. But Blaine prances back and forth from the outer to the inner row of seats, gesticulating and vociferating all the time. His favorite method of emphasizing a statement is to hold a book in his left hand, and to bring down his right with tremendous force upon the open page. His long arms are like flails, and his hand looks as big as a page of foolscap when he brings it down. Mr. Blaine's strong points are in assertion and rejoinder. He does not argue, but he declares, and demands, and reiterates, and flouts, and sneers, and cries "Oh, my!" when anybody interrupts him with a civil question or remark. When he is speaking the whole audience instantly divides into friends and foes, and while the sympathetic force of one side goes out to the speaker, the combativeness that he excites on the other makes men wish for a club with which to beat him back. Of course Blaine wastes a great deal of his force. There is nothing calm or judicial about him. He makes as much pother about a little point of the Speaker's ruling as about the gravest matter which could come before the House for discussion. When he asks a question of an opponent, he never allows the other to finish, but breaks in and answers what he thinks his opponent is going to say before it is said. He reminds one constantly of a big boy who has whipped the schoolmaster, got the poor fellow on his back, and then proceeds to pound him.

A Family Drowned.

The details of a terrible drowning accident by which an entire family, with the exception of a single daughter, lost their lives on the Hudson are of thrilling interest. Capt. Briggs, of Coxsackie, with his wife and two children, who resided up the river, had been down to the village to attend religious service. Capt. Briggs, being a good skater, came down on the ice, and as it was daylight when they started concluded the trip would be a safe one, intending to return by moonlight. He put his wife and two children on a large hand sled and shoved them down the river on the ice, which was smooth and good. They reached their destination in safety and remained until 10:30 P. M., at which time the full moon was shining brightly. Bidding adieu to their friends, the little family walked to the river and in a short time the wife and children were again seated upon the sled, and as the night air was stinging cold, were wrapped up heavier than usual. Capt. Briggs put on his skates, and, taking his position behind the sled, commenced skating and shoving the sled along. Near the west shore, a short distance north of their starting point, was an open spot in the river fully six hundred feet in length, and sixty in width at one end and thirty in width at the other. Before he started he was cautioned about open water, but he replied that he would keep to the eastward of it, and give them the fastest ride home they ever had. As they glided along the captain was no doubt shoving and skating, and, with head lowered, and it is probable that the members of his family were so bundled up that they could not see plainly ahead, when suddenly the sled, with its precious burden, glided from the ice into the open water. The entire village was startled by the terrible shrieks for help, and a panic almost ensued. As men and boys hurried to the docks, a shout of "For God's sake! help! help!" rang out on the air, and over fifty started for the open ice north of the village, from whence the agonizing cries seemed to emanate. On arriving at the scene those who were ahead could distinctly see the half submerged body of a man floundering in the ice and water, and he was continually crying "For God's sake! help me! help me!" Reaching out a short distance from the main body of the ice was thin ice which had made the same night, and it was in this that the drowning man's hands were continually striking, and every time he attempted to lift himself on it it gave away. He was a good swimmer, but the odds were fearfully against him. Men threw sticks out to him and pieces of board, every one of which failed to reach him, and suddenly he went down for the last time with a terrible shriek for help on his lips. It is thought that his wife and children sunk out of sight as soon as they struck the water. The captain must have struggled for life for nearly half an hour. Only one child is left, and she a young girl sixteen years of age. She was to have accompanied her parents on the little excursion, but a female companion who resided near her home induced her to spend the night with her. When she was informed of the terrible disaster she swooned, and is alarmingly ill and delirious. The unfortunate family was widely-known and respected, and the affair has shrouded the little village of Coxsackie in gloom.

Congress.

The democrats were caught napping again Monday in the House on the amnesty question. While the democratic leaders were counselling among themselves, the morning hour expired, and Mr. White, of Kentucky, republican, was recognized, who proceeded to offer the amnesty bill, excluding Jeff Davis, and also an amendment striking Jeff Davis' name from the bill. He moved to suspend the rules so that the House could have a direct vote on the proposition to strike Davis' name from the bill and then on the bill itself. This brought Messrs. Wood, Morrison and Randall to their feet, and the latter made a point that the bill was not in order. The Speaker, to the evident discomfiture of his own friends, decided against them and ruled the bill in order. On a vote by yeas and nays, Mr. Randall was unable to hold his side of the House together as a party, showing to what an extent they have become demoralized within a few days. The republicans voted solidly in favor of suspending the rules, and they were reinforced by enough democrats to secure a majority vote in favor of the motion, but not two-thirds, the vote standing 165 ayes to 110 nays.

After the amnesty vote, the House had a direct vote on the proposition to repeal the resumption act, which was offered by Mr. Holman, democrat, with a motion to suspend the rules and pass a resolution instructing the banking and currency committee to bring in a bill repealing the law. The vote against the motion was so decided as to astonish the author of it. There were no party lines on the vote, which stood 112 ayes to 158 nays.

News and Notes.

Several weeks ago the Pension Bureau suspended payment of all cases at the Philadelphia agency on account of the numerous irregularities that had been discovered in the transaction of business by the claim agents there. This action, however, entailed so much suffering upon thousands of pensioners that it has been decided to pay all cases except those in which the oaths of applicants were administered irregularly.

About a year ago, $250 worth of postage stamps designed for the Post Office in Amherst were lost in Boston. Postmaster Burt thought he should not be responsible for them, and wrote to the Postmaster General to this effect, but that official decided otherwise, and he paid for the lost stamps. A few days since, the missing stamps were found in some old rubbish at the Boston office, which had not been examined since the removal from the old office.

George Knapp of West Franklin, while at work in the woods on Saturday of last week, in going up the body of a lodged tree to remove an obstruction, lost his footing and fell to the ground, striking with the axe underneath him, which embedded itself in his thigh, inflicting an ugly gash, which will confine him to his house for a long time.

One of the Brooklyn Eagle reporters interviewed Francis D. Moulton on Saturday. The reporter asked: "Mr. Moulton, how is your malicious prosecution suit against Mr. Beecher progressing? Mr. Beecher said he hoped that by God's grace he could bring it to an early trial." "Did God enter the demurrer, or was it entered through His grace?" asked Moulton. The reporter confessed ignorance and the interview terminated.

The Spanish Government has sent out a diplomatic note in reply to the American circular on Cuban affairs. The reply is quite belligerent in tone, and takes high ground on all the questions raised by the United States. The note declares that the commerce between Cuba and the United States has not suffered to an appreciable extent by the insurrection; instead of having diminished, it had really increased and was constantly increasing, so that the United States Government had no occasion for complaint and tenable ground for its proposed action or interference in the affairs or troubles existing in Cuba. Attention is also called to the fact that many American citizens have established themselves in business on the Island, and being unmolested by the Spanish Government have gained large individual fortunes. The fortunes have not added to the material wealth of the island, being entirely in foreign hands. The territory of the United States is a constant refuge for Cuban outlaws, who are permitted there to hatch conspiracy to the detriment and injury of the Spanish Government. In this the laws of nations are outraged. All just and equitable claims between the United States and Cuba have been amicably and fully satisfied, or are in the courts for adjustment. Therefore there can be no cause for complaint on that score. The Spanish note is believed to be the work of Senor Jovellar.

The Indianapolis Journal seems to express the feeling of the West in saying: "Whatever the sap-gags and gushers may think about it, the mass of the American people who were on the side of the government during the war will indorse Mr. Blaine's speech and position on the amnesty question."

A case of murdered innocence is reported from Illinois, the victim being Wm. Bell, of Coleraine, Mass., who, twenty years ago left that town and moved West. About twelve years ago one of his neighbors was murdered in her barnyard, and, as Bell had passed through the yard that morning, to his work in the woods, he was convicted of the crime and hung at Waukegan, Ill. Now the real murderer has made a deathbed confession of the crime.

A correspondent, writing from Westminister Hotel, New York, says: "No matter where one travels, the perusal of a paper from home is ever welcome. This peculiar luxury is afforded to the fullest extent in the elegant reading parlors of the Westminster. Here one can read the papers from every section of North America. The Westminster in this respect, as in all other matters pertaining to a first class house, is equaled by few hotels. Every feature is strictly first-class, and the accommodations of the very best, while the rates of charges are no higher than at other first-class houses. Few hotels enjoy the reputation of entertaining so large a number of literary and diplomatic celebrities as the Westminster."

"Oh, Blaine, dry up," sparkles with the monosyllabic brevity of Laconia, but it is not worth considering beside "Bellow away, you are a hyena." This is one of the best that Mr. Cox ever crowed. If his papa and mamma had taken him to a menagerie when he was little, or if in later life he had attended a few State Fairs, he might have learned better than to talk of a bellowing hyena. Hyenas don't bellow, they laugh.—Hartford Courant.

The Boston Herald's Washington dispatch says: The democratic leaders are evidently at loggerheads, and the demoralization which Blaine's tactics have caused, together with the jealousy that exists among them, threatens to leave them in a state of utter defeat. It is Blaine's programme, as soon as the amnesty question is out of the way, to bring on a debate on the currency and repeat his attack on the democrats. He will review their record on the question, and force, if possible, an open rupture between the hard-money men and the inflationists in their ranks. Unless they soon find some man who is able to meet the republican leaders on the floor, their Winter's work threatens to be a series of ridiculous failures.

James Daniels, a French boy two years old, fell into a boiler of hot water, Saturday, and scalded his head and arms so badly that it is not probable that he will survive.

There is a good deal of mistaken depreciation of Blaine's vindictiveness. Blaine is not vindictive. He is a good-natured man—every way a large man. This debate in the House, between the confederates and republicans, had to come. There was no possibility of suppressing it even for a fortnight. Blaine selected the battle ground, and we presume it is, by this time, conceded that he made the selection of the position with skill, and fought the fight with extraordinary force and adroitness.—Cincinnati Commercial.

Peonage in the United States.

Ed. Peonage is the selling of debtors or criminals, at auction, for a certain price per month to pay the debt, and always at so low a rate that the peon must borrow more money from the master than his pay, to clothe himself; so that in Mexico, the proverb is "once a peon, always a peon."

To My Patients and the Public!

I propose to leave Portsmouth about February 1st for an absence of several months. Will those contemplating or needing my services please give me a early call? Previous to my departure for Europe in 1871, so many of my patients neglected to call until the very last, that I was compelled to seek the assistance of a stranger to help me out with my force engagements. I cannot do so this year. The responsibility rests with my patients after this call.

Jottings.

The boys of Dearborn S. F. E. Co. No. 1 are to give a grand promenade concert and ball on the evening of the 21st of February proximo, and they are making an effort to have it first class in all respects. No pains or expense will be spared to make it an entertainment alike creditable to the Company and the city of Portsmouth.

The lecture by Theodore Tilton was not for the benefit of any public enterprise, but any society securing his return with a change of subject would doubtless net a handsome profit.

The Reform movement which is meeting with such great success in New Hampshire has extended to Maine and is rapidly assuming formidable proportions. On Saturday evening, a Reform Club was started at Kittery, and about sixty persons signed the pledge, including a number whom the Good Templars could not reach, although some 200 persons belong to that order. The officers of the club chosen are: President, John Lambert; Vice-Presidents, Millard F. Staples, Oliver B. Moody, Charles Chickering; Secretary, Joseph E. Jackson; Financial Secretary, Wallace S. Jackson; Treasurer, Benjamin E. Seward; Marshals, Samuel A. Jackson, Edwin Getchell; Steward, Horace Jenkins; Sergeant-at-Arms, Thomas Francis. Speeches and singing were the order of the evening, and it is proposed to organize a choir as a permanent adjunct of the club. Rev. S. A. Hutchinson and Messrs. Lambert, Chickering and Francis addressed the club, and a great deal of enthusiasm was manifested. Regular meetings are to be held at present on Saturday evenings at the Methodist vestry, and a strong effort will be made to induce all who are tempted to use intoxicating liquors to join the club, which starts out under the most flattering auspices.

"Mr. Ralph Reinewald, formerly of Woonsocket but now leader of the Portsmouth Marine Band, is visiting relatives and friends in town." Woonsocket, R. I., Reporter. Mr. Reinowald is second leader, and one of the most skillful and accomplished players in our excellent Naval Band, which Mr. H. L. Harlow, the leader, has organized and perfected in drill, until it has become a musical institution, the like of which has rarely been seen in New Hampshire.

Commodore John Pope, who was in command of the navy yard from 1858 to 1860, died at Dorchester, on January 14, at the age of 77 years.

The Sons of Portsmouth resident in New York are taking a lively interest in the Artillery Company. A letter from Col. Edwin R. Goodrich to Capt. Marvin shows how interestedly every movement of old Portsmouth toward a proper centennial observance is watched. The Artillery Company grows in strength every week. The following persons have been admitted to honorary membership: Ichabod Goodwin, Benjamin Cheever; James T. Fields, Geo. K. Hooper, Boston; Daniel Marcy; Edwin A. Peterson, Greenland; Edwin R. Goodrich, New York; Geo. W. Towle, Newcastle; Moses Yeaton, Nath'l D. Miller, A. F. Craig, John H. Wells, Edward D. Coffin, Daniel J. Vaughan, William O. Sides, Matthew T. Betton, Robert Rand. We understand there are other members, but we were unable to obtain a full list. The company is acquiring considerable proficiency in drill, and hope to make a good representation of the militia of our State at the Centennial.

Resolutions of Respect.

Wendell Phillips, the prince of American orators and one whom the world delights to hear, will honor Portsmouth and grace the platform with his presence at Franklin Hall on Monday evening next, where he will give a lecture never before delivered in Portsmouth—though it matters little what he talks about, for under his magic utterance all are spell-bound. He always invests his subject with the interest of a romance, while his hearers "take no note of time but from its loss."

At the annual meeting of the Firemen's Relief Association, Jan. 12th, 1876, a committee was appointed to draft the following resolutions:

Whereas, it has pleased Divine Providence to call from our midst our dearly beloved ecomrade and brother fireman, HENRY C. WALKER, and

Whereas, we are called upon to mourn the loss of a noble and generous heart, a true friend and faithful fireman, and one whose duty was his pride, and who has answered his last alarm;

Resolved, that while we feel deeply the loss we are called upon to bear in parting from one to whom we have always cherished the warmest feelings of friendship and respect, and while we shall continue to feel the loss greatly, we can but bow in humble submission to that Divine Power which sitteth upon that Throne on High, and fervently whisper these words: "Thy will be done."

Resolved, that we hereby express to the family of our late brother our heartfelt sympathy, and while we feel deeply the loss of a valuable member of the Firemen's Relief Association and of the Portsmouth Fire Department, his memory will ever remain in our hearts and minds through this hard and uncertain pataway of life, in hope that by God's goodness we may be reunited, never to part;

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be furnished to the family of the deceased, and be published in the local papers of this city.

Needless Suffering.

Many persons of weakly constitution, with dyspeptic and bilious tendencies, suffer life-long bodily distress unnecessarily. Their existences are commonly shorter than those of healthier mortals, but while they last, it is usually the case that they are continually dosing themselves, or being dosed to no purpose. Could they be induced to see Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for a while, strength regained, digestion restored, and the disappearance of bilious symptoms, would speedily acquaint them with the difference between a remedy which deals with causes, and those which affect symptoms merely. Not only are the Bitters a searching specific for complaints affecting the stomach, liver or intestinal canal, but they are, in consequence of their invigorative and bracing influence upon the entire physique, an admirable means of protecting the system against the atmospheric influences which beget malarial disease.

"If ever I cease to love" Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam, I shall prove ungrateful to one of the best remedies on earth.

An Article of True Merit.—"Brown's Bronchial Troches" are the most popular article in this country or Europe for Throat Diseases and Coughs, and this popularity is based upon real merit.

TO BE GIVEN AWAY

—AT—

HENDERSON'S.

The parties who had agreed to purchase my stock of Dry Goods on the first of January, not being able to meet their engagements, the stock is still left in my hands, which seriously interferes with the business arrangements I had made.

I have therefore determined to give the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity a rousing benefit. To make quick work of it, I propose the following inducements to purchasers of Dry Goods:

A Present to every Customer

buying One Dollar's worth of goods.

A Better Present to every customer buying Two Dollars' worth.

A still Better One to every customer buying Five Dollars' worth.

An Elegant Present to every customer buying Ten Dollars' worth.

Every customer buying One Dollar's worth or more, is sure of a Valuable Present.

In addition to all this, one in every twenty-five packages containing a present, also contains a check entitling the lucky holder to the

Elegant Chamber Set

IN MY WINDOW

VALUED AT 55 DOLLARS.

ONE-HALF BARREL FLOUR,

LADIES' ROCKING CHAIR,

ONE BOX RAISINS,

ONE BARREL POTATOES,

ONE BARREL APPLES,

And lots of other merchandise to eat and to wear.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT AT THE HEAD OF THIS COLUMN IS AN ACTUAL FACT!

The amount of presents to be given away is equal to just one-half the amount of the value of the goods sold.

The Grandest Dry Goods sale ever heard of,—offering better inducements even than Lovering in his celebrated book sale.

We don't all want a book, but we all need Dry Goods, and in purchasing of me you get your goods as low as can be bought in Portsmouth with all the additional inducements thrown in.

☞ Everything will be conducted squarely, and everything advertised will be carried out.

No person in the store knows the package containing the checks for the larger presents, and the only condition we exact from the persons receiving them is the privilege of publishing their names, simply to satisfy the public that the goods are given away as advertised.

Daily Chronicle.

Dr. Pierce.

[From the Toledo Blade.]

"Success is never achieved without merit. A man may make a poor article and sell it once, and there being 40,000,000 people in the United States, the sale to each one would be enough to make a decent fortune. But an article that holds the field year after year, and the sales of which increase regularly and rapidly must have absolute merit.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., occupies our entire eighth page to day with his various articles. We admit it, because we know the Doctor, and know, that his articles. We know him to be a regularly educated physician, whose diploma hangs on the wall of his office, and we know that he has associated with him several of the most eminent practitioners in the country. We know that parties consult him, by mail and in person, from all States in the Union every day, and that they are fairly and honestly dealt with.

This grand result has been accomplished by two agencies—good, reliable articles articles which, once introduced, work easily their own way—and splendid business management. They have succeeded because they ought to have succeeded."

If you would patronize Medicines scientifically prepared by a skilled Physician and Chemist, use Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines. Golden Medical Discovery is nutritious, tonic, alterative, and blood-cleansing, and an unequaled Cough Remedy; Pleasant Purgative Pellets, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, constitute an agreeable and reliable physic; Favorite Prescription, a remedy for debilitated females; Extract of Smart-Weed, a magical remedy for Pain, Bowel Complaints, and an unequaled Liniment for both human and horse-flesh; while his Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is known the world over as the greatest specific for Catarrh and "Cold in the Head" ever given to the public. They are sold by druggists.

20 years a Sufferer.—Cured by the Golden Medical Discovery.

DR. R. V. PIERCE:

Dear Sir,—Twenty years ago I was ship wrecked on the Atlantic Ocean, and the cold and exposure caused a large abscess to form on each leg, which kept continually discharging. I was attended by doctors in Liverpool, Havre, New Orleans, New York, and at the hospital on Staten Island (where the doctors wanted to take one leg off). Finally, after spending hundreds of dollars, I was persuaded to try your Golden Medical Discovery, and now, in less than three months after taking the first bottle, I am thankful to say I am completely cured, and for the first time in ten years can put my left heel to the ground. I am at home nearly every evening and shall be glad to satisfy any person of the truth of this information. I am, sir, yours respectfully,

It Pays! It Pays!
WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer, or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

IT PAYS the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper, which is a library in itself, a teacher for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN

which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this to an extent not attained by any other publication; in fact it is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions, and new discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Receipts, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various trades, forming a complete repository of the Mechanical Arts, and Discoveries; continuing a weekly record not only of the progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Inventions in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics, and Science, and abroad.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the foremost organ of all industrial publications for the past Thirty Years. It is the oldest, largest, cheapest, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions, Science and Industrial Progress, published in the World.

The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. And for the shop and house will save many times the cost of subscription.

Merchants, Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, and Persons of Refinement, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in Inventors' Reading Room, College and School. A new volume commences January 1st, 1876.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several hundred engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. Terms, $3.20 per annum, mail, including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars giving Club rates send free. Single copies mailed on receipt of 10 cents. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. In connection with the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have obtained as high as fifteen patents in a week. More than fifty thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made by the Scientific American of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are sold or exchanged in part or whole, to persons attracted to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, containing full information for obtaining Patents. A bound volume containing the Patent Laws, Census of the U. S., and 142 Engravings of mechanical movements, 25 cents.

Harper's Bazar.
ILLUSTRATED.

Notices of the Press.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Transcript.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its practical hints for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its useful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is conformably of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and sketches, are all invigorating to the mind. —Chicago Evening Journal.

DR. QUAIN'S
CONDITION PILLS!

MAGIC

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

The Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package, soon convinced by himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have been unfitted for work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was confined to the house almost all the time. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Daily Mirror, and began to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package for a friend, and he says they have cured myself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to my sister, I have purchased for me. She told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I should die with hunger. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and do not want anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would gladly pay that for what I received from the pills I have got. Please send me more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaint, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and sent for one package. Joy was the first of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, not feel half as much as Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are as astonished at the change in me, and think it will last. I am cured from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think the: must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Hawkinville, one in Andover, and a lady in Rosindale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of power and industrial resources and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives will be Democratic for the first time in 14 years. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. The course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and the slaves is to shift its place or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great issues to be settled, and important measures to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises a great revival of faith, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and to society in general, will be closely, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes of a return to the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of its patrons, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he looks for fair and impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan necessities or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to advocate the fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion in the struggle for American nationality, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of any party or any conscience; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and offer a apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the utmost fairness to all parties, the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics and in trade, it will try to elect honest men, whom the country knows and can trust; to secure hard money, Administrative reform, such economy in public expenditures as will release compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the Forces for the splendid hard-money triumph won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as consequently driving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and preparing to take the public work out of the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so sustained in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One reason of the policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been that the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal rancling; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE receives a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned to it by the foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watchfulness and the most trustworthy exhibition of fresh current intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a decree years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Spwell Root, Ipecac, Tolu, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
USE
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CHEAPEST AND BEST!

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a sup rb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture, "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift.

"Peterson's Magazine" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berth patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables it proprietor to spend more money on embellishment—stories, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more, for the money than any in the world. Its are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be splendidly colored. All Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other service rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure to them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—A funny story is told of two Vermont farmers who are not Grangers. They induced their wives to join and report before they would commit themselves. Now, when they will they cannot. Two blackballs greet every application. Meanwhile the wives go regularly and triumphantly to every meeting of the Grange, and the men stay at home to mind the babies.

—"Children," said a country minister, addressing a Sunday school, "Why are we like flowers? What do we have that flowers have?" And a small boy in the infant class, whose breath smelled of vermifuge, rose up and made reply, "Worms," and the minister crept under the pulpit chair to hide his emotion.

—The crusaders have converted a Brooklyn saloon keeper and persuaded him to close his shop. He did it. The crusaders are now holding prayer meetings in the saloon, and the converted man is looking for a nice corner place, where business will be good, to open afresh.—New York Telegram.

—A Schenectady man couldn't take a job at sawing wood because he hadn't a saw. When some one gave him a saw he couldn't raise money enough to have it filed. When he got over that difficulty he found he had no saw-buck, and sat down and wept and became entirely discouraged.

—This is the kind of weather when a man sees his wife coming into the room with a scuttle of coal, and, after she has poured every bit of it into the top of the tall stove, says: "Darn it, Hanner, you ought to have asked me to do that. But it's too late now."

—It is said that since his release from confinement, Brigham Young acts as a changed man. It is only necessary for one of his wives to hint that the fire is low, and he will trot out to the wood shed as if he were thankful for the exercise.

—Rev. W. H. H. Murray has an article in the Golden Rule, advocating lying in bed in the morning, but there seems to be no particular necessity for us to paste it in our hat.—Bridgeport Standard.

—Detroit policemen don't seem to be very good marksmen. "I want you either to hit me or stop making such a blamed racket," said a thief in that city, at whom a policeman was shooting.

—The President has no ear for music, and the carelessness with which he used to take Babcock's flute to rake the fire with was a constant menace to their friendship.—Brooklyn Argus.

—"Your dress," said a husband to his fashionable wife, "will never please the men." "I don't dress to please men," was the reply, "but to worry other women."

—If you see a man with a big diamond on his shirt-front, have him arrested. It may not be Tweed, but it will serve him right anyway.—Alta California.

—The Poughkeepsie Press speaks of a woman "so cross-eyed that when she weeps, tears from her left eye drop on her right cheek."

Castoria.

Cross, sickly babies and children may enjoy health and mothers have rest, if they will use Castoria. Worms, feverishness, teething, wind colic, sour stomach and undigested food make children cross, and produce sickness.

Castoria will assimilate the food, expel worms, and correct all these things. For twenty years Dr. Pitcher experimented in his private practice to produce an effective Cathartic and stomach regulator which would be as effective as Castor Oil, without its unpleasant taste or recoil.

The reputation of his experiment extended. Physicians and nurses rapidly adopted his remedy, to which he gave the name of Castoria.

Castoria is as pleasant to take as honey, regulates the stomach and bowels, and does not gripe. It is adapted to all ages, contains no alcohol, and is absolutely harmless to the most tender infant.

Try Castoria once and you will never be without it.

Prepared at the Laboratory of J. B. Rose & Co., 46 Dey Street, New York. 9fe20

Why will you suffer from Rheumatism, Sprains, Stiff Joints, Swellings, Burns, Scalds or Weak Back, when the Centaur Liniment affords certain relief. Many articles soothe pain to a certain extent, but the Centaur Liniment cures. The White Liniment is for the human family; the Yellow Liniment is for horses and animals.

Cross and sickly children can be made healthy and strong by regulating their stomachs and bowels with Castoria. It is more effective than Castor Oil, and is as pleasant to take as honey. For Wind Colic, Sour Stomach, Worms and Costiveness, there is nothing in existence equal to Castoria.

News and Notes.

Amity or enmity—which? This is the question which opens the Centennial year. —Post. Enmity—to all such wretches as Jeff Davis, Thomassen and La Page!

The Newburyport Herald says that not one dollar of the stock of the consolidated Chipman and Boynton mines is now held in Newburyport.

The friends of the Centennial bill are elated on account of the favorable prospects of their measure, and they are confident of its passage through both houses of Congress.

Mrs. Hannah Stover, born on the 4th of July, 1776, died Thursday last in Bowdoinham, Me., lacking but a few months of her hundredth birthday.

The father of Josie Langmaid was, indeed, a pitiable sight while the jury was out, and was heard to say: "If he is acquitted, he never leaves the court room alive. I do not value my life, but that man must suffer as I have in losing my daughter at his hands, and my only son who died from grief."

Four burglars stole twelve hundred dollars of a Pottsville, Pa., widow, Wednesday night; and her son-in-law shot two of them, captured a third, and recovered all the money. Young men will please observe this heroic example.

A petition for the pardon of a man who robbed a Boston bank from the inside—one of the most dangerous kind of bank robbers—has been forwarded to Washington, and as the messenger was very feeble from his trip, a despatch says that the First Assistant Attorney General kindly called at his rooms at the Imperial Hotel, and received the paper to be referred to the pardon clerk for examination.

The democratic National committee will meet at Washington, Feb. 22d, to decide on time and place to hold their convention for the choice of candidates for President and Vice President.

At a meeting of the House military committee it was found that a majority are opposed to the reduction of the army. They are all disposed, however, to insist that army officers shall make themselves useful, and, in order to give employment to the superfluous number, they will strive, first, to have the care of the Indians transferred to the War Department, and, secondly, to have them assigned to duty in connection with various surveying and scientific exploring expeditions sent out every year by government, to the exclusion of the civil engineers and observers who have hitherto done this work.

Jimmy Blanchard, who personated Charlie Ross so successfully at the expense of St. Albans, says that he made $20 and two suits of clothes out of it, and would try it again if he had a good chance.

Mrs. Andrew Johnson, who has just followed her husband to the grave, had been in feeble health for many years, and during her husbands incumbency of the White House she was unable to do its honors, which devolved chiefly upon Mrs. Patterson. She was a woman of much beauty and strength of character, and, though she did not play so conspicuous a part in advancing her husband's fortunes as the wife of a politician so frequently does nowadays, he was quite as deeply indebted to her, from the early days of their married life, when she first taught the poor journeyman tailor how to write and cipher.

G. L. Fox, the clown, is still in the asylum in Somerville, where he is frequently visited by his relatives. He shows great improvement, and has rational intervals, but it is unlikely that he will recover.

The Chelsea Telegraph takes a manly stand in defence of Mr. Blaine's course, saying: Many of the public prints question the policy of Mr. Blaine in going as far as he did in the amnesty debate, and say that he has lost ground with his party and the people. We don't believe it, and moreover think that he is thought more of by his party and has gained ground in the confidence of the people for the undaunted, fearless, and outspoken manner in which he backed up his amendment. The cause justified the means, and while we believe Mr. Blaine, in common with us all, is heartily sorry to see the old wounds re-opened, the exchange of good feelings as shown in Boston last Summer, and expressed all over the country, torn asunder, we believe he thought it was his duty to oppose the bill in that form. It was his duty, and it was time that some one tried to put a check to the many insults that have been put upon us, for we consider it an insult to allow an officer of the Southern army to take a seat upon the floor of Congress, even as a visitor, much more a member. When he tried to pull down and destroy the Union he lost that right and should always forfeit it. The North would have expected, aye and received it, had the South gained the day, and what they would have meted out to us should be meted out to them. But no, they are allowed to come and take part in making the laws of a land that they covered with blood, into which they brought civil war, filling our land with widows, orphans, and maimed and helpless men, until even now they ask for admittance for the arch traitor to also become a member of the House, or Senate, for it amounts to as much and would prove so in the end. No, we find no blame, but praise for Mr. Blaine, and believe the whole world will honor him, for the shaft he has shot into the enemy's ranks, and the sacredness with which he holds the principles our boys went out to fight for, for whose preservation so many laid down their lives, and over whose graves wave the Northern pine and the Southern grass. Why, we might as well not fought a war as to admit that we were wrong, for we do admit by such action, and should be afraid the grand army of the dead, gone before us, would rise up and point the finger of derision at us.

The Manchester Mirror says the recent State convention of the democracy "was unanimous; as much so as an old-fashioned negro plantation with an able-bodied overseer and a well-filled kennel of bloodhounds."

Gov. Cheney and wife and Congressman Jones and wife were present at Secretary Fish's reception last week in Washington. There were many very rich and costly costumes, some of them the most magnificent ever seen in Washington. One of the most notable was that of Mrs. Governor Cheney. Over a pink silk vest and petticoat she wore a garnet velvet court train. Her lace and jewels were rare and exquisite.

The more the authorities investigate the dynamite horror the stronger is the evidence adduced that the City of Boston met her terrible fate by this fell destroyer through the fiendish scheme of the inhuman Thomassen.

It is stated that the Mount Desert property, for which the Eastern Railroad gave $33,000, could have been obtained for $10,000. A steamboat captain requested a capitalist to make a bogus offer of $25,000, and, when the capitalist refused, somebody else made the offer on paper, and the railroad officials snapped at the bait.

The annual business meeting of the N. H. Press Association will be held at the Phenix Hotel, Concord, Jan. 25th, at eleven o'clock, A. M.

The Boston Herald's dispatch says: The amnesty question is not likely to be heard of again in the House for several days. The vote of 163 to 110 in favor of suspending the rules and allowing a vote on Blaine's amendment to exclude Davis, was a defeat for Randall and the democrats, if not a victory for Blaine. It shows that the Northern democrats are disposed to repudiate Randall's management, and that they would have been willing to have had a vote on the amendment in the first place if Randall had consented to permit it. Randall lays all the blame on Hill of Georgia, and says that he did not dream that the latter would make such an injudicious speech.

At the city election in Middletown, Conn., Monday, Hon. William T. Elmer, (rep.) was elected Mayor, and the entire republican city ticket was also elected.

Governor Kellogg refuses to sign the credentials of George B. Eustis, elected United States Senator by the Louisiana legislature, on the ground that he has already issued credentials to Pinchback, and therefore he could not issue them to another gentleman for the same position. He is willing, however, to certify to the proceedings of the legislature relative to Eustis' election. As the Senate refuses to admit Pinchback on the ground of irregularity in his election, its action on the admission of Eustis will be awaited with interest. The question should be disposed of as speedily as possible, as the State of Louisiana is only partly represented in the higher branch of Congress.

Deputy Sheriff A. W. Keene arrested at Foley & Burn's saloon in Milford, on Sunday, twelve persons for card playing, who were fined $5 and costs each.

A little son of Mr. Arthur McMahon, proprietor of the Sheridan House, Worcester, died Sunday from the effects of a terrible accident Saturday. The child was left alone in a room, and was supposed to be in bed, till its parents were startled by screams, and discovered that the boy by lighting some paper had set fire to his clothing and was entirely enveloped in fire. Before the flames could be extinguished the child had been terribly burned on the side, arms and head, and he lingered in intense agony till his death.

One of Governor Tilden's reforms was pardoning convicts out of the State prison to secure votes for the democratic ticket. The opposition legislature will probably shut down on this by passing a bill to take the pardoning power from the Governor and lodge it in the Court of Appeals.

A letter from Virginia says: "The prospect of carrying Virginia for the republican nominee for President was never more encouraging. * * * Blaine's proposition to let Jeff. Davis alone in his retirement meets with universal approbation on the part of the republicans here."

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Herald, has been studying the Presidential question, and comes to the conclusion that the nomination on the republican side now lies between Mr. Blaine and Senator Morton, with a very large possibility that Governor Hayes may come in as a compromise candidate.

The residents of New Orleans are now enjoying strawberries, which daily increase in quantity, and are sold as fast as brought in.

The recent death of Gen. Geo. W. Cole, the assassin of Hiscock, recalls a memorable trial which occurred in Albany, N. Y., some time ago, and which occasioned as wide comment as the killing of Key by Sickles. Gen. Cole's death occurred in New Mexico, and was the result of pneumonia, from the effect of which he had been a sufferer for a long time. Cole was a physician, and on the field of battle repeatedly distinguished himself for daring physical bravery. A native of New York, he enlisted at the outbreak of the war in the Third New York Cavalry, and won his position on his merits, gradually rising until he became Brigadier-General in the Army of the Potomac. It was in the early part of this month, nine years ago, that he met L. Harris Hiscock, of Syracuse—where both resided at the time—at the Stanwix Hall Hotel in Albany, and, drawing a pistol, shot him through the brain. The death of his victim ensued instantly. The cause of this cold-blooded murder was the alleged seduction of Cole's wife by Hiscock. Cole was twice tried on the charge of murder, the first trial resulting in a disagreement of the jury. At the second trial the jury found a verdict of "not guilty," basing their verdict on the insanity of the prisoner at the moment he fired the fatal shot. The excitement upon the announcement of the verdict was great, the feeling being anything but that of sympathy for the assassin. The Rochester Union, in an article on the death of Cole, says that after his acquittal he removed to New York city, and probably through the influence of his brother, ex-Senator Cole, of California, secured a position in the Post Office there which he held up to about a year ago when he went to New Mexico with the intention of resuming the practice of medicine. In contrast to Sickles, he never returned to live with the woman whose conduct was the alleged moving cause which led him to imbrue his hands in the blood of a fellow-man.

An enthusiastic veteran soldier who was present in the National House during the debate of last week exclaimed: "We've got the —— rebels on the run again."

General Banks has offered an amnesty bill which has been referred to the judiciary committee, and if that committee gets a chance to report this week it will probably be reported back. Otherwise no bill can come in except by unanimous consent. Mr. Banks' bill proposes to permit a vote on the Jeff Davis proposition.

The Kansas legislature has chosen a colored chaplain.

A couple of ex-Confederates were passing down the Capitol steps at Washington recently, a few steps in advance of one of our Northern citizens. Says No. 1 to No. 2, "It's strange that they don't give me an office; I killed more Yankees than anybody here." Comment is useless.—Traveller.

The democratic legislature of Kentucky chose Hon. James B. Beck, U. S. Senator, on Tuesday, to succeed Senator Stevenson.

Mrs. Mary Shattuck, of Brookline, died almost instantly while at the supper table, Monday night, from an ulcer in the throat eating off the jugular vein, causing her to bleed to death.

Israel Mitchell's house with contents, at Campton, were burned Monday night. The loss is reported at $2000; insurance $900.

According to the Washington correspondent of the New York Herald, the republican Congressmen receive letters and dispatches from all parts of the country encouraging and applauding Blaine and Garfield and the conduct of the debate.

Secretary Chandler is said to be "doing his whole duty" in the way of supplying places for the Union soldiers dismissed by the House democrats.

There is a marked change among the conservative republicans of the House since the comments of the Northern press upon Blaine's amnesty speech have been received. They now nearly all endorse Blaine's policy.

A Pen Picture of Daniel Marcy.

[Kent in Boston Traveller.]

Hon. Daniel Marcy, who has been nominated for Governor on the democratic ticket in this State, is a resident of this city, and outside of politics, he is in full possession of all that makes up an honorable, kind and good man, but in politics he belongs to the "Eaton" or Bourbon school of democracy, being thoroughly partisan rather than liberal in his views, and always oversteps the bounds of justice and discretion in enthusiastic enunciation of such principles.

Hon. Warren F. Daniell, as well as the other candidates mentioned before the democratic convention, were above him in ability and clearness of intellect, and his equal in natural intelligence. Capt. Marcy bears the reputation of having been very zealous in his opposition to the war to put down the Rebellion. It was reported, (your correspondent knows not with what foundation,) that the master of a ship in which his brother, a resident of New Orleans, and himself were interested, had "Confederate papers" to shield the vessel from seizure. There can be no doubt that one of the principal causes of his nomination is the fact that it would be difficult to find, in this part of the country, a more bitter opponent to the republicans or their principles. Recent developments at Washington show that it is the Northern democrat who had most sympathy with the rebels, and not the "War democrat," that is to be in the lead in the North if that party comes into power, and even such are to march in the rear under the command of the Southerners.

Capt. Marcy has been in public life, and, although rich, he obtained his wealth legitimately, and is of the disposition to spend it lavishly to secure his election.

Many of his friends and party feel encouraged and hope for success, but in this campaign there is a strong probability that Mr. Cheney will win. In fact his re-election does not admit of a doubt, though there must be work done to accomplish it. A few more speeches of the "Ben. Hill" order at Washington and elsewhere will make an impression on the public mind which will require something more than the sophistical platitudes of politicians to remove; slanders upon Northern soldiers by Southern members of Congress are poor investments in New Hampshire, just at this time. There is a latent power in the people which can be as well aroused in times of peace as in war, and it is this power that guards the republic and will protect it. It is a mistake to suppose that Capt. Marcy has the personal popularity which will enable him to obtain any republican votes. He will carry his party only. But that he will get a large vote in Portsmouth there is no doubt, and for the same reason that he will get a similar vote in Ward Five of Manchester. For an explanation of the means, the records of trials at the U. S. Court at the last term and the list of indictments to be tried at the next term for fraudulent voting should be examined. In referring to this your correspondent disclaims any direct connection of Mr. Marcy with these outrageous transactions, and would not intentionally write a word to wound his sensitive nature. But inasmuch as the gentleman has, by his acceptance, become the representative of his party, in shooting at that target your correspondent may accidentally hit him.

His Record.

[Nashua Telegraph]

If the people of this State are to honor a man with an election to the governorship, shall it be for something or for nothing? If in the darkest hours of the country's distress, a man occupied a high public position and uniformly voted in a way that gave aid and comfort, hope and encouragement to the enemy, shall we honor him for it, in this Centennial year of our State's independence, by electing him to the highest office in the gift of the State? Is this the way to honor the memory of the fathers? Is this the way to impress on posterity the value of patriotic services? Is it the way to perpetuate republican government and institutions by rewarding the man whose vote only helped those who were seeking to overthrow and destroy them on this continent and erect on their ruins a slave oligarchy.

We deal only with the public record of Daniel Marcy, the democratic candidate for Governor. That is public property. It is a part of the public record, open to every citizen, and we propose to deal with it to the fullest and fairest extent. Daniel Marcy was elected to Congress from the First district at the annual election in March, 1863, and took his seat on the meeting of the 38th Congress, in December following his election. We do not understand that Mr. Marcy ever made a speech in Congress even of a line's length, therefore a double significance attaches to his votes. If he was as "dumb as an oyster," he spoke his sentiments through the "yea" and "nay" of the roll-call, and there we must go to ascertain his real motives and sentiments.

VOTES AGAINST PAYING COLORED SOLDIERS.

After President Lincoln had issued his Proclamation of Emancipation, and the employment of colored men to aid in crushing the rebellion had become a plain necessity as well as duty, the question of equipping, arming and paying them came up in Congress. Justice demanded that they should be paid, not with stones but with bread—not as slaves but as freemen. How did Daniel Marcy look upon this act of simple but supreme justice? On the 21st of March, 1864, the bill making appropriations for the support of the army being under consideration, he voted for an amendment providing that "no part of the money herein appropriated shall be applied or used for the purpose of raising, arming, equipping, or paying negro soldiers."

VOTES AGAINST NATIONAL BANKING ACT.

On the 18th day of April, 1864, Daniel Marcy voted against the National Banking Act. As a business man Mr. Marcy immediately took advantage of that Act. He became a stockholder and director in the New Hampshire National Bank at Portsmouth, and remains such to this day. At the session of the legislature last June he spoke and voted against the taxation of the surplus of the National Banks. "Consistency, thou art a jewel."

VOTES AGAINST WAYS AND MEANS TO SUPPORT THE GOVERNMENT.

On the 28th of April, 1864, Daniel Marcy voted against the bill to provide internal revenue to support the government. On the 4th of June, 1864, he voted against the bill to increase duties on imports to provide means to carry on the war against the rebels.

VOTES AGAINST THE REPEAL OF THE FUGITIVE SLAVE LAW.

On the 13th of June, 1864, nearly six months after the issue of the Proclamation of Emancipation, Daniel Marcy, in company with Cox, Pendleton and Fernando Wood, voted against the repeal of the Fugitive Slave Act of 1850, and all acts for the rendition of fugitive slaves. Could obsequious devotion to the Slave Power have gone further than this at a time when it was seeking the very life of the republic?

VOTES AGAIN AGAINST WAYS AND MEANS TO SUPPORT THE GOVERNMENT.

On the 25th of February, 1865, Daniel Marcy voted against the bill to provide ways and means for the support of the government.

VOTES AGAIN AGAINST JUSTICE TO THE BLACKS.

On the 3d of March, 1865, the last day but one of his Congressional career, Daniel Marcy voted adversely on the bill to remove all disqualifications of color in carrying the mails. In 1825 a law was enacted which prohibited the employment of colored persons in the mail service. This bill was intended to repeal that act.

VOTES TO REJECT, AND THEN DODGES THE AMENDMENT TO ABOLISH SLAVERY.

On the 15th of June, 1864, the Joint Resolution providing for the submission to the several States of an amendment abolishing slavery was before the House. On a motion to reject it Daniel Marcy voted in the affirmative. The resolution came up on the 31st of January, 1865, and was passed by the necessary two-thirds vote: but Daniel Marcy dodged.

DODGES A VOTE OF THANKS TO SHERIDAN, HIS OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS FOR AVERTING A GREAT DISASTER.

On the 25th of January, 1865, a joint resolution was introduced into the House of Representatives tendering the thanks of Congress to Major-General Philip H. Sheridan, and the officers and soldiers under his command, for the gallantry displayed by them in the valley of the Shenandoah, "and especially for their services at Cedar Run on the 19th of October, 1864, which retrieved the fortunes of the day and averted a great disaster. Daniel Marcy did not vote on the passage of the resolution. In plain English, he dodged. Where were his sympathies, think you? To their credit be it said, Cox, Morrison, Randall and some other democrats voted for the resolution; but Daniel Marcy dodged!

To My Patients and the Public!

I propose to leave Portsmouth about February 1st, for an absence of several months. Will those contemplating or needing my services please give me an early call? Previous to my departure for Europe in 1874, so many of my patients neglected to call until the very last that I was compelled to seek the assistance of a stranger to help me out with my forced engagements. I cannot do so this year. The responsibility rests with my patients after this call.

Some time ago Mr. Broad and his wife were put off a train on the Eastern road. They had purchased tickets from Portland to Boston, which the conductor refused to recognize, coming, as they were the other way. An action for damages was brought and at the last term of the court a verdict was rendered for Broad's wife of over $700 and for Broad of between $600 and $700. This verdict, the Judge said, he should set aside as excessive, unless each agreed to refund $500 of the verdict. This they declined. The second trial was concluded on Monday, the jury rendering a verdict for Broad for $2278 12, and for his wife, $567 14. The defendants will carry the case to the full bench, on the ground of a verdict against evidence.

TO WENDELL PHILLIPS.

Sensa poca—sensa paura.

Untiring, fearless, grand in thy repose,
If seldom found a pauser in the strife
Which just men, greatly stamped, must face in life,
Phillips, chief thinker in the rank of those Who stood for Freedom, even to the knife—
For thee New England's living laurel grows!
Large was the sacrifice which thou couldst lay
On our land's altar; vast the trust assigned
Thee for the downtrod. Thou didst use thy dower,
Working and waiting—speaking words of power—
And swaying crowds with music of the mind.
All broken souls, that smart with wrong, shall say,
Born for the highest place, the lowly born
He stooped to serve, and gave ambition scorn.

Needless Suffering.

Many persons of weakly constitution, with dyspeptic and bilious tendencies, suffer life-long bodily distress unnecessarily. Their existences are commonly shorter than those of healthier mortals, but while they last, it is usually the case that they are continually dosing themselves, or being dosed to no purpose. Could they be induced to use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for a while, strength regained, digestion restored, and the disappearance of bilious symptoms, would speedily acquaint them with the difference between a remedy which deals with causes, and those which affect symptoms merely. Not only are the Bitters a searching specific for complaints affecting the stomach, liver or intestinal canal, but they are, in consequence of their invigorative and bracing influence upon the entire physique, an admirable means of protecting the system against the atmospheric influences which beget malarial disease.

Dr. Pierce.

[From the Toledy Blade.]

"Success is never achieved without merit. A man may make a good article and sell it once, and there being 40,000,000 people in the United States, the sale to each one would be enough to make a decent fortune. But an article that holds the field year after year, and the sales of which increase regularly and rapidly must have absolute merit.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., occupies our entire eighth page to day with his various articles. We admit it, because we know the Doctor, and know of his articles. We know him to be a regularly educated physician, whose diploma hangs on the wall of his office, and we know that he has associated with him several of the most eminent practitioners in the country. We know that parties consult him, by mail and in person, from all States in the Union every day, and that they are fairly and honestly dealt with.

This grand result has been accomplished by two agencies—good, reliable articles articles which, once introduced, work easily their own way—and splendid business management. They have succeeded because they ought to have succeeded."

If you would patronize Medicines scientifically prepared by a skilled Physician and Chemist, use Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines. Golden Medical Discovery is nutritious, tonic, alterative, and blood purifying, and is unequaled Cough Remedy; Pleasant Purgative Pellets, scarcely larger than mustard seeds, constitute an agreeable and reliable physic; Favorite Prescription, a remedy for debilitated females; Extract of Smart-Weed, a magical remedy for Pain, Bowel Complaints, and an unequaled Liniment for both human and horse-flesh; while his Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is known the world over as the greatest specific for Catarrh and "Cold in the Head" ever given to the public. They are sold by druggists.

20 years a Sufferer.—Cured by the Golden Medical Discovery.

DR. R. V. PIERCE:

Dear Sir,—Twenty years ago I was ship wrecked on the Atlantic Ocean, and the cold and exposure caused a large abscess to form in each leg, which kept continually discharging. I was attended by doctors in Liverpool, Havre, New Orleans, New York, and at the hospital on Staten Island (where the doctors wasted to take one leg off). Finally, after spending hundreds of dollars, I was persuaded to try your "Golden Medical Discovery," and now, in less than three months after taking the first bottle, I am thankful to say I am completely cured, and for the first time in ten years can put my left heel to the ground. I am at home nearly every evening and shall be glad to satisfy any person of the truth of this information. I am, sir, yours respectfully,

Notices of the Press.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion, pleasure and refinement.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the lively entertainment it offers.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and sprightly and sensible editorial talk, are all invigorating to the mind.—Chicago Evening Journal.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the drug package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friend, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 5, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of that time have been a cripple. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that I could scarcely walk across the room. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured my package of you, and he proved to be door money's worth. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir,—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they is the best medicine for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to my friends have found them to be just as I told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. I have tried much everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one had gained twenty pounds in their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and would give it before I would do without them. I will please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. Could not walk without a cane, and great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop and rise easily. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. I have suffered from Infammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them, I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. You with the blessing of God, I attribute solely to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

N. Y. TRIBUNE.
"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which promise to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now swarming in close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and measures to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the future may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a period in civil, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and especially to the public schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes that it will witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to the past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, from which he can rely upon an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan necessities or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain the old fervor of the old Republican principles of which it was the representative and champion for thirty years, and will rejoice wherever those principles are victorious under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of Bonapartes or Bourbons, and it will oppose what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; and it has found its great object in so doing honest men, whom the country knows and can trust; to secure hard money, Administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the best citizens profess, low private claims, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as a consequence it brought up the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and saving $1,000,000 as the price of its services and command yet greater approval.

Instead of that policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been the practice that has rendered the Democracy in some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the virtues they preach. It may also be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have this within two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvements.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor, and will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will scorn no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will remain its space for its readers' interest.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has widely enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 its publication was larger than any foreign series, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watchfulness and the most lavish expenditure to procure the freshest intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

PULMONICE

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting to secure to his patients the best that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultimas thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Spruce Wood, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
USE
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CHEAPEST AND BEST!

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift.

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 12 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood engravings.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments, stories, &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its

are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of shorter stories, FIFTY ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot confer with a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

SMITHERS.

A CURIOUS BIT OF REVOLUTIONARY HISTORY.

[Lippincott's Magazine.]

The rectification of history and the rehabilitation of historical characters is a thing so common now-a-days, and withal so fascinating both to the student making the investigation and the reader who profits by its fruits, that no apology is deemed necessary for the present paper, even if simple justice did not demand its publication. Dunlap in his quaint and very curious "History tory of the Arts of Design in America," speaks thus of the man whose name appears at the head of this article: "Smithers, originally a gun-engraver, and employed in the tower of London, came to Philadelphia in 1773. He undertook all kinds of engraving, and probably stood high in public opinion; he was the best, for he stood alone. To him we may owe the caricatures of the times, some of the wits of the day assisting in the designs. He engraved the blocks for the continental money, and afterwards imitated them for the British. How great must have been his love for his native country!" (Vol. i., p. 136).

The true history of Mark Smithers, and of the treason he was supposed to be guilty of, is now for the first time published, and I give it verbatim from the original narratives, changing only some names in order not to cast needless odium upon very respectable people. The papers which follow were found in the desk of the late Mr. Ballard Sedley, when he died in June last. It would appear as if he meant to publish them; why he did not do so I do not know, but suppose his habitual caution and the reticence natural to men in his profession had much to do with it. Mr. Sedley was for a great many years a leading lawyer at the Princess Anne (Somerset county, Maryland,) bar, and I received the papers, with leave to publish them, from his family. Mr. Sedley's narrative is as follows:

PRINCESS ANNE, October 11, 1842.

To-day's paper gives me the news of the death of my old friend, Miss Babington. As she is the last survivor of the parties likely to suffer by exposure of the truth, I deem it due to the memory of Mark Smithers to give a true history of that counterfeiting affair, and to vindicate him as he was willing to do for himself. To this end I will prepare a plain narrative of the whole matter so far as I was connected with it and could trace out the facts. The circumstances of the death of Colonel Thomas Babington are still perhaps remembered by those who were contemporary with the occurrence, and it will wound many of his old friends still surviving, who had implicit faith in him, to learn the cause of that rash act; but all this does not relieve me from the obligation I feel to set right the story of that most unhappy man and pure patriot, Mark Smithers.

In May (I forget the exact day), 1829, soon after I had begun the practice of the law, and while I was a partner of General Marshall in Baltimore, Marshall was sent for by Colonel Thomas Babington to come to Independence Hall, in Frederic county, his country-seat, and write his will. The message required immediate attendance. As it happened, Marshall was ill with a fit of the gout, and protested he would not jolt over the rough roads of Baltimore and Frederic counties if Babington would give him his farm." He accordingly sent me to take his place, and I went in the stage coach to Fredericktown where Colonel Babington met me with his own carriage in great style.

I was of course perfectly familiar with Colonel Babington's record both in the field and in Congress. I knew of his great wealth and his popularity and social standing, but I had never met him personally before. He was sixty-eight years old, but did not look more than fifty. He was a very tall and a very large man (he weighed two hundred and ninety pounds, he said,) corpulent, florid, yet stately withal. His stubby gray hair, cropped close, stood out all over his round head. He had a pleasant, even a sweet mouth, still full of sound teeth, and I liked all his features, but his eye, which, too bright for a man of his years, was small and cunning—furtive, I thought—and moved uneasily to the right and left.

Colonel Babington looked the least bit disappointed when I handed him General Marshall's letter, gave him my partner's excuses, and told him I had come in his place. He quickly recovered however, said I would doubtless do very well, helped me into his carriage, and ordered the coachman to drive on. Nothing could exceed the courtesy with which he treated me then, and all the time of my visit. He was a man of most pleasant address, good education, large experience among men; he abounded with anecdote, was witty and humorous, laughed often and long, and interlarded his talk with frequent and pat quotations from the English dramatists, and particularly Shakespeare. He was an incessant talker, and I thought a little nervousness was at the bottom of his hidden transitions from topic to topic.

Independence Hall, a handsome mansion upon a most beautiful estate of several thousand acres of the best and most fertile soil, was soon reached, and I was introduced to Mrs. Babington—pious, patient soul! never shall I forget your sweet saint's smile, your quiet fortitude in affliction—and Miss Harriet, their only child, a maiden of forty, not handsome in face and figure, but lovely indeed in soul. Dinner was served soon after our arrival, and during the progress of this meal, at which there were no guests beside myself, I noticed Babington's wife and daughter were uneasy about him, watching him closely, and most closely when he was talking most jovially. I could not make out why they should do so. It was not on account of the wine, for though he drank a good many glasses of fine old Madeira that was on the table, he did not take too much, nor more than was likely to be the daily habit of a man in his condition.

After dinner, candles were sent into the library, and the colonel invited me in there with him to smoke a cigar. When we got in Babington locked both doors, drew the curtain down over the window, and said we had better proceed to business at once. First he went to a buffet, poured himself out an immense glass of dark French brandy, and drank. Then he seated me at the table, and gave me pens, ink, and legal paper, and told me to write his will.

I paused and looked at him in astonishment when, after I had written down the formal and introductory parts, he instructed me as to the details of the instrument. His estate, I knew, was valued at a sum approximating eight hundred thousand dollars, a great fortune in these days. Yet to his wife he left nothing, saying her private fortune, secured to her at his own instance in the marriage settlement, was ample for her needs. To his daughter Harriet he left a trust estate of six hundred dollars a year for life, Marshall & Sedley being trustees, and at her death the property to go to his principal legatee. All the rest and residue of his estate, real, personal and mixed, he bequeathed absolutely to one "Mark Smithers, gunsmith, (once of England, then afterward of Philadelphia, but now living or supposed to be living, in the almshouse or upon charity in the town of Reading, Penn.,) as a partial but inadequate reparation for the injuries I have done to him."

I held my pen poised in a state of doubt and perplexity. He read my thoughts, drew himself up haughtily, and said, "Sir, you may be assured I am neither drunk nor mad, nor am I bound to give you the sufficient private reasons which govern me in disposing of my estate. That they are sufficient my present acts witness and the future will amply reveal."

I bowed and went on writing, while Colonel Babington at once recovered his suavity and his pleasant tone of voice. "I wish," said he, "to name three executors—my wife, my daughter Harriet and yourself. Put it down so." I asked leave to decline, but he would not hear it: "There will be much intricate business to attend to, about which my wife and daughter know nothing; and Marshall is too old and inactive."

The writing of the instrument completed, he got up, rang a bell and unlocked the doors. A servant appeared. "Have those gentlemen arrived, William?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"All three of them? Then ask them to step in here."

The servant departed, and presently three gentlemen came in with that solemn sort of embarrassment, which usually attends upon such duties as they were called on to perform. One of these gentlemen was a doctor—Melvin his name was; the names of the others escape me at this late day.

"Gentlemen," said Colonel Babington, "I have asked your attendance this evening, as neighbors, to witness the execution of this my last will and testament." When the witnesses had all signed, Colonel Babington opened a drawer in his desk, took from it a large envelope swollen with papers, and folding the will put it with them, sealed the envelope, replaced it in the drawer, and locked it, calling my attention to the place of deposit.

"Now, gentlemen," he said, rubbing his hands as he went to the sideboard, "having sacrificed to Themis, let us dismiss our solemn faces and pour a libation to Bacchus. After that, I know that my daughter Harriet has her backgammon board, and a challenge ready for the doctor, which leaves me just a partie carre—my good wife having her scruples about cards—for the whist-table. Sedley, I will take you for partner; and that's a compliment, too, for I am as choice about my whist-partners as I am about the vintage of my Madeira; but you have a close eye and a firm lip; you can play, I'll bet my wig on it."

It was after midnight, when the card party broke up, the two neighbors going home, and Dr. Mervin concluding to stay all night. My host with old-fashioned courtesy, took my candle, and showed me to bed himself, bidding me good-night and pleasant dreams. I can almost see his ruddy, cheerful face now as he backed out of the room and closed the door behind him. I never saw that cheerful, ruddy face again, but only a ghastly mask of it horrible in sudden death.

Day was just breaking when I sprang or rather I may say was torn out of my bed by a shrill shriek that filled the house with horror. Then came the screams, cries, and wails of excited negro servants, a great banging of doors and rushing to and fro. I hurriedly put on my clothes and had my hand upon the door to go out and see what was the matter, when it was burst open and Dr. Mervin darted in and seized me by both arms. He was pale and dreadfully agitated. "Babington is dead!" he cried. "Come with us at once; we must save the women. They are going crazy."

"Dead!" said I, dreadfully shocked. "How?"

He gave me a quick glance: "I have not examined yet, but it must have been heart disease. He was subject to that and he died very suddenly."

"Was any one with him?"

"No; it was heart disease. There must be no inquest, I tell you. It will kill his wife. Come with me at once."

I followed him to the library, where I had written the will the evening before. It was a terrible scene. The passages and room adjoining were crowded with servants in every attitude of fright and uncontrollable excitement, praying, shrieking, crying but none entering into the room of death. The daylight struggled in faintly at the windows, while two candles, unsnuffed and guttered, shed a red light around. In his great leather chair by the desk, but facing toward the middle of the room, sat Colonel Babington, bolt upright, his eyes staring glassily, his ruddy color supplanted by a purplish ashen hue. He was dead, stark dead. At his feet lay his daughter in her night-dress, swooning, while at his side, in night-dress likewise, with one arm partly clasping the corpse, one hand resting on its knee knelt the unhappy wife, her face turned toward us and full of such agony, such despair, such wistful, dumb entreaty, that I could not endure it, but turned away. The room was filled with the subtle, penetrating, unmistakable odor of bitter almonds. I looked at the doctor: he gave me a single glance, clutched my arm in a fierce grip, then bustled forward to the corpse. He felt the pulse, put his hand over the heart, lowered the lip a moment, lifted an eyelid, then closed the eyes, the poor woman all the time watching him with that importunate agony in her eyes. Then he turned briskly to me: "Just as I feared, Mr. Sedley; heart disease. He has been troubled with it a long time. I knew it would carry him off suddenly some day. No need of an inquest, of course?"

"None in the world," answered I promptly.

The wretched wife heaved a long sigh of profound relief, then sank forward upon her daughter's feet in a swoon.

The doctor's manner changed instantly. "The very best thing in the world that could have happened," he said. "Here, Jane, Sally, Nancy—all of you—stop your howling out there and take your mistresses up stairs and put them to bed; I'll come and bring 'em to directly." While the women were carrying the ladies up stairs, he sent other servants off to fetch some of the colonel's neighbors and kinsmen, and thus got rid of all of them.

"Open the windows, Sedley," said he: "the first thing to do is to get rid of this tell-tale smell. I'll burn a pastille presently, and sprinkle some camphor and peppermint around." He picked up a small vial from the floor, looked at it, and put it into his pocket. "Two ounces!" he exclaimed. "Enough to kill six! He must have died as quickly as if struck by lightning. What druggist was fool enough to sell a man the concentrated acid? There's no label on the bottle."

There was a crumpled scrap of paper at the dead man's side, just where Mrs. Babington had been kneeling. I picked it up and read: "Wife don't blame me; I could not help it. I have done the best I could." I handed it to the doctor. He glanced at it then burnt it in the flame of a candle. "She has read that, I suppose. But it is no concern of ours, Sedley. It is not signed: we can't take cognizance of anonymous communications. It is my opinion Babington died of heart disease, and in such a view of the case an inquest will not only be absurd, but cruel. What do you think?"

"Anything in the world to spare that wretched woman, doctor."

He grasped my hand impulsively: "You're a man, Sedley! We won't have this thing blazoned around for every scandalous tongue to lick it over. We won't let the coroner come; we two can fight the matter out. There has been something on Babington's mind for many years, but—Well, no matter let's do our duty by the living."

By great care and management, the doctor proving himself to be a host, made the belief general that the death proceeded from a cardiac trouble which the colonel was known to suffer with, and in this way prevented any inquest. The colonel was buried in the Frederick cemetery with considerable pomp, and the doctor and I had the pleasant feeling of giving two wretched women comparative happiness in the midst of their misery. No mistake about their gratitude. Of course where there were so many servants present the true state of the case speedily got abroad and after a while it was generally understood that Colonel Babington had destroyed his life; but the cause of the act being suppressed the thing never attained any higher dignity than that of rumor.

—San Francisco letter: An old resident can walk through the streets with you and point out the changes of fortune. Here, for instance, goes a diamond-studded important-looking man, driving a nice span. Well, he was a hotel porter five years ago. There is an elegant residence with tropical gardens and every luxury around it. Well, only four years ago the man who lives in there, now worth $500,000, did not dare to ride into town for fear his mule would be attached and his wife granted a divorce because he could not provide for her. Those are men who stumbled into lucky investments. Five years from this time they may be down to the bottom again—such things are only common.

—"Suppose," said a brow-beating Clarinda (Iowa) lawyer to a witness he was trying to badger, recently, "suppose I should tell you that I could bring a dozen men of your town to this court-room who would say that they would not believe you on oath, what would you say?" And calmly the witness made his reply: "I would say you lied." A gentle smile diffused itself all over the court-room, like a lump of butter on a hot cake, and the unruffled witness stepped down.

—So thoroughly consistent is the editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer that when last week a man went to the office desiring the insertion of an advertisement concerning gold fish he seized a club and drove him out, though the customer offered to pay for it in greenbacks.

News and Notes.

It is said that the Frenchmen in Pembroke and Suncook are considerably exercised over the conviction of La Page and that the lines are getting to be pretty closely drawn between them and the American residents of the town. They feel very bitterly toward Bill Drew who was once under arrest on suspicion of having committed the murder of Josie Langmaid. Some of them have made loud threats against Drew and a few mornings ago his father stated that a party of them either went to the house or stopped in passing by and gave out that Drew would be killed. It is said that Drew does not go to the village much, in consequence of the threats that have been made against his life. The Frenchmen profess to think that La Page is innocent and that Drew is the guilty one. It will probably prove an unhealthy season for them when they begin some of the demonstrations that they talk so loudly about. The conviction of La Page was doubtless a very happy thing for his family, for had he got his liberty it is reasonable to suppose that the town of Pembroke might have had another tragedy to chronicle. It is reported that he stated to an acquaintance after his arrest, that all he wanted was to get down to Suncook for one hour, intimating that he would get revenge on his wife.

The Chicago Tribune says of Wendell Phillips that in power and grace as an orator he has no peer among our public men, and it is no rash assertion to make that a man possessing as he does this rare gift of eloquence, and who for thirty years has spoken to more people than any man living, must have had a very marked influence upon the thoughts, the civilization, and the action of this generation.

Says the staid old Salem Gazette: Regarding the course of the government toward Jefferson Davis, at the time when he was a prisoner, it is idle to assume that Congress is in any degree to be bound by it, logically or morally. The evidence against Davis may have been very strong, but not quite conclusive. It may not have been quite sufficient to justify putting him on trial for his life, for the government would have been bound to prove him guilty by an unquestionable preponderance of evidence. Congress, with precisely the same amount of evidence before it, is not bound, legally or morally, by the same rule of action. There is no proposition before Congress to punish Jefferson Davis. Congress possesses no such power. The proposition of Congress is to voluntarily grant to Davis a great privilege which he does not possess, having been rightfully deprived of it by a crime against the State. Congress is in honor bound to be satisfied of his worthiness of the honor before giving it to him. The burden of proof rests upon him and his friends, to show his worthiness before he can lay even a moral claim to the honors and privileges which it is proposed to extend to him. He has been arraigned, upon strong evidence, for setting on foot and perpetrating a cruelty, which, if true, ought to subject him to death. The government was bound to be satisfied of his guilt before bringing him to trial. Congress, on the other hand, should be bound to be satisfied of his innocence before extending to him the boon of full citizenship.

Representatives King and Shumacker, of the Pacific Mail notoriety, are not to be permitted, it seems, to remain quietly in their seats, but will be given an opportunity to explain how they became mixed up in the Pacific Mail lobby.

Stillman B. Allen, Esq., has an able article on "Presidential Senators," in the Boston Globe, in which he says: Washington would have been a good Senator until his death, and the feud between Adams and Jefferson would have been sooner healed had the latter entered Congress. Both Adams and Jefferson, with the responsibility of life Senators upon them, would have forgotten their dislikes and made the bands of Madison stronger during the trials of the war of 1812; and, a few years later, they, with Madison, would have had weight in the Congress which formed the Missouri Compromise. * * * Prudent and careful Van Buren would have had the counsel of John Quincy Adams during the financial crisis of 1837, when all the boasting State banks suspended, and would himself have been a wise counsellor of the five following Presidents. Let it be known that Presidents cannot be re-elected, but after their retirement must represent the whole country in the Senate for life, and no more James K. Polks and Franklin Pierces will be nominated. Another and higher motive than mere availability will animate the conventions of all political parties and greater care be taken in the selection of candidates. A deeper responsibility will rest upon a new executive, and from the day of his election all his hopes and efforts and life will be devoted to the good of his country.

Mr. Speaker Kerr accorded New England only a third-rate position in making up his committees. But New England proved through Mr. Blaine, last week, that she could maintain a first-rate position on the floor, in spite of Mr. Kerr, Randall, Morrison, Hill, Cox, Tarbox, and all the rest of that crowd. Honors are easy, so far as New England is concerned.—Nashua Telegraph.

Jefferson Davis has just lost a suit for $70,000 in a court at Vicksburg, Miss. He put in a claim for that amount against his brother's estate, but the court decided against him.

Rev. Dr. Bouton of Concord, has been invited by the "Committee on the Restoration of Independence Hall," at Philadelphia, to meet with the American historians, biographers, etc., on the Centennial occasion, July 2, 1876, and to prepare a biographical sketch of Hon. George Frost, who was a delegate from New Hampshire in the Centennial Congress from 1777 to 1779.

The vote in the Kentucky legislature for U. S. Senator on the 18th was as follows: Beck, democrat, 106; Wadsworth, republican, 15; scattering, five.

The House committee on naval affairs has appointed a sub-committee, of which Goode of Virginia is chairman, to investigate the navy yards. The sub-committee will go to Norfolk first, where Mr. Goode thinks there ought to be an overhauling of the navy yard, the patronage of which was used to defeat him.

The Mississippi republicans declined to vote for U. S. Senator on the ground that the late legislature was carried by fraud and violence. Lamar, democrat, had twenty-two votes in the Senate and eighty-nine in the House, and was elected.

An interesting telegraphic correspondence took place last week between St. Louis and Washington. The law officers sent the following despatch to Babcock: "Can you make it convenient to be here on the 31st for trial? If not, please advise us and we will adjourn the court to some later day." Babcock replied as follows: "Hold the court, for I am coming."

The Iowa legislature chose Gov. S. J. Kirkwood, republican, for U. S. Senator on the 18th by a vote of 108 to 37 for Leffler, democrat.

It appears from evidence in a New York divorce suit, in which Dr. Joseph Walker of "Vinegar Bitters" fame, is the plaintiff, that Walker was a laborer for the corporation in New York city at $1.12 per day in 1824, and that in 1874-'75 he had an annual income of more than $176,000. Advertising did it.

All that is known about the coming President is, that he will be a short man. The proof of this is that, as a coming event, he does not yet cast his shadow before.—Chicago Journal.

The Indiana newspaper editors, on a visit to the Centennial grounds, recently took a vote on the Presidential question with this result: Morton, 130; Hendricks, 64. This will greatly please the Indianapolis Journal which now supports the ticket of Morton and Blaine.

A Richmond dispatch states that nearly all the republican delegates from all parts of Virginia have declared their preference for Blaine as a candidate for the Presidency, and Virginia will send a Blaine delegation to Cincinnati.

New York republicans propose to be well represented at Cincinnati. They have already engaged fifty hotel rooms.

The Cincinnati Commercial (independent) thinks that Bristow is the favorite Presidential candidate of the liberal and outside forces.

Stokes' counsel has presented to Judge Barrett a petition to bring him from Sing Sing on a habeas corpus.

Henry C. Bowen is summoned before the examining committee of Plymouth church to answer charges brought by Mr. S. V. White. Mr. Bowen says he shall attend.

—General Banks can crawl out of a small hole as majestically as any man who ever lived. He remarked to Mr. Blaine "There are no unwary ones on our side." Mr. Blaine retorted, "Which is the gentleman's side?" Most men in his position would have been embarrassed, but the General, with his usual dignity, replied, "It is the side of the Constitution of the United States and of the laws made in pursuance thereof." A story is told of the General, that during the war one of his staff came rushing in while he was at breakfast, and gasped, "The rebels are advancing upon us rapidly; our outposts have been attacked and our pickets driven in, what shall be done?" The General sat serenely at the table, and with a wave of his hand, said grandly, "Repulse the enemy at once."

—"And have you no other sons?" asked a curious lady of a bronzed old sea captain. "Oh, yes, madam, I had one who lived in the South Sea Islands for nearly a dozen years." "Really! Was he bred there, and what was his taste—the sea or land?" "No, madam, he wasn't bread—he was meat, leastways the niggers ate him, and as for his taste the chief said he tasted of terbacer." The lady walked to another part of the ship, and the captain smiled and took a fresh quid of "terbacer."—New Haven Register.

—Take a white sponge of large size and sow it full of rice, oats or wheat. Then place it for a week or ten days in a shallow dish of water, and as the sponge will absorb the moisture, the seeds will begin to sprout before many days. When this has fairly taken place the sponge may be suspended by means of cords from a hook in the top of the window, where a little sun will enter. It will then become like a mass of green, and can be kept wet by the mere immersion of it in a bowl of water.

Jottings.

The Reform Club have a meeting at Sons of Temperance Hall, this evening at half-past seven o'clock. There will be addresses by reformed men. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

The following conversation actually occurred on Wednesday. A friend accosted us as we came down town and asked: "What is the occasion of so many rough looking strangers in the city this morning?" We could not answer the conundrum, and meeting one of the most respected democrats in the city, asked him where the strangers came from. His reply was: "I don't know; but I passed a number of them going from the cars toward the Rockingham, and presume there is some kind of a convention to be held. I judge by the looks of the delegates that it is a democratic convention." And so it proved to be!

Rev. Carlos Martyn's lyceum lecture at Kittery Point, postponed from last Monday evening, will be delivered next Monday evening.

One of Theodore Tilton's statements is promptly met by denial. In his lecture here he proclaimed that "in the funeral train which conveyed the Vice-President's remains to his home there was an assortment of wines and liquors." The committee appointed by Governor Gaston to escort the remains of Mr. Wilson from Washington to Boston assert "unqualifiedly that no refreshment car accompanied the train; neither was there one dollar expended for wines or liquors of any kind from the time the committee left Boston on Monday until its arrival home on the Sunday following."

Rev. C. A. Holbrook, Rector of St. John's Church, designs delivering on successive Sunday evenings in the chapel, State street, a series of familiar discourses on the services of the Christian year. Service will commence at 7 1-2 o'clock.

This little girl was riding with her mother and came to a railroad crossing where a shifting engine crossing the track, returned and crossed again, finally returning to its original starting point. The little miss viewed with wonder the singular movements of the locomotive, and at last burst out with the query: "Mamma! Did it forget where it was going?"

Parties who are now doing a large business in raking oysters at Great Bay state that from appearances there are at least 5,000 bushels of the bivalves in the beds between the Concord railroad bridge and the Newmarket toll bridge.

The U. S. Steamer Marion didn't sail on Wednesday, because about six o'clock in the morning a ring on the buoy to which she was moored, off the navy yard, and which was secured to a chain strongly anchored at the bottom of the river, gave way, the Marion drifting two lengths and settling her stern on a ledge at Pumpkin Island. By "fleeting" her armament forward, less damage was done by straining than might have been expected, and she was pulled off Wednesday evening by the speedwell.

The democratic Councillor convention which met in this city on the 19th nominated William Rand of Rochester as a candidate for Councillor. H. H. Metcalf, of Dover, and Layfayette Hall, of Durham, were chosen delegates to the National convention, with Marcellus Eldredge, of Portsmouth, and Alfred Hoitt, of Durham, as alternates. The selection of Mr. Metcalf (who is editor of the Dover Press,) as one of the delegates is a heavy blow to Joshua H. Foster, of the Jones-Sinclair ring.

—A bit of sparkling after-dinner wit that deserves preservation was dispensed at the Apyrus Club dinner, Saturday afternoon. The President, in giving the health of Gov. Rice, made a delicate allusion to the fact that at His Excellency was a paper maker before he was Governor, and that he was therefore entitled to a cordial welcome at the hands of a Club so largely composed of journalists and lawyers. In his graceful response to the toast, the Governor said it was most true that he made paper, "and furthermore," said he, smiling upon the scribblers who surrounded him, "I am not the habit of spoiling it by writing on it." Ex-Gov. Gaston subsequently gave a fresh glloring to the Governor's joke by confessing that he had spoiled more paper than he had made, and to that fact he thought he might attribute his being out of office and Governor Rice in.—Boston Post.

—Paris levies a tax which has indirectly preserved her asphalt pavements from destruction. The municipality levies a graduated tax on wheel tires, which is heavy on a narrow ones and almost nothing on the dry broad, The latter are therefore almost exclusively used, and consequently no ruts are worn in the streets.

—Here is an item of "society gossip" from the Indianapolis Sentinel: "The way some of the Grangers waltzed their gally dressed girls up to the bar of the Occidental Hotel, last night, and threw ale into them, would have astonished a camp-meeting and made a lemonade-stand at a circus look."

Ben. Hill's Speech.

BEFORE REVISION AND AFTER.

Before—The atrocities at Andersonville do not compare with the atrocities of Elmira, of Fort Douglas, or of Fort Delaware; and of all the atrocities, both at Andersonville and Elmira, the confederate government stands acquitted from all responsibility and blame.

After—The mortality at Andersonville and other confederate prisons falls short by more than three per cent. of the mortality in Federal prisons.

Before—But you gentlemen who persecuted us by your infidelities until you drove us out of the Union, you who then claimed to be the only friends of the Union, which you had before denounced as "a league with hell and a covenant with death," you who follow up the war when the soldiers who fought it have made peace and gone to their homes, to you we have no concessions to make. Martyrs owe no apologies to tyrants.

After—But to you, gentlemen, who seek still to continue strife, and who, not satisfied with the sufferings already endured, the blood already shed, the waste already committed, insist that we shall be treated as criminals and oppressed victims, only because we defended our convictions—to you we make no concessions.

Asking Pardon of Rebels.

[Chicago Times.]

The proposition to ask pardon of seven hundred and fifty more of them, and invite them, without a sign of repentance or a promise of future good behavior, to come forward and take office, is presuming too much upon the good nature of people who are not fools. On this point Mr. Blaine and there publican majority were as wrong, last winter, as Mr. Randall and the confederate majority are this winter. The bill, last winter, to invite Jeff. Davis, Toombs, Cobb, Semmes, and the rest of the still disabled political humbugs, back to participation in our public life, was defeated, as it ought to have been. The Sam. Randall bill, which proposed to insult the Nation by begging pardon of Jeff. Davis, instead of requiring Jeff. Davis to ask pardon and promise to behave himself properly in the future, is defeated, as it ought to be. Let the disabled old frauds alone. Of those among them who will not submit to the "humiliation" of petitioning Congress for the removal of their political disabilities, death will remove their disabilities as soon as they ought to be removed.

But between the amnesty bill of last Winter and the present Jeff. Davis scheme, the country recognizes a very remarkable difference, though the confederate politicians may not be able to perceive it. The country has been told that the object of the petrified old Bourbon politicians in seeking to get control of the National Government was a reactionary one; that their aim was to undo the results of the war, and abrogate the reforms of the Constitution; to recompense the "Southern chivalry" for their loss of their human "chattels;" or reaffirm secession and return to the practice of plantation dominion under the style of "State sovereignty;" in a word, to rehabilitate the "lost cause," and enable the plantation "chivalry" to gain in the Constitution what they failed to gain in the attempt to overturn it. The country has seen much reason to believe this to be the actual underlying political aim of the Bourbon chieftains and their old allies, the Southern chivalry. The tone of the organic Bourbon press; the language of Bourbon orators; the united voice of the reconstructed chivalry, through press and forum, these evidences of Bourbon opinion and desire have all combined to corroborate the theory that the real programme of the reunited Bourbon confederates was a reactionary programme. Whether such be the actual programme of the confederates or not, the country has believed it to be their actual programme, and in that belief has spurned them at three successive Presidential contests.

Needless Suffering.

Many persons of weakly constitution, with dyspeptic and bilious tendencies, suffer life-long bodily distress unnecessarily. Their existences are commonly shorter than those of healthier mortals, but while they last, it is usually the case that they are continually dosing themselves, or being dosed to no purpose. Could they be induced to use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for a while, strength regained, digestion restored, and the disappearance of bilious symptoms, would speedily acquaint them with the difference between a remedy which deals with causes, and those which affect symptoms merely. Not only are the Bitters a searching specific for complaints affecting the stomach, liver or intestinal canal, but they are, in consequence of their invigorative and bracing influence upon the entire physique, an admirable means of protecting the system against the atmospheric influences which beget malarial disease.

—One of the most singular objects to be displayed at the Centennial exhibition will be a section of the travelling sidewalk, an American invention for solving the problem of rapid transit in cities. This travelling sidewalk, as it is generally called, but more properly an endless railway train, will be half a mile in length, operated by stationary engines, and run at a speed of from fifteen to twenty miles an hour. The transfer seats and all other appliances will be of the same size as those intended for general use, by which means passengers may get on or off the train with ease and safety without slacking the speed of the train. A company is organizing in this city with a capital of $100,000 for the purpose of displaying this unique machine. Among its incorporators are Peter Cooper, George Hoffman, Samuel G. Courtney, Captain Spencer and R. A. Terhune. The whole work is expected to cost about $75,000, and will be operated for exhibition, with a charge to those who ride upon it. This novel mode of travel has attracted much attention of late, and charters for putting it in practice in this city were twice passed by both branches of the legislature but vetoed by Governor Dix as being an experiment. It is the purpose of the company, after the close of the exhibition, to transport the road and exhibit it in London and Paris and other cities. Mr. Spear, the inventor, grants the free use of his patent for this purpose, in order to develop it and prove the practicability of running an endless belt of cars in crowded cities without stops. He has expended a large amount of money during the last three years in trying to bring the invention favorably before the public, but he claims that he has found a majority of men treat it as they did Fulton's first steamboat on the North River, or as they doubted Morse's first idea of the telegraph.—N. Y. Tribune.

—He was unhappy. Tears rolled down his fresh, rosy cheeks as he sat there, leaning upon his hands, which were clasped in front of him. No light sorrow caused that look of anguish upon his fair young face. Bitterly he wept, but his tears seemed not to lift the load of sorrow from his heart. And as he sobbed aloud and moaned, a kind old man was passing, but stopped and asked the cause of grief in one so young and innocent. "My son, what fills thy little heart with such trouble? Hast thou lost thy mother, or has thy father been taken from thee by grim death? Or have the angels wafted thy little sister to her heavenly home?" Still he moaned and sighed, while the tears again filled his eyes. "What ails thee, child? What dost thou want?" Then he looked up. "I—I—boo-hoo, I—I've got the—the beller ache, tha'—that's wha—what I want, you yeller-haired old—old hyena, you!" And the old man shook his head sorrowfully as he passed along.—Washington Repub.

It Pays! It Pays!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer, or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

IT PAYS the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that imparts a taste for investigation, promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN

which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this to an extent beyond any other paper published, in fact it is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions, Science, and the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents contain the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World. Descriptions, with beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various trades, forms a complete repository of Useful Information and Discoveries; containing a weekly record not only of the progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Inventions in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics, and Science abroad.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the foremost of all industrial publications for the past Thirty Years. It is the oldest, largest, cheapest, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions, Science and Industrial Progress, published in the World.

The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. And for the shop and home will save many times the cost of subscription.

Merchants, Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, and People of all Professions, will find in THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office or Counting-room; in every Manufacturing Establishment, College and School. A new volume commences January 1st, 1876.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several hundred engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. Terms, $3.20 a year by mail, including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars giving Club rates sent free. Specimen copies mailed on receipt of 10 cents. Address (all of All News Dealers)

PATENTS. In connection with the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are frequently sold or exchanged, or persons attracted to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, containing full directions for obtaining Patents. A bound volume containing the Patent Laws, Census of the U. S., and 142 Engravings of mechanical movements. Price 25 cents.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading matter of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside equal to that of the Atlantic and Knickerbocker.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and squibs, are all invigorating to the mind.—Chicago Evening Journal.

CONDITION PILLS!!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon secured more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, the suffering from which was so large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks, not expecting to live. Your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any benefit from them. I commenced taking them cross, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package was sufficient to cure me of all the sickness I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have never heard one complain of being deceived, one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please send $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I suffered so much with Piles, that I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; there are some of my neighbors, who are poor, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.5o for three more packages for my friends. Yours respectfully, Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered with Neuralgia, Pains and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pains in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop or lift any weight of 10 lbs. from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer on the rest of life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep nights, and what I take to relieve Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine, but is afraid it will not stay, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think the most prove a blessing to thousands who will be indebted to you for them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages. Yours respectfully, MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Bronchitis and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for fear of your having run out of Pills. That bronchial and Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with my thanks to God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have recommended them in Danvers, in Andover, and in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages. MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national life with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall have a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to take the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to piece s or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national affairs the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly of the State schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into political life. In trade, commerce and production, industry there are hopes that it will witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its proven performances, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all who desire, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan necessities or personal or sectional prejudice.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the Republican principles of which it was the champion and founder, and whose success, it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banner, and the old cause, is important of caucuses or conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and must condemn the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, and the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to secure honest men, whom the country knows and can trust; to secure hard money through the return of honest money, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. This is the end that THE TRIBUNE has in view for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy lighting the Tammany Ring, and filling up the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so sustained in its endeavors to carry out the lessons of the storms of 1875 and to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much concerned for the mere names, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon some of the worst practices of the old caucus system and put forward better men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have into within two or three years gradually forced their ticks up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already conduced so much to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the practical, popular and interesting with the solid; it will keep its columns free from personal wranglings; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success has provoked from its rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally received, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has now this position by no sickly or watchful ness and the most untiring exertions to procure the fresh est intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and the most able editorials in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors are members many of the most eminent men in the country.

The Country Gentleman

POSTAGE FREE FOR 1876.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published WEEKLY on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: $2.50 Per Year for One Copy, or Five Copies, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the sender of the Club; TWENTY COPIES, $30, and an additional copy for the sender of the Club.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN possesses an unequaled Corps of Contributors, and receives, from month, among the Best Farmers of All Parts of the Country, and constantly reflects the practical condition and prospects of Agriculture, Horticulture, and the Arts of the United States and civilized world.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN gives the latest and most reliable information upon a variety of important and suggestive, equal or superior in the aggregate to what is published in the agricultural or other newspapers devoted to Horticulture.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN has probably done as much as all other agricultural papers, to introduce and disseminate Improved Stock of every kind through the country; and commands in a greater degree than any contemporary, the confidence and support of breeders and purchasers.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN contains unusually full and trustworthy Market Reports, and devotes special attention to them and to the Prospects of the Crops, to which subject it gives, during the season, a large share of its columns—When to Buy and When to Sell.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN contains numerous minor departments of a practical character, such as the Dairy, the Poultry-Yard, the Apiary, the Vineyard, and the Farm, with a separate column, or two for the Home with and an interesting variety of Fireside Reading. It contains a well-edited Review of Current Events, and its advertising pages furnish a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country.

PULMOCINE.

THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER.

PULMOCINE.

PULMONIC PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

A no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the luxurious climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredient discovered "by wandering in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot secure a more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

SMITHERS.

A CURIOUS BIT OF REVOLUTIONARY HISTORY.

I come now to state what that cause was. The day after the funeral I asked the doctor to be present while I read the will. The ladies were in a little boudoir up stairs—they had a natural horror of entering the library—and I took the keys, obtained the envelope and went up stairs.

After the will was read—the doctor denounced it as shameful—Mrs. Babington rose, and with great dignity appearing through her great mental anguish, said: "Harriet, this is no longer our house, and of course we will retire from it at once. I do not know anything about Mark Smithers; I never heard his name before. But you, Mr. Sedley, must proceed to find him at once, and make known to him my husband's bequest. Harriet and I will go to Frederick and board there until my tenant's lease of my farm is out."

"Madam," said I, "if you will be advised by me, do nothing, say nothing, till we have sifted this matter more closely. Do not let the will go to probate yet; stay where you are. Smithers may be a man of straw; he may be dead without heirs; there may be scandals to cover up we know not what. Wait till I have hunted for Smithers."

"My advice exactly," said the doctor; "wait."

"I cannot go against the counsel of friends like you," said Mrs. Babington. "I will wait, but it is very painful for me to do so under the circumstances."

"These papers which accompany the will may explain your husband's acts," said I, handing her the documents which filled the envelope; "please to read them at once."

She went to a window on the other side of the room, sat down and began to read. Presently she called out, "Harriet, come here." I saw her weeping, and the two women read and wept together. When they rose Miss Harriet left the room and Mrs. Babington, coming to me and putting the papers in my hands, said: "Read them, and find Mark Smithers at once." I can say nothing more now; I am in a dream;" and she followed her daughter from the room.

The chief paper was in Colonel Babington's large round chirography, and was as follows. I took a copy and I give it verbatim:

"On the point of destroying my life and making my property over to Mark Smithers, it is necessary to explain why I do these things. I can no longer withhold from Smithers the partial reparation I am able to make him. I should go mad if I were to attempt this. The secret I have nursed for forty-five years at last overmasters me. The man I have injured all that time at last rises up in judgment against me. But, having told my secret and shown myself in my true colors, I am too cowardly to live. I am ashamed to survive the notoriety of my disgrace. Miserable coward that I am, it is fitting that I should die!

In 1778, in the latter part of September, I became a member of the staff of General Benedict Arnold, at that time the military commandant at Philadelphia. I had been invalided to that city in consequence of a wound received at the battle of Monmouth court-house, and being a young man (I was barely twenty-three) of good presence and family, with considerable money to spend, and very extravagant habits, I attracted Arnold's attention, and he offered me the position of aide-de-camp, which I gladly accepted. Arnold at that time was cutting a great figure and spending a great deal of money. He lived in the Penn mansion in a style of splendor patterned after Sir William Howe's, drove his coach and four, entertained very handsomely and scattered money broad-cast. He was even then courting Miss Shippen, her aristocratic associations taking his vanity captive, and he gave her and her friends many superb and costly parties. It was known that he was a man of small means, while his pay did not begin to meet his wants. Still, he was only following the custom of Philadelphia at that time. The city was both corrupted and enervated by Sir William Howe's long winter-quarters there. He found it a pattern of sobriety, he left it a Sybaris; his parting festival, the Meschianza, was an orgie worthy of Rome under the Flavian emperors. Gambling and debauchery was frightfully prevalent, and large sums were daily lost at both private and public faro-tables. Amongst others I was a very heavy gamester, and after a somewhat varied fortune lost all I had, all I could borrow, and much more than I could hope to pay unless something extraordinary should happen.

This plunged me into such despondency that one day Arnold, who had been always kind to me, called me aside and asked me what ailed me. I frankly told him I had been gambling, and unless I could presently raise three thousand pounds I should be forced to resign my commission and go home to my estate, in order to sell property enough to pay what I could not but regard as a debt of honor. 'Hum!' said Arnold,—three thousand. These fellows have been plucking you, Babington. You must play no more. However, come round to my head-quarters in the morning.' I went; the general took me into his private office.

'I have no present means of my own,' he said; 'but here are three thousand pounds of the government's money which I shall not be called upon to distribute for some months. You can use it, and repay me before it will be wanted. Give me a note at hand for the amount, take the money, and keep out of such scrapes hereafter.' Full of gratitude, and never for a moment reflecting that Arnold had made me particeps criminis in an act of embezzlement, I took the money gladly and rushed off to pay my debts.

"I do not think quite a month had elapsed before Arnold sent for me. 'I am in an awkward fix,' he said. 'Here is Morris drawing upon me at three days' sight for all the money I ought to have in hand; Congress appointing a committee (at my own solicitation, made two years ago) to examine my accounts; and Reed and the whole Pennsylvania council charging me with plunder, fraud and extortion. If they can make their charges good, I am a ruined man. I'm afraid I must call on you for that three thousand. I need every penny I can put my hands on just now.' 'Good God, General!' I cried, nearly beside myself. 'I could not pay you at this short notice, not to save my life!' He frowned, looked down, seemed to ponder, then suddenly his countenance cleared up, and he looked at me in his frank, winning way. 'Well, Tom,' he said, 'if you can't, you can't, and there's the end on't. I'm sorry, for I must have money, and I do not know how to get it. Unless—see here, Tom,' he said; and he sat down right by my side, and put his hand upon my knee in a sort of frank, friendly way he had—the damned scoundrel! Every word he said, every look, every gesture, is so deeply impressed on my memory that I could not forget it if I would. 'Frankly, I am going to leave the army; it is honest, but too humdrum for me. I am going into the navy. There's the field, my boy—a French frigate, with a roving commission, and a holdful of prize-money! Glory and substantial rewards delightfully commingled! I've seen M. de Marbois about it, and he says he can make it all right with Beaumarchais; he is the French court agent, you know. I've talked with M. Gerard in the most satisfactory way, and last night I had a long conversation with M. de Luzerne, the Crapaud's envoy, and he is full of it. There is a trifling obstacle, however. I owe about twenty thousand pounds in public and private debts, and these must be paid before I can go abroad. In the next place, I can't get the French frigate unless our government pays one-third the cost of her equipment and armament, about three hundred thousand livres. Now, I know our curmudgeon Congress well enough to know it will not pay a single penny—for me. I have therefore resolved to pay every pound of it myself.' 'Yourself?' I cried. 'How can you do that, general, when you are already involved over your head and ears?' 'I can do it,' he said, 'very well, if you will assist me, and can contrive to pay your debts at the same time, and give you all the spending money you want. What say you, Tom?' It is a tempting prospect you hold out to me, general. What is to be done?' 'Something not overly honest, as the opinion of the world goes, Tom. But we can afford to despise the opinion of the world. Mens sibi conscia recti. I hold the end justifies the means, and our ends are truly patriotic. The general was a great one for sentiments. They were always upon his lips, especially when he contemplated some dastardly action. 'Tell me what is to be done, general; if I can do it I will.' 'There's no can about it,' said he, frowning; 'you must! Do you know Smithers, the engraver?' Of course I knew Smithers. His little shop on Walnut street was a great resort of our idle young officers, some of whom drew caricatures for him to engrave. 'Well, Smithers sleeps by himself in the little room over the shop. In a trunk under his bed is a copperplate, just finished, of a five-pound note, Pennsylvania currency. Smithers has in charge to engrave five of these plates by order of Reed and the council. One is finished, the others nearly done. They are to be delivered when all are finished. Smithers himself is incorruptible. I know that, or I would not apply to you in this matter. You must get me that plate.' 'I cannot do it, general,' I said. 'Nonsense!' he cried, testily; 'you shall do it by my order and under due forms of law.' 'If you order me in writing, of course I shall obey.' 'Certainly, Tom, that is what I meant.' He wrote me two orders—one to the effect that I was to take a corporal and six men, go to Smithers' house at midnight, arrest him, and take him to the guardhouse. The other order simply required me to obtain one engraved copperplate now in the possession of one Mark Smithers. I consented. Arnold immediately handed me over my I. O. U., and told me I was no longer in his debt. He then directed me to apply to Paddy Wilkins, turnkey of the provost-marshal's prison, for a guard that night.

"At the time appointed I went to Smithers' house and arrested him. He made no resistance, but, whispering in my ear, asked to have a guard set at his house, as there was government property in his possession. I told him I had no orders to that effect, and marched him off. When we had gone about four blocks and turned a corner, I left the guard, telling the corporal to go forward with his prisoner. I ran swiftly back to Smithers' house—fitting a mask over my face as I did so—entered it, lighted a dark lantern, hurried up stairs, searched the trunk, found the plate, put it into my pocket, left the house and caught up with the guard before they reached the prison.

"My prisoner delivered, I hastened to Arnold's house. He was up, and waiting for me. I put the copperplate in his hands, and with it my resignation from his staff. He looked at me with a sardonic scowl. 'Don't be hasty, Thomas,' said he; 'you had better give me those written orders, too.' 'I refuse,' I said. 'Oh, very well,' he rejoined quietly. 'Just as you please. But you had better understand that, as this business is rather informal, the less said about it the soonest mended. I do not intend to report it to the president of Congress, certainly. My friends there are over punctilious.' 'General Arnold,' I burst out, 'you, you have made me commit a deed which I would sooner lose my right arm than have done.' 'Do not be rash, Thomas; you will think more rationally about it in the morning.' 'Never, sir!' I said. 'And I bid you good-bye, now, here; I join the army again to-morrow.' 'Very good, Thomas, very good,' said he; and I left the house. As I passed over the sill I heard a window open gently and a shrill whistle given. It was very dark, and I grasped my sword-hilt as I walked rapidly on toward my quarters. As I passed a pile of lumber on a vacant lot a man sprang out and assailed me with a club. I drew my sword and thrust at him. The same time I was knocked insensible by a blow from behind. When I came to I found my pockets were rifled, and the two orders which Arnold gave me were gone. Beyond a doubt it was his own hired ruffians who did the deed.

The six guns from the Orchard Knob battery belched forth the signal, and the Army of the Cumberland sprang to its feet and moved forward out of the cover of trees and underbrush on the Orchard Knob position, and into the level, open plain that stretched away to the foot of Missionary Ridge, a mile or more distant. As the several lines broke from the cover into the plain, Bragg's artillery on the Ridge saluted them with a tremendous thunder and a storm of screeching shells. It was a magnificent spectacle. Away to the right and left the long, steady lines dwindled in the view until men and even regiments lost their individuality, and the firm ranks became, upon the dead brown level of the plain, mere stripes of blue, fringed with the glittering bayonets, and marked at decreasing intervals by the bright scarlet of the regimental colors. Upon the frowning Ridge in front of them Bragg's massed artillery belched forth incessant fire, and over their heads the air was full of the vanishing white puffs of smoke from bursting shells. The objective point—the rifle-pits at the foot of the Ridge—was silent as death till the attacking army had crossed a third of the plain, and then its few defenders jumped from their cover, and scampered nimbly up the narrow, tortuous paths to the top of the Ridge without a shot.

On went the appalling menace to Bragg's centre—the centre which, at the top of 600 feet of steep and rugged hillside, strewn with logs and brush, and cut here and there by water-washed gullies, lay behind earth-works which it seemed no foe could ever reach. The rifle-pits were gained—an almost bloodless victory, thus far, for the tremendous artillery fire had been too high throughout.

Now came the crisis in the grand war drama. The rifle-pits, as they are still called, were nothing more than a zix-zag line of logs in height, or barely two feet. Our men threw themselves flat on their faces under this line of defenses, for no sooner had they reached it than the artillery fire from the Ridge was changed to canister and shrapnel, and the infantry rained down a shower of balls. Mounted officers were compelled to instantly abandon their horses and join the men in hugging the ground behind the logs. But even there was little shelter. The artillery and infantry on the Ridge turned their fire obliquely down its face, and thus looked and enfiladed more or less completely, from one side to the other, every part of the zix-zag line of logs. The storm of shells and Enfield bullets from the Ridge was terrific, and even the stone chimneys of the huts that the builders of the log defense had occupied were sent whirling about the ears of the prostrate assailants. The din was torturing even to men accustomed to battle, and the flying missiles came so thickly that no one could raise his head. The veteran troops of the army of the Cumberland waited for no order to get themselves out of that terrible situation. There was but one thing to be done. They could not remain—they could not go back to be shot down from behind all the way across the plain. The regimental commanders, each one for himself—for no order from brigade or division commander could have been communicated to those men, with their faces to the ground, in the horrid din—called to the few men lying nearest him, and started forward up the Ridge. The enemy had not yet recovered from the effect of the audacious and unexpected advance. Had the Ridge been coolly defended it could not have been taken. But the Army of the Cumberland was in a position that set the men's souls on fire. They struggled up over the rough and obstructed hill-side, and Bragg's army saw its fate approaching. Two-thirds of the way up, the foremost assailants shot down the rebel artillerymen until their guns were abandoned, and then officers with flashing swords and men with gleaming bayonets leaped the crowning breast-works full in the faces of their dismayed defenders.

(Concluded to-morrow.)

—Rignold, the actor, is troubled about American "supes." At Chicago he interfered, and Father McVicker shook his finger at him and told him not to interfere. Rignold says these soldiers will use tobacco. "Now, you know," he adds, "they did not chew tobacco during the French campaigns of Henry V.—at least such is my impression—and it looks a little like an anachronism to see a mail-clad warrior with a quid in his cheek. I should as soon expect to see a Roman citizen with a cigar in his mouth listening to Mark Antony."

News and Notes.

A despatch from Ragusa confirms the report of the defeat of the Turks by the insurgents under Gen. Peko, and gives the following particulars: The Turks disbanded after the first attack without further resistance. The killed probably number over 300. The bulk of the survivors took refuge on a hill, where, at last accounts, they were surrounded by the whole insurgent army, 3000 strong.

Ex-Gov. Hoffman strikes the Shreveport Times of Louisiana as about the right man for the democrats to nominate for the Presidency, with ex-Senator Doolittle, ex-Senator Trumbull, or ex-Senator Henderson for the second place.

It is said that not a single member of the Minnesota Legislature was born in that State.

The only New England man who voted in the House, Monday, for Mr. Holman's resolution ordering the repeal of the resumption act, was Judge Phelps, the democratic representative of the Second Connecticut district.

There are estimated to be over 5000 daily and weekly newspapers published in the United States.

The House committee on foreign affairs called on the President recently and became convinced, all but Banks, that the President didn't expect a third term.

The principal conundrum which is now agitating the mind of the independent voter is: "If the democrats cannot do any better with a majority in the House of Representatives than they have done thus far, are they the sort of incompetents to put in charge of the Government.—New York Tribune.

Dartmouth boating men censure the decision to have the next regatta at Saratoga. The Tammanyites, it is rumored, are to have a two-cent morning in New York "to represent the interests of John Kelly."

Hon. Samuel J. Kirkwood, the new Senator-elect from Iowa for the term beginning March 4, 1877, is familiarly known in that State as the "Old War Governor." He was born in Maine, Dec. 20, 1813, and received an accademic education in Washington city. Beginning in his fourteenth year, he was employed for seven years as a druggist's clerk. In 1835 he removed to Richard county, Ohio, where he studied law, and came to the bar in 1843. For four years he was Prosecuting Attorney for the county, and as a member of the judiciary committee of the convention of 1850 contributed not a little to the State Constitution adopted in 1851. Removing to Iowa in 1855, he engaged in the double business of farming and milling near Iowa City. In 1856 he was elected to the State Senate, and served through the last session held at Iowa City and the first held at Des Moines. In 1859 he was chosen Governor over A. C. Dodge (dem.) by a majority of 2,964. His administration was so satisfactory at that critical period that he was nominated without opposition and re-elected. Among the many acts for which he is held in grateful remembrance was that of his prudent management, by which he saved the State $500,000 out of the $800,000 appropriated for defense bonds. In 1866 he was elected to the United States Senate to fill the unexpired term of James Harlan, and served on the committees on pensions and public lands. In 1867 he returned to Iowa City, and prosecuted his private business. In July, 1875, the republicans nominated him for Governor, and he was elected in October. In his gubernatorial term during the war President Lincoln offered him the mission to Denmark. He declined to accept it until the expiration of his term, and the President continued the offer until that time. Gov. Kirkwood, however, was compelled to again decline on account of private business.

General Jovellar and the newly-appointed bishop have arrived at Havana.

The publication of Charles Sumner's works has come to a stand-still, the fund left by him for completing the edition having been expended. Several volumes remain to be edited and printed.

Guy Magee, who wrote up the Bristow slanders for the Chicago Inter-Ocean, has been discharged by a vote of the stockholders.

A dispatch from London says that the Empress Augusta of Germany has sent Mrs. Dorrien Smith a gold and jewelled bracelet, and broaches to two ladies of Penzance in recognition of their kindness to the passengers and crew of the German steamship Schiller, wrecked at the Scilly islands last year.

A London dispatch says that Henry Varley, the eminent revivalist preacher, who has been very ill, is much better, and in a fair way to complete recovery.

Modesty is not a strong quality in the Ohio democrats. Last Fall they adopted a soft-money platform, and when it turned out to be disastrous they charged the blame to those democrats who refused to step on to it. Now they say Ohio will decide the next national contest, and hence the Ohio democrats must be allowed to have their way in making the ticket and platform.

The Chicago Tribune is authority for the story that on New Year's Day Mrs. Tilton refused to receive the bouquets and calls of her two daughters, who live with their father.

A Kern county (Cal.) paper says that several capitalists, who own large tracts adjoining the reclaimed land, are about to enclose 160,000 acres with a fence in one single enclosure. The fence will be 100 miles long, and will cost about $100,000. This land will be used for the present for stock, but the intention is eventually to cut it up into farms for occupation.

The man who introduced a bill in the Ohio legislature providing a fine of fifty dollars for all persons convicted of profanity was profoundly indignant when his measure was referred to the committee on imbecile youth!

An ingenious California inventor has patented a contrivance for driving sewing machines, which does away with the treadle. A number of springs are moved by clock-work and governed by a lever so nicely that the needle may be made to move at any desired rate of speed. The machine will run for about an hour and a quarter with one winding up.

The sum of $4500 was given widow Mary McGinnis, by a Brooklyn jury, whose husband was killed in an elevator accident several months ago. It was a case of gross negligence on the part of the owners of the elevator.

—At different times I saw a mouse running round my room. Always my canary would seem delighted, and would fly after him. I soon was sure that he visited "Parson's" cage every night; for the seed in the morning would be almost gone. But I did not know how very intimate the bird and the mouse were. One evening I returned home late. As I lighted my lamp, I heard a noise in the cage. I was very quiet, so as to see what was going on. The mouse was there! "Parson" was fast asleep on his perch, with his little head tucked under his wing, and one leg drawn up under his feathers. The mouse ate and drank all he wanted, not seeming to care at all for me. Then he ran up the side of the cage, and along the perch on which "Parson" was sleeping, and with his nose poked the bird in the side; and then looked at him out of his two little shining eyes. It was just as much as to say, "Wake, little sleepy, and we will play." "Parson" did not seem a bit afraid. He took his head out from under his wing, looked at Mr. Mouse, and then tucked it away again. He seemed to say, "I am too sleepy to play. Go to bed!" Then the mouse jumped to the bottom of the cage, nestled into a corner, and went to sleep. I was very much surprised at all this, and very much amused. Had I not seen it all, it would have been almost too strange to believe. But the little readers of the Nursery may rest assured it is all true. —Nursery.

—A sweet young girl went to a Cedar Rapids music store and asked the clerk, inquiringly, if he had "A Heart that Loves Me Only?" "No," he said, "but here's 'A Health to Thee Mary.'" That wouldn't do, but before she turned to go, she asked, "Have you 'One Sweet Kiss Before We Part?'" That Cedar Rapids clerk looked up and down the store; the bookkeeper was out; the boss was up stairs trying to sell a wheezy old melodion, and so he leaned over the counter, and turned about half a dozen of the best and most artistically finished articles that the astonished young lady had ever seen offered in a job lot. She didn't say much, but she went out of the store in a step and a half, and rubbed her cheeks thoughtfully all the way home. —Burlington Hawkeye.

—California has upward of 46,000,000 acres of unsurveyed lands in various parts of the State, 15,000,000 acres of which, on mountain sides, could scarcely be sold at $1.25 per acre. In some of the remote counties the township lines are not marked.

—"Why," asks an exchange, "do they bury a Japanese with his head downward when he dies?" We really don't know, unless it is because they think that's the only proper time to do it.

Jottings.

Wendell Phillips is sneered at as one ho prefers "the safer elegance of Boston" the philanthropic labor of teaching freedmen at the South. Wendell Phillips! a man whose birth placed him in the midst the aristocracy and elegance of Boston, d whose fascinating talents might have tained the highest political honors of the ountry, if he had chosen to sell himself to party! But, in the flower of his beautiful outh, he consecrated his great abilities to e poor and oppressed; and by so doing thenceforth became a target for the pavg-stones of the mob, while his name became a hissing and a reproach among the istocratic families with whom he was conected by birth and social position. And is the man twitted with preferring "the fer elegance of Boston" to labors for the awn-trodden poor!

"Wide Awake" for February contains the st paper of the joyously anticipated "Beaving" series, and a very pleasant little say it is, and full of nice little hints for others as well as daughters. Next in erest is "Garry's" letter describing Mrs. D. T. Whitney's home at Milton, Mass., t the two serials, the "Cooking Club," d "Young Rick," show no falling off in eir attractions. The remaining contents the magazine are "The Captain's Power," by H. M. Douglass: "How they ade it Up," a bright little Valentine story Mary E. Bradley; "Winney's Fancy," Annie Linton; "Among the Parsees," Fannie Roper Feudge; "One Hundred ears Ago," by Sara J. Prichard; "Dotty d Grandpa," by L. G. Warner; "How rs. John Shot the Wild Buffalo," by liver Howard; "A Pound, Sir," by B. E. ; "Hunting Eggs," by Mary D. Brine; Xochilacotzin," by Mrs. E. A. Wisewall; An Hour at Malliard's," by Ida B. Robts; "How Dorr Fought," by Salome; Concerning Rats," by L. R. L.; "Winket's alentine," by Patty Kingman; "An After hristmas Tale," by Fanny Parker; "Parr Pastimes," by Kitty Clover; and "Our usic Page," by Dr. E. Tourjee.

Arthur P. Devlin lectured Wednesday vening in the City Hall, at Dover on "Romanism in America." After the lecture a owd followed him to the hotel. On his ay he fled into Vickery's drug store for afety, when brickbats were thrown through e windows, and the Mayor was compelled to read the riot act. The police finally succeeded in getting him to the American House, not, however, without being ompelled to use their revolvers. No one as injured.

The Circuit Court adjourned from Exeter this city on Wednesday to hear several ses in which Portsmouth parties were interested. The cases of Mary G. Brewster d Lewis W. Brewster, executors of Chas. Brewster, vs. Calvin Page, administrator of George G. Brewster's estate, was heard and Walker vs. Dodge, were heard. he following divorces were decreed: Olive A. Stokell from Chas. E. Stokell. Deborah B. Leighton from John J. Leighton; Elizabeth A. Frost from John C. Frost.

At the Board of Trade meeting on Wednesday evening, Messrs. T. E. O. Marston, William R. Foster and John H. Wells were appointed to submit charges in the constitution and by-laws. Mr. John W. Caswell was admitted as a member. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: William H. Sise, President; Thomas H. Odion, Alfred Stavers, Samuel Adams, Vice Presidents; Frank W. Miller, Secretary; Oliver M. Knight, Correspondng Secretary; Henry M. Clark, Treasurer; Frank W. Miller, John H. Wells, J. Woodman Moses, William R. Preston, Joseph P. Morse, Joseph H. Foster, Edmund M. Brown, John H. Hutchinson, Jeremiah F. Hall, Isaiah Wilson, Hartley W. Mason, Jerome C. Butler, Directors.

—The Scientific American discusses hanging as a mode of capital punishment, and proposes a substitution of electricity r the gallows. The lightning stroke uses the most certain and painless death nown to science. A powerful discharge electricity into the body of the condemned from a battery, and Rumhkorff coil ould amount to the same thing in extinguishing life. This is the way in which the Scientific American would have executions conducted: "The battery and coil should of sufficient strength to deliver an eighteen inch spark. In case of there being ore than one person to execute, all of the condemned would be conducted with all e ceremony to the place of execution, e left hand of one man would be handffed to the right hand of his neighbor, d the conducting wire fastened to braces on the disengaged wrists of both criminals, if only two are to be executed, or to e wrists of the outer men if more than at number are to suffer. The culprits being seated so as to be seen by the legal nesses, the sheriff presses a button. The rrent is instantly established from the ll, passes through the bodies of the men, d all is over.

—Some time ago two London thieves put practice a plan of robbing a jeweler, which had been described in a story in a popular periodical—a piece of pure invention. The jeweler was furious (he lost $40,000, so it was excusable,) and wrote to the editor of the magazine, asking him if it were his mission to instruct thieves in new ways of plundering the public. "My dear sir," replied the editor, blandly, "if you had taken my periodical (which I hope in the future you will do,) you would have been put upon your guard. This comes of neglecting the claims of literature."

—An amusing incident lately occurred in a fashionable boarding house in Louisville. A man refused to pay his bill or go away until the month for which he had bargained had expired. The landlady was told by the lawyers that the money was not legally due until the end of the month, and that she must fulfil her part of the contract before she could sue him. She next took the case into her own hands, put damp sheets on his bed, fed him on the poorest viands and put a whining puppy in the room next to his. He retreated after three days' endurance.

—"Bet half a dollar I shall fall down! Bet a dollar I shall fall!" murmured an old chap last evening, as, loaded to the muzzle with forty rod whiskey, he was reeling his way down Smith street. "Bet half a dol—" Just here the old boy's heels flew so high in the air that his head and shoulders beat them back to the ground. Rising to a sitting posture, he took up his hat, rubbed the back of his head, and then said: "Won the money, by thunder! And it is the first money I've won this winter!"

—How on earth does it happen that a man's socks get under the bed every night? If he leaves them on a chair in the hall, he dresses to find them under the bed, or one under the bed and the other behind the bureau. Is it right for a dignified man to get down on all-fours and rake his spine on the bed-rail and grab and grab?—Detroit Free Press.

—The Baroda authorities welcomed the Prince of Wales with ten real cherubs, young Barodians, fixed on a bridge, thoroughly white-washed, with gilt wings attached to their shoulders, flowing auburn wigs on their heads, and in each right hand a long white wand.

—"Ma," said a young Brooklynite, as he stood before a looking glass wrestling with a shirt collar, "I shall be twenty-four years old to-morrow, and when I reflect that I never had a shirt to fit me in the neck, it seems as if my life had been a failure."

—A fashionable amusement in Boston is painting in silk and velvet. Rich women, with time hanging heavily on their hands, have betaken themselves to decorating fans, toilet cushions, hand and fire screens, campchairs and sofa covers.

—Wanted, to find an old widower that didn't think a respectable widow, only a few years his senior, far too old for his notice, and who didn't think himself the most perfect match for the bonniest maiden in the land.

—A bald man was sadly astonished to find his French barber's charges too big: "Ten francs," exclaimed he, "for cutting my hair!" "Oh, no, monsieur, not for cutting your hair, but for finding de hair to cut."

—"If you don't want your wife to bother you every day with the remark, "Don't forget that worsted," just mention to her the pretty girl who tends the worsted counter where you got the last.

—A story comes from Rocky Hill, Conn., that the ice on a pond in that vicinity is literally covered with worms, about one inch in length, of a reddish color on the under side and gray on the back.

—It is intimated that the reason why General Schenck does not come back is, that General Grant is not strong enough to "call" him.—New Orleans Times.

—Don't spend all your money on the Centennial, because the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America is coming along in fifteen years.

—There is a decree forbidding a Viennese beer dealer to deal out from below a certain mark on the glass.

—The marriage of Miss Clara Louise Kellogg to Mr. Bradish Johnson will take place during Easter.

Needless Suffering.

Many persons of weakly constitution, with dyspeptic and bilious tendencies, suffer life-long bodily distress unnecessarily. Their existences are commonly shorter than those of healthier mortals, but while they last, it is usually the case that they are continually doing themselves, or being dosed to no purpose. Could they be induced to use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for a while, strength regained, digestion restored, and the disappearance of bilious symptoms, would speedily acquaint them with the difference between a remedy which deals with causes, and those which affect symptoms merely. Not only are the Bitters a searching specific for complaints affecting the stomach, liver or intestinal canal, but they are, in consequence of their invigorative and bracing influence upon the entire physique an admirable means of protecting the system against the atmospheric influences which beget malarial disease.

"If ever I cease to love" Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam, I shall prove ungrateful to one of the best remedies on earth.

AT

HENDERSON'S.

The parties who had agreed to purchase my stock of Dry Goods on the first of January, not being able to meet their engagements, the stock is still left in my hands, which seriously interferes with the business arrangements I had made.

I have therefore determined to give the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity a rousing benefit. To make quick work of it, I propose the following inducements to purchasers of Dry Goods:

A Present to every Customer

buying One Dollar's worth of goods.

A Better Present to every customer buying Two Dollars' worth.

A still Better One to every customer buying Five Dollars' worth.

An Elegant Present to every customer buying Ten Dollars' worth.

Every customer buying One Dollar's worth or more, is sure of a Valuable Present.

In addition to all this, one in every twenty-five packages containing a present, also contains a check entitling the lucky holder to the

Elegant Chamber Set

IN MY WINDOW

VALUED AT 55 DOLLARS.

ONE-HALF BARREL FLOUR,

LADIES' ROCKING CHAIR,

ONE BOX RAISINS,

ONE BARREL POTATOES,

ONE BARREL APPLES,

And lots of other merchandise to eat and to wear.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT AT THE HEAD OF THIS COLUMN IS AN ACTUAL FACT!

The amount of presents to be given away is equal to just one-half the amount of the value of the goods sold.

The Grandest Dry Goods sale ever heard of,—offering better inducements even than Lovering in his celebrated book sale.

We don't all want a book, but we all need Dry Goods, and in purchasing of me you get your goods as low as can be bought in Portsmouth with all the additional inducements thrown in.

☞ Everything will be conducted squarely and everything advertised will be carried out.

No person in the store knows the package containing the checks for the larger presents, and the only condition we exact from the persons receiving them is the privilege of publishing their names, simply to satisfy the public that the goods are given away as advertised.

Daily Chronicle.

—The new employes at the Capitol are rapidly growing into disfavor with the public. A short time since a gentleman stepped into the folding-room and inquired for a certain bill. The employe accosted, straightened up, and, looking quite as important as a lord, said, "What kind of a thing is the bill you want? Is it a pamphlet kind of a thing? If so, I reckon you will find it up stairs in the document-room. You just go up and ask one of those blue-coated, brass-buttoned, bull-headed boun-cers, and he'll tell you where the room is, may be so, I reckon," and the intellectual specimen of an unfortunate creation seemed thoroughly impressed with the idea that he had done something exceedingly smart. When we think of the scarcity of thunderbolts, and of the abundance of such items of mortality, the moisture of sorrow will come.—Washington Republican.

—To be admired—the moral courage of a man who dares to wear any overcoat but an Ulster.

—Paris has thirty-three theatres.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are so compounded from concentrated principles, extracted from roots and herbs, as to combine in each small granule, scarcely larger than a mustard seed, as much cathartic power as is contained in any larger pills for sale in drug-stores. Yet they are as pleasant to take, and their operation is easy—unattended with any griping pain. They operate without producing any constitutional disturbance. Unlike other cathartics, they do not render the bowels costive after operation, but, on the contrary, they establish a permanently healthy action. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them.

$500 Reward is offered by the Proprietor to any one who will detect in these Pellets any calomel or other form of mercury, mineral poison, or injurious drug.

They are sold by Druggists.

It Pays! It Pays!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer, or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

IT PAYS the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN

which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this to an extent beyond that of any other publication, in fact is the only weekly paper devoted to Science, Mechanics, Inventions and new discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial Pursuits, and scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, Improved industries of all kinds; Useful Social Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts, forming a complete repertory of New Inventions and Discoveries, containing a weekly record not only of the progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Improvements in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics, and Science abroad.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the foremost of all industrial publications for the past Thirty Years. It is the most popular, the most widely circulated, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions, Science and Industrial Progress, published in the World.

The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. And for the above and some other reasons, it will save many times the cost of subscription.

Merchants, Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, and People of all Professions, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College and School. A new volume commences January 1st, 1876.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several hundred engravings. Terms, $3 a year. Discount to a year by mail, including postage. Discount to Clubs. Specimen copies sent for 10 cents. Back volumes sent free. Single copies mailed on receipt of 10 cents. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. In connection with the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, Messrs. Munn & Co. are solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Machines examined and advice free. A special notice is made in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold by part or whole, to persons attracted to the Invention by the Notice. Send for Pamphlet, containing full directions for obtaining Patents. A bound volume containing the Patent Laws, Decisions of the U. S. and Attorney General, Patent Office Rulings, and 132 Engravings of mechanical movements. Price 25 cents.

Notices of the Press.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates and endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tempting designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading matter of the Bazar is equally worthy of commendation. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and epistles, are all invigorating to the mind.—Chicago Evening Journal.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874. Before the close of the first year, the their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and a steady stream of testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 5, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can inform you that the first pill I took seemed to do me good. I have taken about half of them, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can inform you that they are just the orders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Give me a package for my use." I am sold many what good they have done and are doing. I had the liver complaint so bad that I thought I could not stand it much longer. I have tried everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials you say that you would give ten dollars a pill, but I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have spent over $1,000 in the great deal for medicine, which did me good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Gazette gratuitously. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as any man. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered with inflammation of the Bowels and Constipation, and wants to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not for ten times the price of them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, and wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute to your medicine. I have sent two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockdale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I sent $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the foundation of our Republic. We shall celebrate our hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which promise to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is now under control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. In course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many problems to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the State schools, will provoke sharp discussion and lead to important results. In politics, in trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes that it will witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals for a share of public record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan necessities or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will labor for the cause of the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are practised under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of assumed or convenient; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of either. In giving the news it will endeavor to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics it will make its great object to elect honest men, whom the country knows and can trust, and secure hard money. Administrative reform, such economy in public expenditure as will permit and compel the payment of our debts, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the spiritual hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and is earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an Administration in Washington which is now fairly reforming the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and inspiring the country with a belief that the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the events of 1876 as to command respect, confidence, and command yet greater approval.

One reason for this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been that both parties have disappointed us, and in abandon some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the reforms so long and so vainly urged by those who are conscientious and independent voters have usually thinks two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to I for for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will continue to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wranglings; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve its space for larger interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the patronage it has so generously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 its position was assailed by several foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watchfulness and the most liberal expenditure to procure the fresh news of the world, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. It has had more than its share of accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

The Country Gentleman

POSTAGE FREE FOR 1876.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published WEEKLY on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the club to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published on an unequaled Corps of Correspondents, regular and occasional, among the Farmers and Planters of the Country, and constantly reflects the practical condition and progress of the husbandry of every section of the United States and the civilized world.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN gives its Horticultural Department a continuous variety of information and suggestions, and presents in the aggregate to what is obtained in the monthly numbers of most other Horticultural journals.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN has probably done as much as all other Journals combined, to introduce the improved implements of tillage, and to spread them through the country; and commands to a greater degree than any contemporary, the confidence and support of practical farmers and planters.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN contains unusually full and trustworthy reports of Markets, and gives special attention to them and to the Prospects of the Crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of the Delicate Questions of Commerce.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN embraces numerous minor departments of Rural Economy, such as the Dairy, the Poultry-Yard, the Apiary, the Vineyard, and so on, and weekly presents a column or two for the Housewife and an interesting variety of Fireside Reading. It contains a well-edited Review of Current Events, and its advertising pages furnish a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing to its favor.

In the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Tonic, powerful, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages of the choicest literary matter, embellished with 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great pains and expense will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments—Stories, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will appear, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE

AN ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY OF

is unsurpassed in any department, and unequalled in the richness of its material and the beauty of its typography. The handsomest, and one of the best and most entertaining of the monthlies.

The New Volume, commencing with the January issue, will be replete with most attractive features. No advance will be spared to make it the most attractive and popular literary magazine, and one of the most entertaining and instructive companions of POPULAR READING.

The contributions now on hand, or specially engaged, embrace an unusually attractive list of Tales, Short Stories, Narratives, Descriptive Sketches, Papers on Science and Art, Poems, Popular Essays, Literary Criticisms, etc., etc., By Talented and Well-Known Writers.

In fact, all possible means are being taken to supply the public, through its favorite journal, with a popular and yet refined type of LITERARY ENJOYMENT.

One of the attractive features of the new year will be a series of illustrated articles entitled

THE CENTURY;

Its Fruits and its Festival, which will present a summary of the progress of civilization, and advancement in the arts and sciences since the Revolution, together with a complete record of the Proceedings of the CENTENNIAL EXHIBITION, fully illustrated.

Port Royal will henceforth be designated officially as a United States naval station. Its adaptability to the wants of the North and South Atlantic squadrons is most admirable. The harbor is one of the largest and most sheltered along the entire coast. Port Royal Bar is situated between Charleston and Savannah, on the 32d degree of north latitude, 3 minutes and 46 seconds; longitude 80 degrees, 30 minutes and 46 seconds. There are three entrances to the harbor; one 17 feet in depth and a little over 300 yards in width, another 19 feet in depth and about 1,200 yards in width, and a third 20 feet in depth and about 300 yards wide.

There are two tributaries to the harbor. Broad river, having a wide channel and an average depth of five fathoms for nearly twenty-seven miles, and Beaufort river, with a depth of seventeen feet to within three miles of Beaufort and thence about fourteen.

For three or four years the settlement of Port Royal, twelve miles back from the harbor, has been regarded as the "New City of the South," in consequence of its designation as the eastern terminus of the shortest line of railway to be constructed from the Mississippi river to the Atlantic ocean. This railroad scheme has in view the union of the North Atlantic and North Pacific oceans, San Diego, Cal., being the western terminus of the line. From Port Royal the railway is to extend through the heart of the cotton States—Georgia, Alabama, and Mississippi; through the northern portion of Lousiana, Texas, and New Mexico, crossing the Rio Colorado near its junction with the Gulf of California, and striking the Pacific coast at San Diego, which also has a magnificent harbor.

As the Gulf stream runs immediately in front of the mouth of the harbor, vessels will be quite free from the extreme cold and boisterous weather of the northern stations. Much work is now necessary in the way of shops, etc. For the present, instead of a special building, a commodious vessel will be anchored here, to be devoted to hospital purposes, and the construction of buildings will be advanced as speedily as the appropriations will permit.

—The treatment of horses is an art, and but little understood generally, and where understood not always practised, so that our horses are pretty well abused animals. This is not only wrong, but a loss, and a considerable one. Treat a horse well always, from colthood up, and it is remarkable how much labor may be got out of him. Treat him, first, kindly; never overfeed him, particularly with grain. Have a warm, ventilated stable for him, soft and dry. Feed him regularly; keep him clean; and never overstrain him, not even once. He will then be a servant for you for a long time. You will get from a quarter to a third more time and labor out of him, and this the same horse already practised and broke to your hand, not needing to be renewed in the young horse that is to supply, prematurely, his place.

—The pomegranate is one of the most profitable fruits grown in this valley. The trees bear fruit in three years from the cuttings, and will grow on the most ordinary soil without irrigation. The pomegranate is a delicious fruit and possesses medicinal qualities of great value. It will bear shipment better than any other fruit. It may be barreled up and sent around the globe in good order. The retail price of the pomegranate on the street is ten cents apiece, and General Stoneman informs us that he has a standing offer from a San Francisco firm to take all the pomegranate he can produce at five cents apiece.—*Los Angelos (Cal.) AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

SMITHERS.

A CURIOUS BIT OF REVOLUTIONARY HISTORY.

[Lippincott's Magazine.]

(Concluded.)

"The wound on my head kept me in bed for a fortnight. When I recovered I found that Smithers had been released the next morning after the arrest, on the ground that the arrest was an unauthorized act of mine. I inquired for the corporals of the guard. They had been sent to the Southern army. I went to Smithers' place; he called me into his back shop, and without further remark or any allusion to the robbery gave me one of my gloves, which he said he had found in his bedroom when he was released. The glove I had on when I was knocked down and robbed, and all these circumstances satisfied me that Arnold had so woven the coils about me that if there were anything said about the stolen plates I should be convicted as the sole guilty party. Frightened and sick, I gave Philadelphia my conge, and went to join Washington's army.

"Sometime in January, 1779—I think it was—there was a great outcry about counterfeited and over-issued currency in Philadelphia, and in the midst of it Smithers was arrested and cast into prison. I heard that he was to be tried by summary process, and if convicted would be executed at once. I immediately sought an audience of his excellency the commander-in-chief, General Washington, and confessed to him everything, telling him all that I have here related. He listened to me with grave attention, told me the matter should be looked into closely and put me upon my parole to await the result of the inquiry. I heard afterward that he wrote at once to Mr. Richard H. Lee, and that Congress made the matter a subject of secret investigation. About three weeks later his excellency sent for me again, and told me that for reasons of public policy my charges were not to be pursued further, but that it had been ascertained, in a general way, that my statements were probably correct, that Smithers was an innocent man, and no harm should happen to him except his detention in prison two or three months longer. I was ordered meantime to keep strict silence about the matter.

"I told the general that I would do so, but I was bent on repaying the government the three thousand pounds which Arnold had lent me, and for that purpose asked leave of absence to go to my home for a few days, and after that a transfer to the Southern department, where I might have a chance to retrieve my tarnished name. The general said I might return the money through him and he would transfer me to Lincoln's army and a theatre of very active war. Then after some stern but kindly words upon my late career in Philadelphia, and the dangers I had only just escaped, he dismissed me, humiliated, but hopeful and very grateful.

"I went home, raised the money, sent it to General Washington, and then started to join the Southern army. Meantime, in March, Arnold resigned his command at Philadelphia, went to West Point, and immediately began his correspondence with Sir Henry Clinton—that correspondence which ended in his treason and Andre's death. Smithers was released in June, and left Philadelphia.

I did not see General Washington until after the siege of Yorktown. By that time I had risen to the rank of lieutenant-colonel, had done rather more than my share of the hardest kind of fighting and won some distinction by my rigid attention to duty. This much his excellency was pleased to tell me when he sent for me to come to his quarters after Cornwallis had surrendered. At the same time he said that he had had a letter from Smithers, representing his condition to be deplorable in the extreme. Suspected of being a traitor to his adopted country, he was persecuted and insulted, could get no work to do, and was wretchedly poor. 'The reasons of state,' the general added, looking me steadily in the face, 'no longer exist which forbade making the facts public. Since Arnold's treason was developed the way has been clear for you to completely restore that unhappy man to the confidence of his fellow-citizens. He is an honest though humble patriot, and has suffered in silence for the good of our cause. I think you know what is incumbent upon you to do as a man of honor and principle. I will not dictate to you, but will leave it entirely with your conscience.'

"Good God! Had I but acted then according to the dictates of my conscience and as a man of honor and principle would have done, I should have spared myself more than forty years of misery, and this shameful death I am coming to in the end. But I was ambitious: I dreaded the consequences of the exposure I should have to make; I weighed myself and my position, my wealth and my importance in the army and in the community, against the insignificance of the poor mechanic. I temporized, and I was lost. I asked the general to give me leave of absence, and told him I would go to see Smithers.

"He was not in Philadelphia. His shop and goods had been sold out at sheriff's sale, and he had moved away. I found him in Reading following the trade of a locksmith. His haggard face and mean clothes and surroundings bespoke his poverty, while his cowed and dejected aspect told me it once that his spirits were completely broken. I stated my case to him, told him what Washington had recommended, and asked him to have mercy. He said he did not blame me, did not want to injure me, for he knew, from having former dealings with the traitor, that Arnold was at the bottom of the whole affair; but what was he to do? How was he to live? His good name was gone, and now people would not employ him, and he should starve. I eagerly met him at this point, and told him if he would keep silence himself, and not require any public confession of me, I would make him an allowance of five hundred dollars a year during his natural life. He accepted the bribe, and we arranged all the preliminaries. I was to pay the money through an attorney in Philadelphia, who was to remit it to a designated agent of Smithers in Reading or wherever else he might reside. At my request, he gave me an open letter to Washington in which he firmly declined to permit me to sacrifice my newly acquired reputation in the vain hope to restore his. I sent his note to the general, with one of my own, explaining the terms of agreement. Washington simply returned Smithers' letter to me with the endorsement, 'I do not object to this, but you will regret it all your life. G. W.'

"He was a true prophet. Smithers has darkened my whole life, and his shadow has fallen along the entire course of my prosperity. I paid the money regularly; I scrupulously avoided all intercourse with him—it was part of the agreement that he should not attempt to visit or communicate with me—but I could never dismiss his image from my mind, nor tear out the barbed shaft of shame and remorse that festers in my heart. Well, well, it will soon be out now.

"The other day, not two months ago, I learned that the Philadelphia lawyer who was my trustee in this business was a dishonest man, and it was likely he had not dealt fairly with me and Smithers, though I paid him well for so doing. Shocked and dismayed, I instituted immediate inquiries in Reading. The truth was ten thousand times worse than my worst apprehensions. The lawyer had paid the full sum for two or three years; then he began to cut it down, upon one pretext or another, until latterly the whole of it, save a beggarly fifty dollars or so, had lodged in his pocket. Last year only twenty-five dollars had been paid, and my victim, old, infirm, helpless, was in the poorhouse! Yet he had never complained, never asserted his rights, never spoken through it at all. God help me! It was late, but I determined then at once what to do. I have nearly completed this tardy act of duty. This confession and my will consummate it. There is no more for me to say but to ask pardon of my fellow-citizens who have so long honored me with their confidence and esteem. When they read this acknowledgement of my shame I shall have already sealed the sincerity of my sense of disgrace in death.

THOMAS BABINGTON."

The other papers in the envelope were letters and other originals corroborating Colonel Babington's narrative. It was agreed between the doctor and me that nothing could be done till I had seen Mark Smithers. I accordingly put Babington's statement and a copy of his will in my pocket, and started for Reading that night.

I found Smithers. He was not in the almshouse, but farmed out by the poor authorities of the place, and living in a poor but cleanly house, with an old German couple, who seemed to treat him not unkindly. Smithers was a little, bent old man, hard upon eighty years of age, and not able to use his legs through chronic rheumatism. He had a long fleece of white hair and beard, a subdued, patient expression of face, and an eye full of intelligence and kindly interest in things around him. I found him busy whittling shoe-pegs, and I learned that he was industrious and hopeful, and that he had quite outlived the original blight upon his character.

As soon as I could get to be alone with him I read him Colonel Babington's narrative, and he will also. When I had finished the tears were rolling down his cheeks: "That is all wrong, sir—all wrong. It must be stopped, prevented. Mischief enough has been done already." (I had apprised him of Colonel Babington's death, as also the manner of it.) "Colonel Banington owed me no debt, and I will not take his property from his wife and daughter. I did think a little hard of the decrease in the allowance, but the lawyer's explanation, that Babington had grown poor from unfortunate speculations, was perfectly satisfactory. That story of his must not be published, Mr. Sedley: it must not, indeed. He exaggerates about himself and about me. Things were not near so bad as he makes out. Burn that statement, and make an end of it at once."

"Oh, no," I said: "We must first see Mrs. Babington about it. You must come with me, and see your property."

"Indeed, sir," said the old man with simple dignity, "you are very much mistaken in me if you suppose I will touch a dollar or an acre of that property."

"But it is yours, willed to you, and the testator is dead. Even if you should not take it, your heirs could and would."

"I have no heirs."

"You have kinsfolk, no matter how remote, and they will be quick to find you out when you inherit property."

"This must be stopped—at once!" he said eagerly: "tell me how to do it."

"You can let the will be executed, and then convey it back to the legitimate heirs by deed of gift; you can except the property and sell it back; or you can will it to them at your death. But you can do nothing at all here. You must go to Frederick and see Mrs. Babington before you can take a single step."

"Come, let us go then at once," he cried. "I am old, I am feeble, I am liable to die to-morrow—to-night. This matter must be promptly attended to. It weighs on me. Let us go."

I secured a comfortable close carriage, and traveling short stages—for I dreaded the effects of fatigue and excitement upon the old man—I soon had him at Independence Hill. It was beautiful to see how Colonel Babington's widow and daughter treated him. They seemed as if they wished to try all at once to make up to him the forty years of obloquy and injustice he had endured. But all his thoughts were for settlement. He wanted Babington's narrative destroyed. I took a copy and allowed him to do it himself. Then he wanted to make the property over by deed of gift at once. But Mrs. Babington and Harriet would not consent to this, and finally we compromised the matter by recording Babington's will and putting Smithers in possession of the property, he at the same time executing his own will devising the estate back to Mrs. Babington and Harriet. He would only consent to this arrangement, however, upon the understanding that he was to be only pro forma in possession: the property was actually to remain where it was, and he to be received at Independence Hall as an humble guest.

A delightful guest he proved to be. His mind freed from business cares and roused from its old-time apathy, he revealed himself as a chirrupy, merry old man, sound and healthy as a winter pippin. He called Mrs. Babington and Miss Harriet his "children," and did more than any one else possibly could have done to pluck them out of the gulf of misery into which the late events had plunged them. They, in return paid him not only attention, but affection and devotion. He lived with them five years, an honored and cherished guest, and died at last in their arms, full of years, sweet peace, and gratitude and affection for those who had brought it to him.

MISSIONARY RIDGE.

[R. L. Kimberly in N. Y. Times.]

We may have some day a Napier to write the history of the great battles of the rebellion, but his name will hardly be Kilpatrick. Do you care to publish, for the sake of truth of history, an account of what one man saw of the battle of Missionary Ridge? The narrative I give can be verified by the testimony of many officers of the Army o the Cumberland, and much of it by thousands of the soldiers of that Army.

First, as to my opportunities for observation—for I shall assert nothing that I do not know by either seeing or hearing it. In the assault on Missionary Ridge I had the honor to command two regiments (Forty-first and Ninety-third Ohio Volunteers) in Hazen's brigade, of Wood's division. It was my command that captured the Twenty-eighth Alabama and its works on Orchard Knob, where General Grant afterward made his headquarters during the battle. To this latter fact I owed my excellent opportunities for observing the movements and hearing many orders up to the moment of the attack on the Ridge. From this position the long stretch of Missionary Ridge toward Rossville could be plainly seen, while toward the Tennessee River the smoke of Sherman's fight was visible some miles away.

Our troops lay quietly along the Orchard Knob Ridge till the middle of the afternoon. For two or three hours before that time we saw Bragg's infantry hurrying along the crest of Missionary Ridge toward Sherman's fight. It was evident enough that Bragg was trusting to his apparently impregnable position on the Ridge in our front, and sending large bodies of troops to protect his more vulnerable flank, where Sherman was vigorously pressing him. Long before the Army of the Cumberland was ordered to move, the necessity of making some diversion in Sherman's favor was discussed among the general officers congregated about Grant's headquarters. The common understanding was that Sherman was expected to turn the Ridge on the enemy's right; but we could see that by the middle of the day his progress had ceased, while the hurrying of Bragg's troops along the Ridge in our front gave rise to a fear that Sherman would be overwhelmed. Everybody, therefore, was prepared for the order to advance and "take the rifle-pits at the foot of the Ridge." That was the order exactly as it was communicated to division and brigade commanders, who were instructed to move at the signal of three guns from the battery on Orchard Knob. It was to be an audacious menace of the enemy's centre, to compel him to recall the troops he was sending against Sherman, or at least to stop the sending of more troops in that direction. Sherman was not turning the enemy's flank, but on the contrary was apparently having a hard time of it in maintaining his position. I wish to call special attention to this understanding of the situation by the subordinate commanders of Granger's corps, after they had received the order to move at the signal, and were to receive no further orders before moving. It was to be a menace of Bragg's centre by an attack on the rifle-pits at the foot of the Ridge.

The six guns from the Orchard Knob battery belched forth the signal, and the Army of the Cumberland sprang to its feet and moved forward out of the cover of trees and underbrush on the Orchard Knob position, and into the level, open plain that stretched away to the foot of Missionary Ridge, a mile or more distant. As the several lines broke from the cover into the plain, Bragg's artillery on the Ridge saluted them with a tremendous thunder and a storm of screeching shells. It was a magnificent spectacle. Away to the right and left the long, steady lines dwindled in the view until men and even regiments lost their individuality, and the firm ranks became, upon the dead brown level of the plain, mere stripes of blue, fringed with the glittering bayonets, and marked at decreasing intervals by the bright scarlet of the regimental colors. Upon the frowning Ridge in front of them Bragg's massed artillery belched forth incessant fire, and over their heads the air was full of the vanishing white puffs of smoke from bursting shells. The objective point—the rifle-pits at the foot of the Ridge—was silent as death till the attacking army had crossed a third of the plain, and then its few defenders jumped from their cover, and scampered nimbly up the narrow, tortuous paths to the top of the Ridge without a shot.

On went the appalling menace to Bragg's centre—the centre which, at the top of 600 feet of steep and rugged hillside, strewn with logs and brush, and cut here and there by water-washed gullies, lay behind earth-works which it seemed no foe could ever reach. The rifle-pits were gained—an almost bloodless victory, thus far, for the tremendous artillery fire had been too high throughout.

Now came the crisis in the grand war drama. The rifle-pits, as they are still called, were nothing more than a ziz-zag line of logs in height, or barely two feet. Our men threw themselves flat on their faces under this line of defenses, for no sooner had they reached it than the artillery fire from the Ridge was changed to canister and shrapnel, and the infantry rained down a shower of balls. Mounted officers were compelled to instantly abandon their horses and join the men in hugging the ground behind the logs. But even there was little shelter. The artillery and infantry on the Ridge turned their fire obliquely down its face, and thus looked and enfiladed more or less completely, from one side to the other, every part of the ziz-zag line of logs. The storm of shells and Enfield bullets from the Ridge was terrific, and even the stone chimneys of the huts that the builders of the log defense had occupied were sent whirling about the ears of the prostrate assailants. The din was torturing even to men accustomed to battle, and the flying missiles came so thickly that no one could raise his head. The veteran troops of the army of the Cumberland waited for no order to get themselves out of that terrible situation. There was but one thing to be done. They could not remain—they could not go back to be shot down from behind all the way across the plain. The regimental commanders, each one for himself—for no order from brigade or division commander could have been communicated to those men, with their faces to the ground, in the horrid din—called to the few men lying nearest him, and started forward up the Ridge. The enemy had not yet recovered from the effect of the audacious and unexpected advance. Had the Ridge been coolly defended it could not have been taken. But the Army of the Cumberland was in a position that set the men's souls on fire. They struggled up over the rough and obstructed hill-side, and Bragg's army saw its fate approaching. Two-thirds of the way up, the foremost assailants shot down the rebel artillerymen until their guns were abandoned, and then officers with flashing swords and men with gleaming bayonets leaped the crowning breast-works full in the faces of their dismayed defenders.

That is the simple story. I have told it because I wanted to show that the Army of the Cumberland did not expect to assault Missionary Ridge at its strongest part, or to do more than make a diversion in favor of Sherman, who had been sent to the chosen and presumably the most favorable point of attack. And I wanted also to demonstrate the fact that the order to take the Ridge did not come (to Wood's division at least) from army or corps or division commanders, if, indeed, such a movement was a part of the plan of the battle. The situation of the men of Wood's division—was first at the top of the Ridge—was such that no order from those commanders could have been communicated. But I have something that is, perhaps, better than my own opinion to substantiate my position on this point. When Hazen's brigade was gathering up the twenty-two pieces of rebel artillery which were its trophies on the Ridge, Gen. Wood rode in among the men. The General was almost wild with joy.

"Men!" he exclaimed to the soldiers, "men! I'm going to have you all court-martialed in the morning! You were ordered to take the rifle-pits, and here you've gone and captured the Ridge itself and all poor Bragg's artillery! I'll have you all court-martialed for disobedience of orders!"

Col. William B. Hazen, United States Army, late Major General of Volunteers, will well remember the incidents of the battle as I have narrated them. That sturdy old veteran Gen. Thomas J. Wood can never have given countenance to such a story of military tomfoolery as Kilpatrick tells of him when he represents Wood as riding along his line and asking his men, "Can you, will you take the Ridge?" And those who know gallant Sheridan will fail to recognize anything characteristic in the nonsense which Kilpatrick reports of him. Finally, I can confidently appeal to the surviving officers of Wood's division to sustain my assertion that at least that division, the first to scale the Ridge, undertook the assault in precisely the way I have stated, and upon such orders as I have noted, and upon no others. The official reports of the battle by subordinate commanders will also show this.

E. G. PIERCE, Jr., P. M.

The Navy Pay Office.

An order was received from the Navy Department, Friday, abolishing the purchase d pay office in this city. One of Frank nes' lackeys in Washington had it telegraphed to the Boston Herald that that eminent statesman had been instrumental in ving the change made in return for a little ridicule cast upon the equine establishment which Mr. Jones took to Washington convince the assembled wisdom of the ation that brains and culture are not the ly attributes that New Hampshire men e to honor. A little malice was shown, o, in the closing lines of the dispatch, erein it was stated that the second clerk the pay office, Mr. Geo. W. Marston, had en enjoying a salary of $1260 a year for veral years, during which he had rendered service to the government. The animus the dispatch was shown in this, the tements being wholly false. It was further intimated that Paymaster Clark, who s ordered to the office last July, and ief clerk John H. Cheever, were to be nished (for what?) to satisfy Mr. Jones' liguant "draught horse" appetite for reange, and that the Baltimore and Norfolk y offices were to be served in the same ay.

A glance at the changes proposed would ovince any one that the dispatch was simply a malicious fibel. Congressman Jones uld hardly care to father the abolition of pay office here, if it were in his power, t would necessitate open purchases for s navy yard at the Boston or some other y office and take the disbursement of a f million dollars per annum from s city. Paymaster Clark has not manded the pay office in the political inests of any party; neither did either of predecessors. Democratic and republan merchants would suffer alike by the ange, which would be a direct blow at their siness interests. Mr. Cheever, the chief rk, is well known as a faithful and expenced accountant, always attentive to busiss and with a reputation at the Navy Dertment of being superior in every detail the complicated business he has for fiin years been connected with. The Dertment would lose the services of a clerk ose reports were never incorrect and o refused to profit by frequent opportuni s during the rebellion to enrich himself d defraud the government by collusion h bidders, while he made purchases and yments of large amounts. To Mr. Marsh, the change could have little or no inest, as he had long ago decided on enter r business elsewhere and had perfected rangements to do so before any change s anticipa.ed.

A telegram from Washington, Friday afnoon, announces that the order to abol the office is revoked, it being demonated that it was the most economically naged purchasing office in the country.

Jottings.

Fire was discovered in the stable of Sam Adams & Co., at the foot of Daniel eet, Friday afternoon at two o'clock, durg the prevalence of a high wind. The department were slow in responding to alarm; the driver of one of the horses ng at work at the gravel pit on Lafayette d, Officer Curt. Marden was summoned hitch up a horse for the machine, which r its arrival did good service. The fire s well managed, being in a cluster of oden buildings, and was confined to the ble in which it originated, the extinguish being especially useful in preventing its read. Although Mr. Broughton of the n of Adams & Co., was in the office near when the alarm was given, the flames gained so much headway that he was able to rescue the two horses in the ble and could hear them kicking in eir stalls. It is probable that the fire s set by boys, who have in times past set s in that neighborhood. Mr. John H. oughton's horse was not insured, and s valued at $250. The other horse, beging to the firm, and worth about $400, s insured. The loss will reach $1500, re being about $400 insurance. The ble was owned by Miss Carrie Wenl of this city.

Dear Chronicle; In calling attention to distinguished orator who will address Monday evening at Franklin Hall, I cando better than quote your own words six years ago: "The hundreds of thousds who but a few years ago denounced ndell Phillips and would not listen to burning eloquence, have come to know worth, to value his far-sightedness and me themselves for their own blindness mind."

Capt. Sylvanus Robinson, of the schooner shington Freeman, of this city, was wned at St. George, Me., Wednesday rnoon, the 19th, by the capsizing of a T.

We would recommend that our genial nd Dodge, in his reports to the Associated Press, should spell the front name of the commander of the Portsmouth Artillery Company in full, instead of sending the initial only. Those Boston chaps invariably make of T. E. O. Marvin, "Leo Marvin," and it shocks our Centennial sensibilities beyond measure.

We do not intend to predict that the Marion will sail to-day.

Mr. John H. Miller, who injured a kneepan by a fall in Boston two months ago, is recovering the use of his leg, which he writes is "boss of the whole concern, and if I had four of 'em could do nothing."

The veteran bill poster, Mr. John H. Smith, will have a benefit at Mechanics' Hall, next Friday evening—a minstrel and variety performance ending with a dance.

Clergymen will pay full fare on the Eastern Railroad this year.

The referees in the case of William S. Hadley vs. the New Hampshire Fire Insurance Company, for loss by fire on his boarding house at Rye Beach, which has been in court for some time—the jury awarding the prosecution $1450 at the January term of the Circuit Court in 1874, to which he took an appeal—have decided in Hadley's favor, decreasing, however, the first verdict about $100.

A nice little miss, the adopted daughter of Dr. Osorio, nine years old, started for school a day or two since and rambled to Greenland instead of the school house via the Eastern Railroad track, causing considerable alarm before she was found.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Eastern Railroad will be held at Boston, Monday, Feb. 7th. After the regular routine business, votes will be taken to determine if the stockholders will accept terms of settlement as proposed by the creditors of the road to the directors, and, if not, whether they will suggest any plan of settlement and to ascertain if the stockholders will authorize the directors to put the road into bankruptcy.

Col. Hackett sells by auction to-day a part of schooner H. Prescott and some bank shares.

Mr. Daniel Senter's present rooms on Daniel street were formerly the editorial rooms where Joshua L. Foster wrote rebellious articles in war times, and the room which Mr. Senter occupied previously, until burned out, was formerly the law office of Daniel Webster.

HENDERSON'S.

The parties who had agreed to purchase my stock of Dry Goods on the first of January, not being able to meet their engagements, the stock is still left in my hands, which seriously interferes with the business arrangements I had made.

I have therefore determined to give the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity a rousing benefit. To make quick work of it, I propose the following inducements to purchasers of Dry Goods:

A Present to every Customer

buying One Dollar's worth of goods.

A Better Present to every customer buying Two Dollars' worth.

A still Better One to every customer buying Five Dollars' worth.

An Elegant Present to every customer buying Ten Dollars' worth.

Every customer buying One Dollar's worth or more, is sure of a Valuable Present.

In addition to all this, one in every twenty-five packages containing a present, also contains a check entitling the lucky holder to the

Elegant Chamber Set

IN MY WINDOW

VALUED AT 55 DOLLARS.

ONE-HALF BARREL FLOUR,

LADIES' ROCKING CHAIR,

ONE BOX RAISINS,

ONE BARREL POTATOES,

ONE BARREL APPLES.

And lots of other merchandise to eat and to wear.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT AT THE HEAD OF THIS COLUMN IS AN ACTUAL FACT!

The amount of presents to be given away is equal to just one-half the amount of the value of the goods sold.

The Grandest Dry Goods sale ever heard of,—offering better inducements even than Lovering in his celebrated book sale.

We don't all want a book, but we all need Dry Goods, and in purchasing of me you get your goods as low as can be bought in Portsmouth with all the additional inducements thrown in.

☞ Everything will be conducted squarely and everything advertised will be carried out.

No person in the store knows the package containing the checks for the larger presents, and the only condition we exact from the persons receiving them is the privilege of publishing their names, simply to satisfy the public that the goods are given away as advertised.

Daily Chronicle.

—The mice which haunted my house were not the common ones which are said to have been introduced into the country, but a wild native kind, not found in the village. I sent one to a distinguished naturalist, and it interested him much. When it was building, one of these had its nest underneath the house, and before I had laid the second floor, and swept out the shavings, would come out regularly at luncheon time and pick up the crumbs at my feet. It probably had never seen a man before. It soon became quite familiar, and would run over my shoes and up my clothes. It could readily ascend the sides of the room by short impulses like a squirrel, which it resembled in its motions. At length, as I leaned with my elbow on the bench, one day, it ran up my clothes, and along my sleeve, and round and round the paper which held my dinner, while I kept the latter close, and dodged and played at bo-peep with it; and when at last I held still a piece of cheese between my thumb and finger, it came and nibbled it, sitting in my hand, and afterward cleaned its face and paws, like a fly, and walked away.—Henry Thoreau.

—Whenever an injury is inflicted or a wound made on a horse it should be attended to at once, or with as little delay as possible. If any dirt is in the wound, it should be well cleansed with a soft sponge and lukewarm water. Then with a proper needle (a curved surgeon's needle should be used) and stout silk twist, pass as many stitches through the edges of the wound as will draw them and hold them together. These stitches should not be made as in sewing cloth, but the thread is to be passed through the skin at points directly opposite to each other. The two ends of the thread should be tied into a secure knot after drawing the edges of the wound closely together. If the edges are ragged, some care must be exercised to bring the corresponding parts into their proper place. If swelling takes place, apply cold water until it is reduced, and avoid all irritating or spirituous applications unless they become necessary. Nature will generally perform the cure if assisted to make a proper start.

—Miss Wyatt, of Medina, O., has a head on her shoulders that is twenty-four inches in circumference, or three inches larger than the average male head.

—Nine jurymen can return a verdict in Texas now. That gives the other three a chance to go out and take sothin.—Post.

—The population of Ireland is set down at 5,412,397. During the last ten years 849,836 emigrants left the Green Isle.

—The Texas prairies are on fire.

Harper's Bazar.

ILLUSTRATED.

Notices of the Press.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the child even by dress and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its artful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is unfailingly good and interesting. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and sketches, are all invigorating to the mind. —Chicago Evening Journal.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon returned for more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time was unable to do work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so low that my friends despaired of my life. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised by the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one another friend, and in exchange he gave me a dollar, and I paid the balance myself. Enclosed please find $1.00 for the two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to try "Send me more by express." They all told me what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I could not live much longer. I have tried almost everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and not anything. In one week of the treatment one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,

Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism; also much pain in the Liver and Kidneys, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have tried many remedies, but found great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I would suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and bought the first April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will more than pay if money would be the consideration of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would be plenty. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00 please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockbottom, who are trying them, and are greatly much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All models by express or delivery to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

JOHN TAGGART."

Indians After an Honest Man.

Indians may be treacherous, but they can be just, and they can be honest; and who shall say how far the dishonesty of others has led to their treachery? They know when they are cheated, as our Government has found to its cost.

An old trader, who had established himself at what happened to be a favorable locality among the Northern Indians, tells a good story of his first trials with his red customers. Other traders had located in that same place before, but had not remained long. The Indians, who evidently wanted goods, and had money and furs, flocked about the store of the new trader, and carefully examined his goods, but offered to buy nothing. Finally their chief, with a large number of his tribe, visited him.

"How do, John?" said the chief. "Show me goods. Aha, I take that blanket for me, and that calico for squaw—three otter skins for blanket, and one for calico. Ugh! pay you by 'm by—to-morrow."

He received his goods and left. On the next day he returned with a large part of his band, his blanket, well stuffed with skins of various kind. "Now, John, I pay."

And with this he drew an otter skin from his blanket, and laid it on the counter. Then he drew a second, a third, and a fourth. A moment's hesitation as though calculating, and he drew out a fifth skin, a very nice and rare one—and passed it over.

"That's right, John."

The trader instantly pushed back the last skin, with—

"You owe me but four. I want only my just dues."

The chief refused to take it, and they passed it several times back and forth, each one asserting that it belonged to the other. At length the dusky chieftain appeared to be satisfied. He gave the trader a scrutinizing look, and then put the skin back into the blanket. Then he stepped to the door and gave a yell, and cried out to his followers:—

"Come; come and trade with the pale face, John. He no cheat Indian; his heart big."

Then turning back to the trader he said—

"Suppose you take last skin, I tell my people no trade with you. We drive you off like a hog, as we drive off others; but now you Indian's friend, and we be yours."

Before dark the trader was waist deep in furs and loaded down with cash. He found that honesty had a commercial value with these Indians.

—A California inventor, who evidently has a low opinion of the average intelligence of the horse, has invented a machine for drawing street cars which he fondly imagines our equine friends will at once recognize as made after their own image, and will admit to the freedom of the streets without a thought of running away and breaking things. This so-called "steam horse" resembles the original animal so far as its head and shoulders are concerned. There, however, its resemblance ends. The iron animal is devoid of legs, for which are substituted wheels, just visible at the foot of an iron petticoat. Where the hind quarters of a horse ought to be, the inventor has placed a cab somewhat resembling a sedan chair. The steam-horse is furnished with a cow-catcher, a head-light, and a bell, but being built with immovable ears and so tail whatever, it is unable to express its emotions except by the unequine process of whistling. Fancy any horse in his right senses accepting such a monstrosity as this as a friend and brother! We suggest that the "steam-horse" be sent to New York for the use of the "steam man," if that mysterious personage be still extant.—Syracuse Journal.

—It was a Burlington commercial traveler, just in from a collection trip, and he leaned against the desk in a picturesque attitude to make his report.

"How about Slocum?" asked the principal, after several other customers had been talked over.

"Oh, he's all right," said the traveler; "he'll pay. He says he'll pay you in pork."

"Pork?" exclaimed the merchant. "Pork nothing. This is a dry goods house; what in thunder does he mean by saying he'll pay me in pork?"

"Well, I don't know," replied the unruffled traveler, "but he told me he'd pay you in a hog's eye, and I guess that means pork."

—Young man, go to India! It is the custom there for parents to pay men to marry their daughters. In Calcutta, recently, a rich Hindoo paid a man who came from a family of considerable distinction the sum of $300,000 to marry his daughter. The fellow married the young girl, a mere child in years, and pocketed the money. Within two years he had gambled away all his money and was in debt besides. In this strait he sent the girl to her parents' house, demanding $100,000 more as a conditional living with her longer. The proposition was indignantly rejected, and the discarded wife now remains at her parental home. It is a stigma upon a Hindoo family if the daughters are not married before arriving at the age of thirteen.

—"I suppose there are plenty of saw mills over in your State," said a Chicago man to a party from Michigan the other night.

"Wall, I shud say there wuz," replied the Michigander. "Why, sir, Michigan is gettin' so dern full uv saw mills that you can hardly meet a man over there with more'n two fingers on a hand." And sticking up a paw on which dwelt a lone digit as proof of his assertion, he quietly continued: "I've shook hands with um myself."

News and Notes.

The Senate galleries were well filled Friday by persons who were attracted there to hear the eulogies on the life of the late Vice President Wilson. The heavy drapings of mourning which have remained undisturbed since the funeral services were held in the Senate chamber served to remind all those present of that solemn occasion. Eulogies were pronounced by Senators Boutwell, Morrill of Vermont, Hamlin, Cragin, Cameron, Morton and Anthony, and resolutions of respect were unanimously adopted.

Mrs. Adeline Dodge, who attempted to kill a boy named Flynn, at Goffstown, last October, was found guilty and sentenced to eight years in the State prison.

Judge Kingman, of Wyoming, recently made some statements regarding the working of female suffrage in that territory. He stated that the presence of women at the voting places had changed election day from a time of disorder to one of religious quiet, and told how the women rallied on one occasion at Cheyenne and beat the combination of liquor dealers. The women hold no offices, except on school boards and as clerks, though some of them have been appointed justices of the peace, and he had never heard of an appeal from their decisions. He doubts if there are a half a dozen men in the territory now opposed to woman suffrage.

The democrats in Congress are affording the best of reasons for the return next Fall of a republican majority.

We feel very much obliged to Mr. Blaine. It is a great thing to know what the matter is with a sick patient, and his vigorous blows have spotted the sore places, which it is particularly well for us now to identify. We don't know—and we fancy he does not care—what the effect of such speeches as his last two or three may be upon his "chances" for the Presidency; but this is sure, that he has done a good work in developing an amount of treason still latent in men from the South occupying seats on the floor of Congress, of which it is of great consequence for all loyal men to be aware. —Congregationalist.

Col. John B. Clarke has given the Manchester Reform Club the use of Mirror hall for one year, which they have fitted up and dedicated as a reading room.

The mode of obtaining fish is now being revolutionized. As the old whaling sail vessel gave way to propellers, so does the time-out-of-mind "smack" give place to steam craft. Recently one of our enterprising firms, Messrs. Rogers & Edwards, entered into a contract with George W. Mallory, the boat builder, of Mystic, Conn., to construct a steam propeller 103 feet long, to be called the Gerrit Polhemus. She will be manned by fifteen men, all told; will carry six fishing yawls, and be supplied with 15,000 fathoms of line and 15,000 fish hooks. The mode of working her will be to reach the Banks at midnight and taking the steamer as a centre, distribute the yawls in a large circle about her—each boat being provided with 400 feet of line and 400 hooks—and at the close of the day, the steamer will sail around the circle, gather up the boats and fish, and return with her harvest to market.—N. Y. Com. Adv.

The election of Governor Kirkwood, of Iowa to the United States Senate, gives the executive chair to Lieutenant Governor Joshua G. Newbold.

Proprietors of orange groves in Florida have the satisfaction of knowing that their fruit is preferred in New York above all other, being most sought for and bringing the highest price. Havana oranges sell for $8 per barrel, while Florida as readily bring $12. The latter see constantly grow rising in favor, and as large orchards are now coming into bearing every year through the whole length of the St. John's river (also in "the Indian river country" higher up, which is the very paradise for fruit of this sort,) the New York dealers anticipate a trade of great future importance from that quarter.

The Centennial appropriation will cost us three cents and a half apiece all round.

The Secretary of the Navy, in response to a resolution of the House, reports that no officer is now on the active list of the navy who appears by the records of the Department to be "over the age of 62 years," and that the only officer of the marine corps over that age is its commandant, Brig.-Gen. Zeilin. He has not been retired, because commissioned officers of the marine corps are subject to be retired on account of age only at the discretion of the President of the United States, and the President has not seen fit to retire him for that reason.

The Washington correspondent of the Syracuse Courier writes that St. Louis is seemingly the favored place for holding the democratic National convention.

Barnum is getting up the biggest show yet.

Southern republicans have been canvassing in Washington and reached the conclusion that Bristow and Jewell would be a good ticket.

The Graphic wants to know if the god of soft weather is Thor.

This is the kind of boys they have in Dover. A resident who reached that place by a noon train the other day, after an absence of two weeks, was met at the depot by his eight-year old son, who loudly welcomed him. "And is everybody well, Willie?" asked the father. "The wellest kind," replied the boy. "And nothing has happened?" "Nothing at all. I've been good, Jennie's been good, and I never saw ma behave herself so well as she has this time!"

The Manchester Dispatch says it is going after Prohibition Herald Deering's military record, by and by, but wants "to roast thoroughly one side of the goose before turning it."

The Lebanon Free Press says: The nomination of Hon. J. W. Johnson, of this town, by the republicans for Senator in District No. 11, don't please the democrats at all. We didn't suppose it would. Set one thing down sure, the republicans propose to re-take District No. 11 this year, and count on Enfield as doing more than her share in doing it. She furnishes a candidate and will give him a big vote—mark that!

General George, Lamar's rival for the Mississippi Senatorship, is to be rewarded for his withdrawal by a place on the Supreme Bench of the State.

It has become quite evident of late that Gov. Hendricks is growing in the favor of the Ohio democrats as their candidate for the Presidency. The inflationists seem to regard him as about the right sort of a man for them. A Columbus correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer says Mr. Hendricks is almost the unanimous second choice of the democrats of the State now, and many of them have said that unless Ohio can agree upon a candidate they would like to see the delegation solid for Hendricks.

Louisiana has not elected a United States Senator for nearly a week. This apathy in regard to honoring her "favorite son" demands explanation.—Memphis Avalanche.

The Cuban correspondence shows that the last letter of Mr. Fish to Mr. Cushing, of Nov. 5th, reviewing the situation of affairs, says it is now the desire of this government to satisfactorily adjust all questions, and in this desire we have been patient almost to the limits of endurance. He insists that Spain shall bring Gen. Burriel to trial, in accordance with the protocol, that in reference to all the pending questions the relations of this country with Spain are endangered by delay, and that as to all equally the Spanish government should be informed that the maintenance of good relations with this government depend on an early, a satisfactory and a conclusive adjustment. A telegram from Mr. Cushing Nov. 16, says the Spanish government repeats the assurance of the trial of Burriel.

Youngstown, Ohio, is greatly excited by the outrage and murder of a young girl. Tramps are suspected of this crime.

—Coarse, black hair and dark skin signify great power of character, with a tendency to sensuality. Fine, black hair and dark skin indicate strength of character, along with purity and goodness. Stiff, straight, black hair and beard indicate a coarse, strong, rigid, straightforward character. Fine dark-brown hair signifies the combination of exquisite sensibilities with great strength of character. Flat, clinging, straight hair, a melancholy but extremely decent character. Harsh, upright hair is the sign of a reticent and sour spirit—a stubborn and harsh character. Coarse, red hair indicates powerful animal passions, together with a corresponding strength of character. Auburn hair with florid countenance denotes the highest order of sentiment and intensity of feeling, purity of character, with the highest capacity for enjoyment or suffering. Straight, even, smooth and glossy hair denotes strength, harmony and evenness of character, hearty affections, a clear head and superior talents. Fine, silky, supple hair is the mark of a delicate and sensitive temperament, and speaks in favor of the mind and character of the owner. Crisp, curly hair indicates a hasty, somewhat impetuous and rash character. White hair denotes a lymphatic and indolent constitution.

—We recently hired a livery team to carry us from the depot, about a mile and a half. Our driver was a boy some fifteen or sixteen years old, and we noticed that he selected a whip from the rack with an air which showed that he regarded it as a very important part of his outfit. As soon as he got in, he began to lash the horse, although the vehicle was a stout carryall, and the hill was quite steep. We told him that we should not like a horse of ours driven so; and then he settled into the sulks, and the horse into a snail's pace. The horse seemed a willing and capable beast enough; but there were no means of communication between him and the driver, except the whip; and the only inspiration which the horse appeared to gather from this, was a confused and a spasmodic impulse to get up and get. What subtle influence the driver attributed to it, we cannot even imagine. First he struck the horse suddenly, and made him whisk his tail, and then he whipped him for whisking his tail. This started him into a run, and he whipped him for running. Then he checked and bothered him, and made him stumble, and then he whipped him for stumbling. Then we told him that he had done fully enough whipping for the trip.—J. C. Dillon, in "Ploughman."

Needless Suffering.

Many persons of weakly constitution, with dyspeptic and bilious tendencies, suffer life-long bodily distress unnecessarily. Their existences are commonly shorter than those of healthier mortals, but while they last, it is usually the case that they are continually dosing themselves, or being dosed to no purpose. Could they be induced to use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for a while, strength regained, digestion restored, and the disappearance of bilious symptoms, would speedily acquaint them with the difference between a remedy which deals with causes, and those which affect symptoms merely. Not only are the Bitters a searching specific for complaints affecting the stomach, liver or intestinal canal, but they are, in consequence of their invigorative and bracing influence upon the entire physique an admirable means of protecting the system against the atmospheric influences which beget malarial disease.

READING FOR CHILDREN.

OPINION OF CHAS. FRANCIS ADAMS.

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL.

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

WHAT YOU CAN GET FOR 5 DOLLARS.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS

Says, in a letter to the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot, that three-fourths of the books in brisk demand at the public libraries are "trash and sensational." He thinks that pa ents ought to guide the children's taste in the choice of reading more than they do. The Newark Advertiser, in

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL

On this subject, says: "A cheap literature than that which is spread before the children of this country it would hardly be possible for the mind of man to conceive or his hands to execute. It is even worse than an open advocacy of vice and intemperance, for that would carry its own antidote, while what we have excites, stimulates and debases the intellect, unfits it for healthy food, fills the imagination with gaudy and distorted pictures of life, and develops the passions at an age when they should be most under control. How much of the low moral tone of society is due to these satanic issues of the press we do not know; but, as a river can nowhere be so effectually poisoned as at its source, so we have a right to believe that the millions of these papers, devoured by curious and eager children, must influence to a large extent the tone of society and the drift of action of those whose plastic minds come under their influence."

The writer adds: "It may be somewhat unnecessary to state that we have no reference in the above to those monthly magazines for children, which are as healthful as they are beautiful. If all editors were as able, truthful and devoted as Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge (who edits ST. NICHOLAS), there would be nothing to complain of. The New York Tribune says: "In

THE AVALANCHE OF IMMORAL LITERATURE

That threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is required for them, and ST. NICHOLAS has reached a higher platform, and commands for this service wider resources in arts and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries."

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

REV. C. S. ROBINSON, D. D., in an article in the Sunday School Times on the subject, says of ST. NICHOLAS, SCRIBNER'S ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE for GIRLS and BOYS: "A cleaner, purer, more trustworthy periodical for children cannot be named. It is on the side of all that is true and good, from beginning to end."

In order to place this magazine within the reach of all, the publishers offer to send the 14 numbers (Nov., '75, to Dec., '76) for $3.0 .

Or, for $5.00, they will send the twelve numbers, beginning with Nov., '75, and either of the bound volumes of ST. NICHOLAS for '74 or '75; the full price of which is $7.00 Or for $6.00 they will send ST. NICHOLAS as above, and both the bound volumes, the full price of which is $11.00

Each of the volumes is complete in itself; they are by all odds not only the best, but the handsomest gift books for children ever issued.

The volumes contain more than 1,500 octavo pages, with nearly 1,000 illustrations; they have five splendid series, besides shorter stories, historical and biographical papers, poems, sketches, rhymes, jingles, riddles, etc., more than equal in amount to 20 volumes of ordinary children's books of 400 book pages costing $20.00!!

Two specimen numbers, with Prospectus for 1876, sent, postage paid, on receipt of Twenty-five Cents.

TO BE GIVEN AWAY

AT

HENDERSON'S.

The parties who had agreed to purchase my stock of Dry Goods on the first of January, not being able to meet their engagements, the stock is still left in my hands, which seriously interferes with the business arrangements I had made.

I have therefore determined to give the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity a rousing benefit. To make quick work of it, I propose the following inducements to purchasers of Dry Goods:

A Present to every Customer

buying One Dollar's worth of goods.

A Better Present to every customer buying Two Dollars' worth.

A still Better One to every customer buying Five Dollars' worth.

An Elegant Present to every customer buying Ten Dollars' worth.

Every customer buying One Dollar's worth or more, is sure of a Valuable Present.

In addition to all this, one in every twenty-five packages containing a present, also contains a check entitling the lucky holder to the

Elegant Chamber Set

IN MY WINDOW

VALUED AT 55 DOLLARS.

ONE-HALF BARREL FLOUR,

LADIES' ROCKING CHAIR,

ONE BOX RAISINS,

ONE BARREL POTATOES,

ONE BARREL APPLES,

And lots of other merchandise to eat and to wear.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT AT THE HEAD OF THIS COLUMN IS AN ACTUAL FACT!

The amount of presents to be given away is equal to just one-half the amount of the value of the goods sold.

The Grandest Dry Goods sale ever heard of,—offering better inducements even than Lovering in his celebrated book sale.

We don't all want a book, but we all need Dry Goods, and in purchasing of me you get your goods as low as can be bought in Portsmouth with all the additional inducements thrown in.

☞ Everything will be conducted squarely and everything advertised will be carried out.

No person in the store knows the package containing the checks for the larger presents, and the only condition we exact from the persons receiving them is the privilege of publishing their names, simply to satisfy the public that the goods are given away as advertised.

Wendell Phillips.

Seats may be selected and secured for the lecture of Wendell Phillips this evening. Franklin Hall will be open all day, and a polite usher will be in attendance to wait upon all who desire to have reserved seats. Tickets thirty-five cents. No extra charge for reserved chairs.

We clip this tribute to Wendell Phillips from a Chicago paper: "Mr. Phillips' fearless utterance of his views and his history—cool, dispassionate, deliberate, rich in voice and in language, and powerful in illustration—held his audience as if they were fascinated. At no time did he speak much above a conversational tone, and not once was he vehement in gesture or utterance. Yet how eloquent he was! Applause was frequent, and those who went, through storm and mud, to the lecture, felt richly repaid for it, although a great number may have differed from many of his views. The address was delivered entirely without notes and occupied an hour and twenty-five minutes."

Heir of a pure and proud old name,
Wealth's dowered and cultured son,
Ancestral glories pale before
What thine own hands have won.
On shrine of pure Democracy
Casting that olden crest,
Thou seek'st to crown with equal rights
The least and lowliest.
All calm and pale, how hast thou stood
Near violence and death,
Till, hushed beneath thy voice's spell,
The furies held their breath!
O, voice more grand than roll of waves,
More sweet than song of birds,
How Truth's keen arrows heard and sped,
Winged by thy golden words!
